Senate Passes $100,000,000 Relief Measure

President to Accept $50,000,000 Slash; Pepper Amendment Rejected 49 to 28

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the White House an emergency relief bill providing $100,000,000 for the WPA instead of the $150,000,000 repeatedly requested by the President.

Protracted New Deal efforts to obtain the larger appropriation were defeated by a 49-28 roll call vote, a few minutes after Majority Leader Barkley had stated in an impassioned speech:

"I am authorized by the President to say that while he wants $150,000,000, while he thinks it's necessary, while $100,000,000 is not satisfactory, he will sign the bill (for $100,000,000) if and when it comes through."

To Ask for $1,500,000,000

Barkley also revealed that "within the next two or three days," the President will ask for $1,500,000,000 for the WPA for the fiscal year beginning July 1, a drop of $663,000,000 from the total for the current year. The $100,000,000 bill passed yesterday is intended merely to help carry WPA through the next two and a half months.

Action of the Senate in approving the $100,000,000 measure was taken a few hours after President Roosevelt had re-emphasized his belief that: "If $100,000,000 is voted, between 300,000 and 400,000 fewer people can be given work relief than if $150,000,000 is voted—and in addition practically none of the 700,000 or 800,000 people on the waiting list can be given employment."

In a letter to Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, sponsor of the amendment that would have raised the relief grant by $50,000,000, the President declared that "the sole question of continuing relief to July is one of arithmetic." He said "there is nothing for me to add or to subtract from what I have made so clear on so many occasions since last January," when he first requested a total supplementary relief appropriation of $875,000,000—only to have $150,000,000 lopped off by Congress.

Barkley Votes Smaller Sum

Despite President Roosevelt's desire for the larger sum, Barkley voted against the Pepper amendment with the explanation that the House would not approve an appropriation above $100,000,000 and he thought it would be useless to prolong the battle, especially since the 1940 relief appropriation soon will be under consideration.

Nevertheless, he said, "if I had it in my power, I'd order the bill to be carried with $150,000,000."

The majority leader asserted he had not attempted "to exercise control over or influence a single Senator on the Pepper amendment," but he thought it "unwise to precipitate this fight" that had dragged on in the Senate since the middle of last week. He termed it a "futile gesture."

After pointing out that the WPA estimate for 1940 is $1,500,000,000, Barkley declared that "in view of the situation existing in the House and the Senate that $50,000,000 is not such a stupendous amount to justify all the fuss and feathers."

Not Averse to Spending

Addressing most of his remarks to his Democratic colleagues, the Kentucky Senator declared that "I'm not averse to spending—I'm not frightened as to the size of the public debt in the United States."

Immediately after downing the Pepper amendment, the Senate defeated by voice an amendment by Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, which would forbid the WPA to discharge—except for cause—any needy worker now on the rolls who could not find other employment.

Another amendment proposed by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, which would maintain WPA at full strength until funds on hand were exhausted on June 30, also died.

Adams Says Sum Adequate

Senator Adams, chairman of the Appropriations sub-committee that endorsed the $100,000,000 bill, said the sum was "in the honest judgment of the Appropriations Committee, adequate to meet the situation."

To the contention of Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, that he haven't seen yet any evidence whatever that Col. Harrington

Mercy Killing Suggested for Aged on Relief

Retired Army Major Proposes Euthanasia 'To Save Money'

Euthanasia—or "mercy killing"—was suggested as a solution of the relief question for persons past 70 or 75 years of age, at the regular meeting of the Washington Society for Philosophical Inquiry in the new National Museum yesterday.

Killing the hopelessly insane and all first-degree murderers, in order to save the State the expense of keeping them in institutions, was also put forward by Maj. Edward L. Dyer, U. S. Army, retired, treasurer of the society, who gave yesterday's talk.

Would Kill Hopeless

"I realize," he said, "that many religions would be against it. But I think perhaps if euthanasia were good and humane, and would really be a mercy, this is a case where one of the Ten Commandments—that is, 'Thou shalt not kill'—might be modified."

Maj. Dyer came to the relief problem after expounding arguments in favor of euthanasia for the hopelessly diseased, and for "children born as monsters."

Society Takes Sides

"I don't advocate taking everyone on the relief rolls and giving them a shot," he said, "but euthanasia should be considered in cases of old age, where the persons are no use to themselves or anyone else. As for the criminally insane, I see no reason why they shouldn't be put out of the way and save the expense of keeping them. Society is finding so many ways to spend money, this might be a way to save it."

The major pointed out exceptions made to the commandment against killing in case of war, and in the case of the automobile. "Nearly 40,-

Overcoat Weather Due Today After 80-Degree Heat

A return today of "overcoat" weather was predicted after the mercury went to 80 degrees yesterday. It will be fair, and temperatures are expected to be in the 40's.

The National Capital Parks office predicted the pink double Japanese cherry blossoms would be out in full bloom this week-end.

District fire officials said the two days of warm weather had been responsible for numerous brush fires. Engines responded to nearly 100 calls during the day.

Berlin Reported Trying to Stave Off 'Day Of Reckoning'

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 11.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler was represented by an informed Nazi source tonight as being convinced that Great Britain and France might decide this year is the best for challenging expanding Germany and Italy.

This conviction was said to be based on the British-French guarantees of Poland's independence and reports that Britain was planning a similar promise to Greece and other southeastern countries.

The informant asserted that almost overnight Germans have come to believe that their problem has become one of staving off a possible day of reckoning.

Hitler was reported to have told week-end visitors how happy he was over the Italian occupation of Albania because thereby he considered the danger of an immediate conflict over Tunisia was averted.

The informant expressed belief that in the coming months Hitler would do nothing that might provoke active armed intervention by Britain and France, but said that apprehension prevailed in high Berlin circles lest the French and British strike first.

A change has become noticeable in the Nazi propaganda policy, which hitherto has been emphasizing the strength of Germany's possible enemies.

British Fleet Derided

The strength of the Rome-Berlin axis now is stressed in a wide campaign to represent the axis powers as the only elements of stability in Europe.

Great Britain and France were pictured as untrustworthy, decrepit and selfish. Propaganda Minister Goebels' newspaper, Der Angriff, ridiculed the British fleet as consisting partly of "old tubs" with which Britain "can not show off any more."

Until recently, said a man who has good connections with Hitler and Marshal Goering, the accepted theory had been that the longer war could be postponed the more certain Britain and France would be to catch up in armaments and the more precarious would become the position of Germany and Italy.

With the economic penetration of the Balkans, the position is regarded by Hitler and his advisers as reversed, this informant said.

Axis Truculent

Berlin, April 11 (U.P.)—Nazis close to the foreign office said tonight that the "axis powers" will not tolerate Anglo-French "interference" in southeastern Europe. More than ever Berlin and Rome claim the area as their vital sphere of influence, they said.

Meanwhile, some Nazi quarters expressed belief that despite the new Anglo-Polish agreement Warsaw will be ready to reopen discussions with Berlin in the near future.

Car Strikes Down Rep. Duncan's Son And Fiancee

The son of Representative Duncan (Democrat), of Missouri, and his fiancee were injured when they were struck down by an auto in front of the Kennedy-Warren, 3100 block Connecticut avenue northwest, last night.

They were Richard D. Duncan, 25, and Patricia Chrane, 24, of St. Joseph, Mo., who was visiting the Duncans at the hotel.

Young Duncan suffered a fractured leg and Miss Chrane a cerebral concussion. She is in serious condition.

The driver, police said, was Leigh L. Nettleton, 16, of 2411 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He was released in custody of his father.

President Indorses Post Editorial On Foreign Policy

Good, Clear, Honest, He Tells Newsmen; His 'If We Don't Have War' Talk an Effort To Preserve Peace by Preponderance of Power

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt stamped with his hearty approval yesterday a newspaper editorial calling for a "preponderant show of force" by democratic nations to halt the dictators and prevent war.

The editorial, appearing yesterday morning in The Washington Post (Independent), said that world war "can still be averted if the free nations are willing to show that they will take a stand before it is too late."

The President ordered the editorial inserted in the minutes of his press conference, saying it was very good, very clear and very honest. He said it had not been inspired by him but that he had almost fallen out of bed when he read it yesterday morning.

His Views for Posterity

He added he wanted it inserted in the press conference minutes so that posterity might see what his views had been.

While the President spoke, news dispatches from London were saying that Prime Minister Chamberlain was pursuing an appeasement policy toward Mussolini, having decided to give him "one more chance" to keep the peace. Whether the President knew of this British decision when he pointed to The Post editorial, and whether his words would tend to strengthen the British attitude toward the dictators remained undetermined.

The Post editorial was based on Mr. Roosevelt's remark, as he left Warm Springs, Ga., recently:

"I'll be back in the fall if we don't have a war."

It said this was no casual utterance. "Most Americans realize today that the sweep of events has now brought Europe to the very verge of war," it commented. "What is insufficiently realized is the tremendous implications of the impending catastrophe for every citizen of this country.

"In spite of the best-informed warnings to the contrary many still believe that another world war might leave the United States relatively undisturbed. In spite of the virtual certainty of American involvement, there are many who would seek to achieve isolation by panicky legislation or to seek shelter behind other paper guarantees of immunity."

To these persons, the editorial said, the President had addressed his warning. His use of the word "we," said the editorial, undoubtedly meant Western civilization.

"A war affecting its foundations would immediately affect us vitally,

285 Millions More Sought For Defense

Congress Prepares To Rush Emergency Program Legislation

Administration leaders acted again yesterday to speed up the emergency defense program in view of critical world conditions.

President Roosevelt, it was revealed, will ask Congress early next week for an additional $285,000,000 for new war planes and seacoast and Panama Canal defenses, and under special legislative procedure the defense funds will be rushed through the House and Senate without delay.

Chairman Snyder, of the House Military Appropriations sub-committee, said that under the arrangement worked out he will introduce a special joint resolution to appropriate the $285,000,000 fund as well as $32,500,000 for "educational orders" for industry. Brief hearings will be heard on the program, he declared, after which the $317,500,000 resolution will be brought up in the House late next week or early the following week.

Use of a joint resolution was decided on in the interest of speed.

Funds for the "educational orders"—small contracts awarded to manufacturers to familiarize them with production of munitions and war supplies—were requested by the President yesterday.

This expenditure as well as $250,000,000 for the aircraft program, $8,000,000 for seacoast defenses and

Chief Justice Hughes Well Again on His 77th Birthday

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes yesterday took the telephone himself to tell The Post, in a cheerful birthday interview by wire, "I am getting along splendidly and plan to be at court for Saturday's conference."

Recuperating from a severe attack of grippe, the Chief Justice celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday with a stroll in the morning and a motor ride in the afternoon. A part of the morning was spent dictating an opinion to his secretary.

When a Post reporter called the jurist's residence to ask about his birthday plans, the Chief Justice took the telephone from his secretary and announced most definitely, in a strong and cheery voice, "I am happy to be back at work."

"I expect to be at the regular conference on Saturday and on the bench Monday," he declared. He apologetically declined to grant a vis a vis interview, explaining that would entail a general press conference, which he wished to avoid.

Mr. Hughes laughingly pointed out, when asked about a new picture, that he was almost mobbed by press photographers and movie cameramen when he stepped out of his home yesterday morning to take a walk.

The Chief Justice was stricken shortly after addressing a joint session of Congress March 4 on the 150th anniversary of its first assembly. His bright disposition yesterday not only indicated that he has almost completely recovered but belied reports he would like to retire soon.

Bund Accused Of Enlisting Labor for Reich

Copyright, 1939, by International News Service.

Reports that agents of the German-American Bund are conducting a vigorous, Nation-wide campaign to recruit American skilled laborers to work in the munitions factories of Nazi Germany last night led Representative John J. Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, to order a full investigation by the Dies un-American Activities Committee.

Dempsey, a member of the committee, acted in the absence from the Capital of Chairman Martin Dies. He said he had ordered the chief of the committee's investigating force to launch an immediate probe of the reports.

A high-ranking officer of the Army Intelligence Staff said that division had received numerous reports of such a drive, but that he was unaware of its magnitude.

Dempsey said he had been informed by reliable sources that "the recruits are promised their steamship passage to Germany, a living wage and a home," on their pledge they would remain for two years.

Dempsey declared that beyond the existing need for technical workers, there is doubtless an attempt of the German government involved to determine, through importing American workers, newest methods in this Nation.

London Hears Britain Seeks A 'Last Chance' Deal With Duce

By the Associated Press.

London, April 11.—Prime Minister Chamberlain, although still pushing his "Halt Hitler" alliance plan, was reliably reported today to have decided to give Premier Mussolini "one more chance" to keep his promises and the peace of Europe.

Chamberlain was said still to be hopeful of appeasement at Il Duce's end of the Rome-Berlin axis.

He was understood to have accepted Mussolini's assurances that Italy would go no farther into the Balkans than Albania and also would get his blackshirt legions out of Spain without too much delay.

This was described as the chief development of a feverish day which ended with a conference between Chamberlain and King George VI at Buckingham Palace.

The King broke his Easter holiday at Windsor Castle and came to London to hear Chamberlain's explanation as to why Berlin and Rome are to be treated as separate elements.

New Mediterranean Pact Seen

Well-informed sources said some few members of the cabinet wished to denounce the Anglo-Italian agreement of last year, providing for maintenance of the status quo in the Mediterranean, because of Italy's occupation of Albania.

This faction, however, was asserted to have been overruled by Chamberlain, Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and others said to be convinced that there still was hope of splitting the Rome-Berlin axis in event of war.

In other words, though the policy of appeasement is dead for Germany, it still has possibilities for Italy.

Though Britain and France were said to be willing to offer a guarantee of the independence of Greece and Turkey, it was believed this might even be enlarged into some sort of a new Mediterranean pact in which all Mediterranean powers, including Italy, would pledge the status quo.

Fear Dictators May Act

[In view of the new project, there was some doubt tonight as to the tenor of the pronouncement on the international situation which Chamberlain will make before Commons Thursday, according to The Post's special correspondent.

[The government is said to be reluctant to announce at this stage guarantees of the independence of one or two countries, such as Greece and Turkey, for fear that such announcements would be the signal for the dictators to undertake aggressive measures against other small powers, not specified.

[Thus in some quarters it is thought that the government's spokesmen

King May Delay Or Cancel Trip to Canada and U. S.

Bulgars Crush Nazis; French Fleet Joins English Patrol

Turkey and Rumania Press for Guarantees; Athens Opens Ports To British Despite Duce's Warning

Europe's smaller powers, increasingly apprehensive of totalitarian aggression, yesterday moved toward adherence to the British-led stop-Hitler coalition.

Turkey, Greece, Bulgaria, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Poland gave signs of a stiffening attitude toward the dictator nations, coupled with indications of increasing willingness to accept the protection of Britain and France.

While the French and British Mediterranean fleets maneuvered secretly somewhere between Gibraltar and the Dardanelles, and while Italy raised her total armed forces to more than 1,000,000 men, worried smaller states took these steps:

Bulgaria, World War ally of Germany, generally believed securely in the Rome-Berlin orbit, dissolved the Ratnizi, German-supported Nazi organization, for what police said was a plot to change the form of government.

Greece, with Italian troops at her Albanian frontier, answered "assurances" from Rome by offering her ports to Britain's fleet. It was reported also that decrees providing for mobilizing ten classes of reserves were ready for promulgation in an emergency.

Poland called out additional thousands of reserves, in bold defiance of a reported Nazi request for demobilization of the Polish army, now said to number more than 1,200,000 men.

Yugoslavia was reported to have mobilized two classes of reserves for service in two provinces adjoining Italian-occupied Albania.

Rumania, fearing attack from Hungary or Bulgaria, intimated that unless she is given a British guarantee of her independence she may allow herself to be drawn into the Rome-Berlin-Budapest bloc. Troops were reported massing on the Bulgarian frontier.

Turkey, having agreed to open the Dardanelles to any allies of Rumania, also exerted pressure in London and Paris for Anglo-French guarantees of military aid.

Nazi Dissolution Based on Plot for Revolt

Bulgarian police, the Associated Press said, declared the rapidly growing Nazi party had been allowed to continue in recent months on the ground it was a patriotic organization, but the discovery that its leadership planned a change in the regime of King Boris had made "drastic measures" necessary.

Dissolution of the party, said to have had 100,000 members, aroused particular interest because of speculation on how Bulgaria, a heavy territorial loser in the World War, would line up in the present struggle for preeminence in eastern Europe.

One indication of the trend in Bulgaria was seen in opposition of a Social Democratic Party leader to sending a delegation to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's birthday celebration in Berlin April 20. In a letter to the president of the National Assembly, the political leader declared such a demonstration of friendship for Germany would be contrary to the general feeling of the nation.

Meanwhile, diplomatic representatives of France and Britain were actively endeavoring to win Bulgaria to their side, as German and Italian representatives struggled to maintain at least Sofia's tacit adherence to the totalitarian bloc, according to the United Press.

Greece, eyeing fearfully Italian troops concentrations in neighboring Albania and in the nearby Dodecanese Islands, offered unrestricted use of her harbors to Great Britain, the United Press said.

This reported action signified a lack of faith in Italy's disavowal, through her minister in Athens, of any disposition to attack Greece. The minister's declaration, "confirmed the Italian government's intention" to respect strictly the integrity of Greece, both as regards continental territory and islands.

The entente was said to have left Greece free of any obligation to go to Britain's aid in case of an attack on the United Kingdom. She will, however, collaborate as a British ally in case Greek territory is threatened or war breaks out in the Mediterranean area, it was said.

Deal Calls for 300 War Planes

In return for Greek friendship and the commitment to shelter British warships in her many fine harbors, Britain was said to have agreed to supply Greece with 300 airplanes, mostly pursuit ships, as well as an unspecified number of antiaircraft guns and 1,000,000 gas masks.

It was apparent that seizure of Albania materially strengthened Italy's military position, and there were insistent reports of reinforcements being sent to the little country.

Italian soldiers raised their flag today on the Greek-Albanian border and Greece was said to have concentrated troops in the mountains facing Albania.

A Budapest dispatch by the (British) Exchange Telegraph Agency, forwarded to this country by International News Service, said King George of Greece had signed a decree whereby a "state of emergency" will be declared.

Under the decree ten classes of reserves will be called to the colors. The royal decree had not yet been published, the agency said, but is in the hands of Prime Minister Metaxas, ready to be proclaimed immediately, if necessary.

Metaxas, in a series of radio messages to the people, warned them to be ready to fight for their independence, the United Press said.

New York, April 1. (AP).—The United States advanced from fourth to second place in world merchant ship production in the first quarter of 1939, Lloyd's Register of Shipping announced today.

With a gain of 22,000 tons, the United States replaced Germany in second position, but Great Britain and Ireland retained first place despite a 182,000-ton loss. Germany came third, Japan fourth.

Wagner Favors Only 1 Change In Labor Act

Says 'Tampering' Will Shake 'Stability Of Industrial Peace'

By Robert C. Albright.

Warning against "reckless tampering" with the labor relations act, Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, the man who wrote it, yesterday told a Senate committee drastic changes in the law "will shake the stability and surer blessings of industrial peace."

Wagner favored only one minor alteration, which the labor board has authority to order under its rule-making power—authority for an employer to petition for an election when caught between the competition of rival labor groups.

The Senator was allowed to present his statement and retire without a single committee question asked. A recess was taken until Monday, when Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, will present the case for sweeping amendment of the act.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the name of Mgr. Francis J. Haas, dean of Catholic University's school of social science, former labor consultant to the NRA and now member of a committee studying minimum wage schedules for the shoe manufacturing industry, is being seriously considered for the Labor Relations Board post now held by Donald Wakefield Smith.

Although reappointed last summer by the board, Smith's name has never been sent to the Senate for confirmation and is not expected to be because of adamant American Federation of Labor opposition. Several possible successors are known to have been considered, but Haas' selection is regarded at the Capitol as most likely.

Opposing with Wagner any material change in the labor relations law, the Administration's answer to demands for substantial amendments is expected to be appointment of a successor to Smith, and possible modification by the board of some of its own rules.

Might Shorten Controversy

An early adjournment date, which might have the effect of cutting short any prolonged labor act controversy, has been urged by some Democratic leaders. A bill for a thoroughgoing inquiry into labor board policies is now pending before the House Rules Committee, and will be fought by the Administration.

Senator Burke, whose labor act amendments were under fire yesterday by Senator Wagner, as were the modifications proposed by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, and Senator Holman (Republican), Oregon, said he will reserve a reply until he takes the committee stand Monday.

At that time, Burke will ask committee permission to present more than a dozen witnesses, who he said will include plant superintendents and shop foremen, in support of his amendments.

Wagner testified yesterday that one of Burke's amendments would "destroy majority rule, a rule which simply applies to our economic life the honored principles of our political system." He said another Burke amendment proposed a "novel procedure" enabling a reviewing court to substitute completely its judgment as to facts for that of the board.

Oppose A. F. L. Change

The New York Senator likewise opposed an American Federation of Labor amendment offered by Walsh removing the present provision that employers shall not interfere with the self-organization of their workers, and the Holman amendment to separate the investigatory from the fact-finding functions under the act.

Wagner said changes proposed by labor groups and by "labor's friends" deserve careful consideration, but declared "amendments pretending to make the act 'fair' by placing new restraints on labor would in true effect upset labor's new equality of bargaining power, and resign labor to its earlier status of the economic underling."

"The amendments proposing drastically to change the administrative provisions of the act would, I believe, weaken the traditional type of informal tribunals where the average man has a better chance to be heard," he said. "Without having that intent, they would, in my judgment, tend to have the result of forcing labor to seek its rights through methods which are two expensive and time-consuming for the poor man to afford."

But Wagner conceded that "within a comparatively narrow field" there may be some changes which the hearings will disclose to be "sound," and if so he will introduce or support such amendments.

As an example, he cited wide support for an amendment permitting employers to petition for elections. The present prohibition, he said, is a board ruling and is not in the law. If the board does not change the rule, he said he did not think legislation permitting a well-intentioned employer to petition the board when faced with a rival union fight, would impair the act.

"Unfortunate Division"

He asked detailed examination of the A. F. L. amendments revising board methods of determining the appropriate labor bargaining unit and strengthening validity of contracts. He denied the act itself placed the stamp of approval upon any particular type of union, and said administration of the law has been complicated by "the unfortunate division which now exists in the ranks of labor."

and protect the free choice of representation by the employes themselves," he said. "There is no claim to the contrary by any of those now sponsoring any amendments; but there is the claim that in its application to situations nonexistent when the act was written, certain inequities have grown up." He said it was "desirable" to examine the facts in such cases.

The Gallup Poll

65 Per Cent of Voters Now Favor Boycott Of Germany Since Recent Nazi Coups . . . .

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, April 11.—Since Adolf Hitler's recent coup in Czecho-Slovakia and his seizure of Memel there has been a rise in sentiment throughout the United States for boycotting goods made in Nazi-Germany, according to a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

GEORGE GALLUP

Just after Munich, Institute studies found a small majority of voters in favor of a Nazi boycott, and this sentiment increased after the German anti-Jewish drive in November. The trend continued upward through the Nazi occupation of Prague and Memel until today an Institute survey finds that 65 voters in every 100 say they would join a movement to stop buying German-made goods.

The growing disapproval of Germany's policies is also reflected in the results of a companion survey on tariffs. Three days after Hitler marched into Prague the American State Department raised the duty on German made goods bought into the United States. This action, the Institute finds, is approved by an overwhelming majority of American voters—more than seven in every ten.

The boycott issue, put to voters throughout the country by the Institute at regular intervals during the last six months, was as follows:

"Would you join a movement in this country to stop buying German-made goods?"

	Yes	No
October, 1938	56%	44%
December, 1938	61	39
Today	65	35

A second question in the latest survey asked:

"Our Government is showing its disapproval of Germany's policies by putting a special tax on German-made goods brought into the United States. Are you in favor of this special tax?"

Yes	78%
No	22

Favor Move To Curb Aggression

The survey found no important differences of opinion on the boycott issue by ages, by political parties or by geographical sections. Throughout all areas of the country sentiment for a boycott movement runs to 60 per cent or more. Some difference of opinion by economic groups was noted, however, the lower income voters being more in favor of using the boycott as a weapon of protest than the upper income voters.

Voters who favor the boycott principle give one chief reason for their opinion—that Nazi aggression should be curbed. One voter's comment, typical of the majority view, was: "Boycott is our most powerful and convenient means of criticizing aggression." Another, typical comment was: "Somebody should teach Hitler a lesson."

The minority who oppose a German boycott are apprehensive that such a move will involve us further in Europe's troubles. The view of this group is expressed in the typical comment: "Boycott is an act of warfare. It would be the first step toward war with Germany."

War Materials Barter Backed By Roosevelt

President Explains System Supplements Cotton Export Subsidy

President Roosevelt said yesterday the proposal to "swap" American cotton and wheat for British, Dutch and Belgian rubber and tin had his general approval and he hoped it would go through.

The plan, announced on Monday by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, will be an interesting thing to develop, the President remarked. He explained, however, that it was supplementary to the cotton export subsidy program which he announced a short time ago and which has encountered opposition in the Senate, as well as the $42,000,000 authorization voted by the Senate and now pending in the House, to purchase strategic war materials such as tin and rubber.

Meanwhile, there were indications that the State Department already had sounded out Great Britain, Belgium and the Netherlands on the plan and that formal negotiations for drawing up the necessary treaties will be undertaken within a few days. The swapping arrangement may be extended to other countries supplying other materials which American industries might have difficulty in obtaining in the eventof war abroad.

Price Restrictions

The treaties, which unlike the reciprocal trade agreements will require Senate approval, will set out the price restrictions under which countries obtaining American cotton and wheat would sell these commodities as well as the restriction on sale by this country of rubber and tin.

Asked at his press conference whether the Government would be willing to enter into similar swapping arrangements with Germany, Italy and Japan, the President said he hadn't the slightest idea.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Albama, declared the plan resulted from the success of the barter system in vogue in totalitarian countries. Because of this system, he said, this country has lost nearly 3,000,000 bales of cotton exports this year. He added:

"That is why some of us worked out this basis for foreign sales."

Militant Competition

Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, a leader of the newly formed Midwestern farm bloc, said the plan was a move to meet Germany, Italy and Japan "with a militant competitive program."

"As long as Old World nations are carrying on nefarious trade practices," he said, "this country must go out and compete to retain our foreign markets."

Lucas and Bankhead said the swaping proposal was first advanced at a recent conference between members of Congress and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and other Agriculture Department officials.

Treadway Likes Idea

Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, long a bitter opponent of the Administration reciprocal trade program, in a House speech, described the plan as "a practical and realistic view of foreign trade, such as the Republican minority has long advocated." He insisted that the only justification for foreign trade is to "exchange our surpluses for the things we need but do not produce ourselves."

He declared the reciprocal trade treaty program of Secretary of State Hull had been breaking down for some time and "now is being sabotaged by the Administration itself."

Reaction in the New York commodity markets was a mixture of approval on the ground of war strategy and outright disfavor. Some rubber and cotton authorities insisted that the present private machinery was entirely adequate to keep the United States supplied with needed materials. One condemned that plan as "another New Deal idea for planned economy" and a "disguised" proposal for a cotton export subsidy.

Stark Told Him Of Surety Case, President Says

Discussed Case Before Pendergast Indictment, Press Informed

Reports that the indictment of Thomas J. Pendergast, Democratic boss of Kansas City, followed a tip which Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri gave President Roosevelt gained strength yesterday when the President said Stark has discussed with him the Missouri fire insurance rate compromise which led to the indictment.

The President said he had not been in touch with the matter in a long time. Stark, mentioned as a possible "second choice" New Deal candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, was responsible, it is understood, for a preliminary investigation by Treasury agents.

In response to questions at his press conference, the President said he knew nothing about the matter except that he had received inquiries from certain people, whom he referred to the Treasury.

Meanwhile, it appeared that Missouri's two Democratic Senators, Clark and Truman, and at least two members of the Democratic Congressional delegation, Bell and Shannon, would not be present at a luncheon here Friday honoring Stark, who is coming to the Capital to attend the Gridiron Club dinner Saturday night.

Broke With Pendergast

Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, said he had invited Stark three weeks ago to a luncheon at the Capitol at which Missouri members of Congress would be guests. Since then a Federal grand jury at Kansas City has indicted Pendergast and R. E. O'Malley, who, as State superintendent of insurance, worked out the insurance rate settlement.

Clark and Truman, it was explained at their offices, accepted an invitation 10 days ago to meet Mayor Bernard Dickmann and a group of St. Louis citizens at Charlottesville, Va., Thursday. They will accompany the Missourians to Point Comfort, returning to Washington Saturday. Bell said he had a business engagement which will compel him to be out of the city Friday. Shannon left early this week for an unannounced destination.

Frankfurter's Use of Phrase Questioned

Fr. Walsh Holds Justice Was 'Confusing' In Tax Decision

The scholarship and motives of Associate Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter who used to be a professor of law at Harvard University, were questioned last night by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University, in a lecture at Memorial Continental Hall. He charged the justice with being "confusing" in remarks made in concurring with the court's majority opinion in the recently decided New York tax case.

Father Walsh recalled that Justice Frankfurter referred to John Marshall's phrase, "The power to tax involves the power to destroy," as "an unfortunate remark . . . treated as though it were a constitutional mandate . . . a seductive cliche . . . a flourish of rhetoric."

Then Father Walsh went on with a mass of documentary reference intended to prove that the phrase neither originated with Marshall or in the case Justice Frankfurter was discussing—the celebrated McCulloch vs. Maryland.

Holds Phrase Repeated

Walsh held that the dictum was merely repeated by Marshall. "It was first cited," he said, "in the speech of Daniel Webster who argued the case for the Federal Government."

"Mr. Frankfurter, of course, knows better than to make John Marshall the author of the quoted phrase," Walsh said. "Nor does he do so explicitly. Yet his language is such that busy readers will so conclude . . . lay minds are very liable to be misled by the high authority attaching to a justice of the supreme court delivering a formal opinion from the bench." Father Walsh added:

In view of the decision which conceded the right of the State of New York to tax the salary of a Federal employe, Father Walsh forecast that the "fate of tax exempt securities . . . will doubtless soon be re-examined."

Cites Evidence

He held that "complete renunciation of reciprocal immunity might easily lead to grave political consequences beyond the needs of present budgets and beyond the intent of administrators."

Father Walsh cited the experience of provincials of the Roman Empire with Roman tax collectors, the trials of the French taxpayer during the reign of Louis XIV and the revolt against the stamp tax in Virginia as historical evidence supporting his viewpoint.

Put All Colonies Under League, Nations Urged

Catholics in Peace Session Hear Cavin, AAA Economist

Extension of the League of Nations mandate system to all colonies and consideration of Germany's claim for the return of her colonies were proposed yesterday by James Cavin, Agricultural Adjustment Administration economist, at the morning session of the Catholic Association for International Peace conference in the Mayflower Hotel.

Consideration of economic problems should be the principal task of a world conference on international difficulties, such as proposed by the association Monday, Cavin declared.

Calling current discouragement over the failure of the League of Nations and other peace efforts "premature," Miss Marie J. Carroll, of the World Peace Foundation, Boston, urged the establishment of an international police force.

The Rev. James M. Eagan, of Catholic University, and the Rev. Joseph P. Donovan, of Kenrick Seminary, Webster Groves, Mo., discussed the organization of the world on the basis of an international bill of rights at the afternoon session. Other speakers were Josef Solterer, of Georgetown University; Elizabeth Lynskey, Hunter College, New York, and Elbert L. Munzer, Westport, Conn., who discussed Dr. Cavin's speech; John Meng, Queens College, Flushing, N. Y.; John J. O'Connor, St. John's University, Brooklyn; Regina T. Clark, Department of Justice, Philadelphia, and Camden R. McAtee, Washington, who discussed Miss Carroll's speech. The panel at the afternoon session included Miriam T. Rooney, Washington; the Rev. John J. Burke, S. J., Boston College; Michael Francis Doyle, Philadelphia; and Sister Rose de Lima, College of St. Elizabeth, N. J.

Officers elected yesterday were Dr. John L. McMahon, Catholic University, president, and the following vice presidents: the Most Rev. Robert E. Lucey, D. D., Bishop of Amarillo, Tex.; the Rev. Charles C. Miltner, C. S. C., Notre Dame University; the Rev. Mother Mary Lawrence, dean of Rosemont College, Rosemont, Pa.; Dr. James M. Eagan, New Rochelle College, N. Y., and Miss Mary Lee Evans, Milton, Mass. Sister Mary Borromeo, dean of Immaculata College, Washington, was elected treasurer.

Maori tribesmen of New Zealand who weep when they meet their friends or relatives and smile on parting prove "how many so-called traits of human nature merely result from environment," Dr. Regina Flannery Herzfeld, of the Catholic University faculty, yesterday told 60 delegates to the Catholic Anthropological Conference.

At another conference session Dr. John M. Cooper, professor of anthropology, declared, "No one could be exposed to anthropology for any length of time without losing all race prejudice."

Other speakers at the one-day conference were Dr. Martin R. P. McGuire, of Catholic University, and Dr. Julius Lips, of Howard University.

The Rev. Francis Lebuffe, S. J., of New York City, was elected president of the conference; the Rev. Berard Haile, of Gallup, N. M., vice president, and Dr. Cooper secretary-treasurer.

Record Crowd Of 50,000 Visits White House

The White House was jammed yesterday by a record crowd of Easter holiday visitors, estimated at 50,000, of whom 5,400 had letters from Congressmen.

The crowd, which attendants said was the largest ever to go through the White House in one day, consisted largely of boys and girls from high schols. The White House was closed Monday because of the egg-rolling on the lawn.

1900 Auto Roars Here, for Sale To Smithsonian

John H. Ozmun, a former automobile salesman with a red walrus mustache, rolled into Alexandria, Va., yesterday after driving 4,100 miles in an automobile that was new around 1900.

OZMUN

He parked and came to Washington to make arrangements for introduction of his perambulating museum piece to Carl Mitman, who, as head curator of its department of engineering and industries, has charge of the horseless carriage section of the Smithsonian Institution.

The meeting is to take place at 11:15 a. m. Monday, and this may entail some bickering on both sides inasmuch as Smithsonian records indicate Ozmun's machine, a Holsman, to be at least two years older than he says it is (1900). Furthermore, whereas Ozmun claims his car to be "the oldest two-cylinder job in the world," the Smithsonian has a two-cylinder piece it believes to be at least a year older.

2 Refugees Join Faculty At Howard

Dr. Berliner and Dr. Abrahamson Named by Trustees

Two Nazi refugees were appointed yesterday to the faculty of Howard University by the board of trustees at its annual meeting.

Both distinguished scholars, the appointees are Dr. Seigfried Berliner, University of Goettingen, who will be a lecturing professor in the department of commerce and finance; and Dr. Ernest L. Abrahamson, University of Prague, who will be an instructor in Latin and Romance languages.

The board granted a year's leave of absence to Prof. Ralph J. Bunche, head of the department of political science, so that he can join a Carnegie project during 1939-40. Morris A. Raines, associate professor of botany, was promoted to a full professor; George M. Lightfoot, professor of Latin, was retired with rating of professor emeritus, as of June 30.

In the school of law, Leon A. Ransom, associate professor, was raised to professor; Bernard S. Jefferson and James M. Nambritt, assistant professors, to associate professors.

After consideration of appeals by the Teachers' Union that it revoke its action in letting out Dr. Henry A. Callis, of the college medicine now on a year's leave of absence, the board reaffirmed the dismissal.

An appropriation was made for development of a university social work curriculum, and for research and publication at the graduate school. The board authorized holding of a conference on Negro life at Howard University during the coming year, and the appointment of a university field agency to stimulate interest in the university activities.

The following trustees were re-elected for three-year terms: Dr. Louse C. Ball, New York; Dr. George W. Coleman, Boston; George W. Crawford, New Haven; Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, Washington; Dr. Charles H. Garvin, Cleveland; Dr. John R. Hawkins, Washington; Dr. Guy B. Johnson, Chapel Hill, N. C. W. Justin Carter was elected to the board for three years as alumni trustee.

General Lighting Better for Eyes, Specialist Says

General lighting of a room is easier on the eyes than bright illumination which is focused on the work at hand—reading, writing, sewing, etc—a prominent ophthalmologist yesterday told the annual postgraduate class at George Washington University School of Medicine.

According to Dr. Walter B. Lancaster, of Boston, while it may seem more satisfactory to work under a bridge or table lamp in an otherwise darkened room, it is far safer to rely solely on diffused illumination, provided it is strong enough.

Other speakers were Drs. S. Judd Beach, of Portland, Me., and Georgiana Dvorak Theobald, of Oak Park, Ill. The course will continue through Saturday.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Nicholas Longworth Foundation in the Library of Congress presents a program of chamber music by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart in Coolidge Auditorium Tuesday afternoon. Players: Roman Totenberg, violin; William Primrose, viola; George Robert, piano. Program: Sonata for violin and piano in E flat major, Duo for violin and viola in G major, Sonata for violin and piano in B flat major, Trio for violin, viola and piano in E flat major.

Coolidge Auditorium held an invited audience yesterday afternoon at the annual memorial concert of the Nicholas Longworth Foundation in the Library of Congress. An enjoyable program of chamber music compositions by Mozart was played by Roman Totenberg, William Primrose and George Robert, and, as is the custom on these occasions, the violin used by Mr. Totenberg was the Stradivari owned and used for many years by Nicholas Longworth.

Chronological order was preserved in the presentation of the works selected for performance. The E flat major sonata for violin and piano (1778) was followed by the G major duet for violin and viola (1783), the B flat major sonata for violin and piano (1784) and the E flat major trio for violin, viola and piano (1786). Of them all the most delightful was the trio, which was written the same year as the familiar string quartet in D major.

Although it is difficult to explain why, concerts devoted to the music of a single composer have a feeling of intimacy which is never experienced while listening to a miscellaneous program. Perhaps one reason is the continuity of idiom—the unbroken interchange between the mind of the musicians and the receptive intelligence of the auditor. The conversation, if one may call it that, is not interrupted by another voice breaking in with irrelevant remarks.

Mozart is always particularly charming when he has his own way and the listener is not distracted from his engaging manner. Then his adroitness, wit and graceful phrasing make him a fascinating companion, never at a loss for the right word in the right place and never tiresome because of his quick mind and his sparkling expression.

Rail Chief Backs Broad Regulation

By the Associated Press.

J. M. Hood, president of the Shortline Railroad Association, indorsed yesterday a proposal to extend the Interstate Commerce Commission's jurisdiction to all forms of transportation.

Testifying for the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, he characterized the proposal, offered by Senators Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, and Truman (Democrat), Missouri, as going "a long way" toward "equalization of opportunity" for the railroads in competition with other forms of transportation.

Indigent and near-indigent cancer patients will have nine hospital clinics at their disposal during this month, Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer, announced yesterday.

Cafe's Liquor License Revoked

The Commissioners yesterday upheld an Alcoholic Beverage Control Board ruling revoking the liquor license of Chris Pappas, owner of a restaurant in the 1200 block of Wisconsin avenue northwest.

His license was revoked last week following conviction in Police Court on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. The board found him guilty of serving an alcoholic beverage while himself intoxicated.

Mrs. Lauer Gets $2,500 Fine, 3 Months in Jail for Smuggling

U. S. Judge Scolds Justice's Wife For 'Insane Vanity;' Chapereau Draws $5,000, 5-Year Penalty

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 11.—Mrs. Edgar J. Lauer, 58, wife of a State Supreme Court justice, today was fined $2,500 and sentenced to three months in jail for conspiring with Albert N. Chaperau, an international adventurer, to smuggle about $1,833 worth of Parisian clothing into this country on her behalf to save $660 in duty. Chaperau drew a five-year prison term and $5,000 fine.

For acting as a Government informant against them in a disclosure that also eventually entangled comedians George Burns and Jack Benny, Rosa Weber, a pro-Nazi maid discharged by the Lauers for interrupting a dinner conversation to defend Adolf Hitler, will profit by several thousand dollars.

Mrs. Lauer Scolded

The relatively severe penalty against Chaperau, who has a police record in two continents, was explained in part by the fact that he was accused of having persuaded Benny, Burns and Mrs. Lauer in turn to fall in with his scheme to beat the customs by the pretense of diplomatic immunity.

Mrs. Lauer, who was fined $10,400 in 1937 for smuggling, thus had a previous record; Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell gave her a tongue-lashing for her "constant breaches of the customs law."

"Insane Vanity" Cited

"Madam," he said staring down at her, "you have suffered from an insane vanity. . . . In considering your physical condition, your age and your sex, I am led to the conclusion that any jail sentence imposed should be comparatively short, but I must impose a jail sentence because a heavy fine has seemed to have no effect.

"You are a prominent woman, the wife of a prominent man, and the public in general expects the same justice to be administered to the rich and the poor, the great and the lowly."

She was sent to the Women's House of Detention to begin serving her sentence immediately.

Gavin Whitehead, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Jr Whitehead, 1708 Seventeenth street southeast, sustained a fractured left thigh when a pile of lumber, on which he was playing at Seventeenth street and Minnesota avenue southeast, collapsed and pinned him to the ground.

GAVIN WHITEHEAD

Rescued by Ben Franklin, of 1734 Ridge road southeast, and Albert Erickson, 1667 Good Hope road southeast, who were attracted to the scene by his cries, the boy was treated at Emergency Hospital for his injuries.

Hospital physicians said his thigh had been fractured just above the knee and declared an operation might be necessary to relieve pressure on the arteries of his leg.

Congress Prepares To Rush Emergency Program Legislation

Defense

$27,000,000 for the Panama Canal, were authorized by the Army expansion act signed by the President April 3.

Other developments were:

The House leadership agreed to take up three naval bills tomorrow, as special rules were voted by the Rules Committee for consideration of a $41,000,000 Navy shore construction measure, a $5,000,000 submarine modernization bill, and legislation permitting the acquisition of oil tankers from the Maritime Commission.

Acting Secretary of War Louis Johnson asked Congress to authorize United States participation in the construction of a military highway across the Republic of Panama to enable troops to be speedily shifted from one end of the canal to another in case of emergency. The highway, to cost the United States $1,500,000, would connect with the leased flying field at Rio Hato, Panama, it was said.

The Navy attempted to launch another unit of its growing U-boat fleet at Groton, Conn., as Mrs. James O. Richardson, wife of the chief of the Bureau of Navigation, Rear Admiral Richardson, chistened the submarine Sea Dragon. But the craft moved only 3 feet and got stuck on the ways. A watching crowd left. Workmen will attempt to complete the launching today.

Fleet at Norfolk

The main body of the United States Fleet steams through the Virginia Capes this morning for a two-week visit at Norfolk. For most of the officers and men of the Fleet this will be the first shore leave in an American mainland port since they left southern California about the first of the year.

The contemplated $317,500,000 resolution for defense appropriations which Chairman Snyder plans to introduce next week, will complete the Army phase of the $552,000,000 emergency defense program proposed by President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress January 12. Part of the measure will be in direct appropriations and part in contract authorizations, Chairman Snyder said. The $250,000,000 proposed for the Air Corps will provide new bases, pilots, mechanics, bombs and spare parts as well as nearly 3,000 first-line airplanes. Under the expansion act the Air Corps will attain a maximum of 6,000 planes in two years.

Reich to Increase Submarines to 99 by June, 1940

Rome, April 11.—First details of Germany's new submarine program, published in the official organ of the Italian ministry of marine today, reveal that 28 underwater vessels are planned for the period from June, 1939, to June, 1940.

Germany's submarine fleet next year thus would increase from its present strength of 71 boats to 99.

This naval yearbook also reveals that the tonnage of the newest German battleships will be 40,000 tons.

Mediterranean Defenses of Great Britain, France and Italy

The rich Mediterranean region, cradle of civilization, has been a great prize of war since the days of Carthage. Today three nations have loaded it with naval, military and air bases (located on map) to protect the rich plums they picked there. The Italy of today threatens these defenses. will confine themselves to a general warning against further aggression. Yet the force of British opinion may compel something more specific.—Editor's note.]

The cabinet foreign affairs committee met in a two-hour session this afternoon and was said to have discussed this idea. The King came to London afterward.

A reliable source said Italy had promised that after a nationalist victory parade in Madrid she would withdraw from Spain the troops which supported the Nationalists in the civil war. May 2 has been reported as a possible date for the parade.

In a day of intense diplomatic activity, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax saw the Soviet Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, at the foreign office. Maisky supported the proposal of a broad anti-aggression pact and indicated Russia's willingness to cooperate provided it is broad enough.

It was believed, however, Russia would refuse to co-operate in any attempt to resurrect a policy of appeasement toward Rome.

Though Britain was expediting her rearmament program and tightening her home defenses, she was making no provocative moves. All British warships were believed tonight to be well away from Greek waters. They were concentrating at the British Mediterranean Island of Malta, where they would be ready for any eventuality.

Plot to Kill Hitler Reported Blocked

London (Wednesday), April 12 (U.P.).—The Daily Mirror said today that several Czechs planned to assassinate Reichsfuehrer Hitler at Wilhelmshaven last month, but German secret police frustrated the plot by arresting six armed Czechs.

The information came from a Dutch newspaperman who witnessed the arrests. The six were said to have confessed.

Germany's Economy Is Meager But Stable, Asserts Miller, U. S. Commercial Attache

Although the German economy is bankrupt, "collapsed" and poverty-stricken by the standards of democratic nation., it is stable and can endure "for many years," according to Douglas Miller, recently recalled United States commercial attache in Berlin. He said yesterday that although the Germans probably faced a further decline in their already low living standards, expectation of a collapse of their economy was "merely wishful thinking."

At the same time, Edward B. Lawson, commercial attache recently back from Prague, where his post was abandoned after the Nazi capture of Szecho-Slovakia, said that acquisition of the rich Czech farm lands and their industrious population represented an advantage to the Germans.

Miller, who occupied the Berlin post for 15 years, termed as "surprisingly satisfactory" the compensation in terms of rearmament, participation in great national enterprises and political aspirations. It makes up to the Germans for their individual poverty, he said, and renders useless all judgments of Germany from democratic standards.

Miller said that the acquisition of the Czech nation "rounded out" the German economy, previously heavily deficient in foodstuffs.

German wage standards may be gauged from the payment of a $10 weekly wage to persons on the highway and fortification "made-work" projects, Miller said. The purchasing power actually is less than $10, he added, with good meat costing $1 a pound, ham and bacon $1.50, coffee $1.25, butter 65 cents, apples 40 cents and sugar 15 cents a pound.

A recent shortage of onions, he noted, was attributed by the press to "an international Jewish hoarding plot." The people, however, believed it was due to the fabrication of "onion" poison gas.

In Prague, Lawson said, the people took at face value the Munich pact guarantees and had no intimation of the further total acquisition of their country. He noted, however, that within three months after the September crisis French interests in the great Skoda munitions works were sold out.

By European standards, the Czech living conditions were high, Lawson declared.

Miller said Germany was using whale oil as a lard substitute, and grain products for coffee "Ersatz." A visitor, however, stopping at fashionable hotels, would never mark the shortage, he stated, noting that at Berlin's Adlon Hotel "luxury" dishes—venison, partridge and pheasant were on the menu.

Miller explained the "complete regimentation" of German economy as the result of a vicious circle following the first step—restriction of capital movements on the frontier.

"Once foreign exchange is restricted and capital exports forbidden, the people take to sending goods abroad, hoping to realize on sales outside of Germany. This necessitates government control of exports, he explained.

"Next, with limited exports, foreign credits tightens and imports diminish. To meet the problem the government must next regulate imports. Then, when certain goods are scarce, the price rises and, to prevent profiteering, the government regulates prices on imported goods. Control of prices on all products is an easy next step.

"Production and wage control must follow price control. Later . . . there must be employment control, so that now no German factory worker may leave his job to take another without express governmental permission."

Britain Transfers Troops to Egypt

London, April 11 (INS).—Part of Italy's troops in Libya were reported tonight to have been moved from the Tunisian frontier to points on the border of Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

At the same time the British high command ordered three battalions from Palestine to Egypt.

As a result of the threatening international situation, it was also strongly reported British officials are in the midst of a new attempt to expedite the solution of the Arab-Jewish problem in Palestine.

Holland Avows Her Neutrality

The Hague, April 11 (INS).—Amid spreading rumors that German troops are on the march near the Netherlands frontier, Premier Colijn today proclaimed his Nation's determination to remain neutral should Europe be engulfed in war.

In an empire-wide radio broadcast, Colijn declared the desire to remain neutral "in all circumstances" was the sole reason for the government's action in calling up frontier battalions during the night.

"There is no reason whatever for uneasiness," he declared.

French Fleet Sails Secretly To Aid British

Newspapers Asked Not To Print News; Paris Worried Over Morocco

By the United Press.

Paris, April 11.—The French Mediterranean fleet sailed just before midnight from Toulon on a Mediterranean assignment in connection with Franco-British precautionary measures.

No details were available and French newspapers were asked not to mention that the fleet had sailed. It was certain, however, that the fleet movement was in co-operation with British Mediterranean units. The naval general staffs months ago assigned positions to be taken by warships of the two fleets in case of emergency and British warships were on the move in the Mediterranean least night and today.

Morocco Threatened

At the same time Paris received information that Spanish Morocco frontiers facing French Morocco were being heavily fortified. This was especially alarming in view of doubt concerning Spain's position in case war breaks out in the Mediterranean.

The French foreign office also received reports of new landings of Italian troops in Spain.

Army and navy leaves were cancelled and a number of naval specialists were called up.

The cabinet heard a report by Marshal Petain, Ambassador to Burgos, on Spain, whose position has become increasingly important in view of the Mediterranean crisis.

The foreign office received diplomatic messages which indicated that Italian military preparations were extensive but that reports of German troop movements appeared exaggerated. They said nervousness in the Balkans was growing, particularly in Yugoslavia.

Foreign Minister Bonnet continued efforts, with the British, to swing Russia into an agreement to aid Balkan countries in event of further aggression there, conferring with the Soviet Ambassador this morning. Bonnet also received the Rumanian foreign office secretary-general and United States Ambassador Bullitt.

War Measures Ready

Paris, April 11 (AP).—The government today adopted extraordinary defense measures and special decrees to make them effective will be presented to President Lebrun for signature tomorrow.

The measures were characterized as "strong and sure," but details remained a secret. Premier Daladier was believed to have acted to bolster land and sea forces and to prepare the navy to co-operate fully with the British navy on any steps taken in the Mediterranean.

It was disclosed semiofficially that the military measures decided on by defense experts Sunday already were being carried out.

Secret Mobilization Seen

The Fournier News Agency said the cabinet did not discuss calling up reservists by the usual means of public posters.

It was understood the cabinet approved extending to Greece the same guarantees reported being advanced by Britain—to aid Greece in event she were attacked.

In informed quarters it was believed the decrees might include secret mobilization of army, navy and air force units. No official figures on France's armed strength were available, but estimates placed it at well over 1,000,000 men.

Army Airmen Escape With Lives as Bomber Crashes

Roosevelt Applauds The Post's Editorial On Foreign Policy as Good, Clear, Honest

Editorial

whether or not the United States was at the outset physically involved," it added.

Speaking of the way to avert war, the editorial asserted:

"Pressure from the Berlin-Rome axis will not ease until it reaches the point of serious resistance. Then only can a different and honestly conciliatory attitude be expected from the dictators. Nothing less than the show of preponderant force will stop them, for force is the only language which they understand. But, like less exalted bullies, force is to them a real deterrent."

By using the word "we," the editorial said, "the President told Hitler and Mussolini, far more impressively than he told Warm Springs, that the tremendous force of the United States must be a factor in their current thinking. He told the axis powers that the Administration is far from indifferent to their plottings. He made it plain that a war forced by them would from the outset involve the destinies of a nation which, as they fully realize, is potentially far stronger than Germany and Italy united."

To make that plain at this crucial time, the editorial pointed out, is to help in preventing war. "To make the dictators realize that there is a limit to unresisted aggression is in itself to set that limit. It is on that incontrovertible reasoning that the French have stiffened their policy. It is on that reasoning that the British are laying down a deadline. It is on that reasoning, through the application of which peace can still be saved, that President Roosevelt properly links the United States with the eleventh-hour effort to avert a shattering disaster."

The President had previously refused at his press conference to comment on the European situation. His only remarks on foreign affairs were confined to approving the project, announced Monday by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, for exchanging American surplus cotton and wheat for strategic war materials of other countries.

When a correspondent insisted on inquiring whether the Chief Executive had absolutely nothing to say on the foreign situation, Mr. Roosevelt promptly made the editorial his own opinion.

MERCHANTS & MINERS LINE

Italy Arms Million Men; Greece Warned

Athens Is Told Not To Permit Britain To Use Her Ports

By the Associated Press.

Rome, April 11.—Foreign observers placed at 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 the number of Italians under arms tonight and, after assuring Greece her integrity was safe, the government indicated this "imposing level" was sufficient to cope with the troubled world.

A communique announced that the classes of men born in 1901 and 1912 had been called to military duty and that no more would be summoned "save under exceptional circumstances."

Two Classes Called

The classes of 1917 and 1918 and small groups of the class of 1919 previously were under arms. Specialists of other classes were recalled, including some men of over 60 for air-raid defense in cities.

The assurances to Greece were given in a note presented to the Greek government by the Italian Charge d'Affaires at Athens.

With the assurances, however, the Fascist press warned Greece against joining the British-sponsored anti-aggression alliance and against permitting the use of Greek ports for British naval operations.

[Meanwhile, well-informed Italian circles were reported by the International News service as regarding a swift attack on Greece as an imminent possibility.]

[Official circles did not deny reports that two crack Alpine divisions had been dispatched to Spain, presumably for service on the Pyrenees frontier, facing France.—Editor's note.]

The press asserted that certain powers might find before long that the Mediterranean is no longer safe for navies if they offend Italy.

More than 200 navy vessels were at Italian ports or participating in the Albanian operation, and Premier Mussolini had an air force of 3,500 at his disposal.

Officials of the Greek legation said that Greece expected assurances of British support of her independence when the British Parliament meets on Thursday, but that Greece had no idea of permitting British warships to use the Island of Corfu or any other part of her territory as a naval base and that, therefore, the Italian warning was unnecessary.

Newspapers generally charged that Britain and France seized upon Albanian events to line up the Balkan states against Germany and Italy.

A Turin newspaper, La Gazzetta del Popolo, reported meanwhile that Spanish Gen. Franco's army of 1,000,000 men, "of whom half are falangistas (Spanish Fascists)," would remain under arms another year. Nothing was said about withdrawal from Spain of Italian troops, whose presence on Spanish soil caused concern in London and Paris.

SPECIAL! EVELYN CHANDLER, AMERICA'S CHAMPION FIGURE SKATER, WILL BRING HER "ICE SHOW" TO THE SHOREHAM ON THE WEEK OF APRIL 24.

PEGGY INTO MOVIES? Peggy Townsend, "Cherry Blossom Queen" and singer at the Cafe Caprice, is soon to have a screen test. We already know that she photographs like a million. Maybe there's no connection and maybe, again—but Hollywood's Bruce Cabot didn't miss a single eve in Cafe Caprice last week. Still, Count Oleg Cassini never misses any night in Caprice in any week.

FISHERMAN'S PRIZE: The proprietors of the new Neptune Room, the Freres Lurba, will give an impressive loving cup to the angler who hooks the biggest fish in the waters of the Potomac, Patuxent or Chesapeake this season. The cup now stands at the Neptune Room entrance.

NORMANDY GOES CUBAN: Normandy Farms will seem like a Havana night club tomorrow evening. Rene Valle's rumba-tango orchestra will play Latin-American dance music. Dancing Teacher Mrs. Ethel Fistere and her staff will both demonstrate and teach the rumba and tango, and all guests will be invited to step out on the floor and join the dancing class. A great chance to learn how to do the rumba and tango as they should be done. Normandy Farms' owner-manager, Marjory Hendricks, tells us that a Cuban menu will be served.

SOCIETY CHOICES: From Dick Koons (Mayflower Lounge) we hear that Eleanor Meem's pet tune is "How Strange," that Mrs. W. D. Thomas (Helen Marye) always asks for "Driftwood," that John D. Buchanan, of Warrenton, prefers "They Say," and lovely Ruth Dove requests "Between a Kiss and a Sigh."

BLUE ROOM SCENE: Dorothy Stone tells us that Daddy Fred Stone has just gone back to Hollywood to make a historical picture . . . Bob Flinch's marionettes jig comically . . . Bill Brady sings "The Masquerade Is Over," with "Pagliacci" interpolations . . . Charles Collins (Dorothy Stone's husband and dancing partner) steps out in a grand eccentric dance, reminiscent of his father-in-law . . . Then both Dorothy and Charles do the quaintly funny "Penguins" and a marvelous dramatic dance inspired by the air raid scene in "Idiots' Delight" . . . Manager Gardner Moore comes along and says "Earl Carroll's just arrived and is coming down" . . . Along comes Mr. Carroll looking no end ministerial, says he's on his way to help pick out the queen of the Charleston, S. C., azalea festival. The candidates will parade in evening dresses, not bathing suits, Mr. Carroll tells us with the shadow of a sigh.

MENUS AND WINE LISTS: Biggest wine list in town is that of Raleigh's Pall Mall Room. It's bigger than a tabloid newspaper and a hundred times prettier. The cover's decorated with surrealistic portraits of Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh discussing a glass of burgundy.

Madrillon is original in having a separate menu for desserts and cordials. It's done in delicate pale greens.

The wine list of Mayfair (Cafe of All Nations) is in smart, suede-finish black with a map of the world on either side. The menu cover shows a photomontage of scenes and folks from all over the globe.

Troika's menu is big, dashing and scarlet with a Diaghileff-style troika on the cover. The wine list is part of the menu.

Hour Glass' menu is a symphony in pale, azure and marine blues, the last used for the printing. Little Mr. Hour Glass' picture appears all over it, both inside and outside.

PASO DOBLE: That entrancing and too seldom seen Latin-American dance, the paso doble, is being executed beautifully by Theodore and Denicia at the Lotus. This pair possess that intangible perfection of rhythm that stamps really fine dancers. Don and Lee Dare produce a rabbit out of a cocktail shakes, a guinea pig from nowhere. The Allis dancers do a frolicking can can.

Special bulletin: Manager Dick Lamm tells us that one of those big and bouncing Lindsay Revues will be offered at Lotus next week.

SPOT ITEMS: Matt Windsor (Anchor Room) has written the music of a new song, is now wrestling with the lyrics. This one's a lovey-dovey waltz number. He's thinking of calling it "Anchored Firm."

The fourth birthday of pretty little Joan Benson, daughter of Jack Benson (Shar-Zad's saxophonist) and Mrs. Benson, fell on Easter Monday. So Joan had that rare treat, an Easter-birthday party.

Lovely Mary Meacham of the golden curls had a serious rival at the Lounge Riviera the other evening. It was her mother, Mrs. Eugene Meacham, who's also blonde and looks almost as young as Mary.

That volunteer singer of "Ragtime Cowboy Joe" at Metronome the other eve was "Tex" Walker, singing cowboy of the stage and radio, in town to sing at the Neptune Room's celebrity party.

CONGO DANCE: When Bamboo Gardens' new Drucettes do the "Lambeth Walk," they're cute. When they go in for modernistic stepping, they're charming. But when they launch into "Congo,"—they're a panic and a riot. In fact, they're almost colossal. Rita and La Chard do a "swirl" dance that's more like a pinwheel. Billy d'Armond balances a cane on the tip of his cigar, juggles a big collection of kitchenware. A fine and fancy show.

SURPRISING FOLKS: Herbie Holmes (coming to Glen Echo on Saturday). His music entranced Echo's jitterbugs so much last year that they stopped dancing and just stood and listened.

Capt. Don Dickerman (Pirates' Den). He had the nerve to persuade the late Mayor John F. Hylan of New York to sign an official pardon for Capt. Kidd. The pardon now hangs in the Pirates' Den.

Manager Oscar Altman, of the Hi Hat. He's been in the hotel and restaurant business since he was 10 years old, starting out as a page in a Vienna hotel in the glamorous prewar days.

Milton Davis (Rainbow Room). When he isn't playing the novachord, he's playing golf, or serving on a jury. He actually likes jury service, never tries to avoid it.

Felian Garzia. He writes most of those amusing French-English skits presented at the Montmartre Noctambule.

"Let's get Better Acquainted!"

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad wants to get better acquainted with Coach Passengers who travel to New York frequently—and those who expect to visit the New York World's Fair.

Strangely, there are folks in Washington who never have ridden to New York on the B & O. Naturally, they aren't acquainted with its exceptional service. Neither are they familiar with B & O's more convenient way of entering and leaving New York.

Consider, for example...

B & O's Diesel-Powered Streamliners "The Royal Blue" and "The Columbian". The perfect train ride—smooth and quiet. Individual Reclining Coach Chairs—roomy and comfortable—are reserved for you free—in advance, if you like. Of course, both trains are completely Air-Conditioned. There's a colorful Diner and Tavern-Counter, Men's and Women's Lounges, in the modern manner, with hot and cold water and free soap and towels.

When you step from the train...

You board a waiting B & O Motor Coach and ride (with your bags) directly to any of 17 places in New York and Brooklyn, including many leading hotels, at no additional charge! No tips. No stairways. No long walks. No traffic worries. And, en route, you have an inspiring view of New York's magnificent skyline. If you carry luggage, you needn't touch it from the time you board the train! It's delivered to you at your coach destination.

Remember these things, the next time you are going to New York. Use the B & O. Compare its advantages—especially for Coach Passengers. In addition to the two Streamliners, there are other fast B & O trains to Philadelphia and New York, at convenient hours.

Your request for information will be courteously answered by telephoning District 3300—National 7370

3 From House Urge Neutrality Act Abolition

Statute Declared 'Brutally Unneutral' And a 'Farce'

By the Associated Press.

Three House members yesterday advocated abolition of the neutrality act, contending at a hearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the statute was "brutally unneutral," and a "farce."

The proposals came from two Republicans, Wadsworth of New York, and Maas, of Minnesota, and a Democrat, Faddis, of Pennsylvania. At the same time Representative Fish (Republican), New York, urged retention of almost the entire act.

These views were expressed as the committee began consideration of proposed changes in the act, intended to keep America out of war by forbidding sales of arms to belligerent nations. At issue fundamentally was the question whether the President should be given greater discretion than the law now permits, and power to name and boycott an aggressor nation.

At the same time, Acting Chairman Bloom (Democrat), of New York, said he expected that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, now on the Atlantic en route to the United States, would appear before the committee. Bloom said Lindbergh had responded to a request that he appear.

Formation of an organization to be known as the National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars was announced by Fish, who said it would be incorporated by a group of members and former members of the House of Representatives.

Fish said the main purpose was "providing a national nonpartisan and nonsectarian organization through which the American people can express their determination to keep out of foreign wars, maintain the American policy of nonintervention, and counteract the inspired propaganda emanating from the White House and spokesman of the New Deal which has created mass war hysteria throughout the Nation."

Irish Bombings Feared in Canada

Winnipeg, April 11 (Canadian Press).—The Winnipeg Free Press today said precautions had been taken to guard Manitoba public buildings in fear of Irish Republican Army sabotage, but Attorney General W. J. Major denied knowledge of such special steps.

The newspaper Leader Post, of Regina, Saskatchewan, said armed Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers were placed on duty at Regina public buildings last night. The mounted police declined comment.

Parkers' Conviction In Abduction Upheld

Philadelphia, April 11 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld today the conviction of Ellis H. Parker, former Burlington County (N. J.) detective, and his son, Ellis, jr., on charges of conspiracy to abduct Paul J. Wendel, former Trenton (N. J.) attorney, and force a confession in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

consular agent at Salonika, Greece, was reported, but was unconfirmed.

That Italian control of Albania was not complete was indicated in strongly authoritative reports that natives in the mountain hinterlands were fiercely resisting Blackshirt detachments. Italians in Tirana, the Associated Press said, admitted guerrilla fighting continued.

Poland tonight announced it was calling to the colors "a number of reservists" belonging to six classes between 1912 and 1917, International News Service said.

(According to dispatches from Warsaw in the last two days, Polish Ambassador Lipski was called to the German foreign office in Berlin by Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and asked to transmit an official German request for demobilization of an army said now to be swollen to more than 1,200,000 men.

The London Daily Telegraph reported from Berlin that Germany had made five new demands on Poland, including one for territory. The report was unconfirmed.

Dr. Viorel Tilea, Rumanian ambassador to London, has repeatedly impressed upon British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax what he described as Rumania's extremely dangerous situation, the United Press reported.

The latest information he conveyed to the foreign office stated that 300,000 Hungarian troops are assembled on Rumania's Transylvanian frontier while 100,000 Bulgarian soldiers are massed on the Dobrudja (southern) border.

Today, he was said to have threatened that unless Britain extends full-fledged military guarantees immediately, Rumania may be forced to seek the protection of Germany and Italy. Rumania's two neighbors both lost territory to her at the end of the World War and long have clamored for recompense.

However, the Rumanian foreign office mouthpiece, Seara, in giving the first authoritative reports of the Rumanian-Turkish agreement regarding use of the Dardanelles by Rumania's allies, declared the two nations were ready to defend their independence with all their might, according to the Associated Press.

He said the friendship between Rumania and Turkey gave dynamic force to the Balkan entente, which includes, besides these two nations, Greece and Yugoslavia.

The entente, which might be the basis of the British-French coalition insofar as southeastern Europe is concerned, has in recent months been making friendly gestures to Bulgaria, which lies surrounded by the four entente nations. Although unwilling to return Bulgaria's war-lost territories, the entente within the last years removed treaty restrictions on Bulgarian rearmament.

Rumania's Black Sea partner, Turkey, likewise today placed great pressure on Britain for a pledge of military aid, the International News Service reported.

Turkish diplomats claimed that Thursday, the day Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to proclaim a series of defensive alliances with Balkan nations, may be too late.

"The situation never was more serious, and Turkey feels she is definitely menaced," according to a source close to the Turkish embassy in London. It was said Turkey has already presented definite proposals to the British foreign office, and is awaiting a reply.

Reports by the United Press that Italy might have as high as 95,000 troops in the Dodecanese Islands, lying between Turkey and Greece, lent strength to Turkey's fears.

In addition, outbreak of any war concerning Mediterranean powers probably would involve a struggle for control of the Dardanelles, where Britain paid so heavily in 1915, if not endangered for any other reason, Turkey has good cause to fear that the axis powers might attempt to close the straits, particularly if Soviet Russia or Rumania should be involved.

Despite indications of possible Yugoslavian adherence to the "stop Hitler" move evidenced in the reported troop concentration in the provinces adjacent to Albania, French sources said democratic diplomats in Belgrade were discouraged.

The attitude of the Yugoslav capital, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Paris, was one of "suspicion" and there was a belief in Paris that Belgrade was under Italian pressure.

Reported British efforts to win Soviet Russia's adherence to the anti-aggression coalition were met with Polish and Rumanian reluctance to accept Russian aid, the Associated Press said.

France was said to be trying to soothe Polish and Rumanian fears of Communist occupation and at the same time was attempting to keep Russia from withdrawing any hope of help.

Meanwhile, Premier Mussolini's seizure of Moslem Albania seems likly to deprive him of his vaunted title, "Protector of Islam." Italy in recent years has attempted to win Arab allegiance and has agitated Arab enmity to Britain and France.

Yesterday, however, anti-Italian sentiment stirred the Moslem world and flared into widespread demonstrations of protest in French-governed Algeria. Thousands of Moslems were dispersed when they attempted to march on the Italian consulate at Oran, and huge crowds gathered in every major city of Algeria.

Zog's Queen Worse, Goes To Hospital

Geraldine Is Too Ill to See Baby Or Exiled Husband

By the Associated Press.

Larissa, Greece, April 11.—Queen Geraldine of Albania, too ill to see her infant son or exiled husband, King Zog, was removed today from a private villa to a hospital.

The condition of the 23-year-old Queen was said to be serious. She was running a high temperature as a result of her flight from the advancing Italian army on Friday, only two days after the birth of the crown prince in Tirana, Albanian capital.

Her trip was over rough, twisting Albanian mountain roads in a makeshift ambulance to the border, and then by railroad to this little industrial city.

Police warned the curious away from the railway sleeping car where Zog was staying behind drawn blinds and with a strong military guard.

The six-day old Prince Skander was said to be in good health, but Geraldine was reported growing worse from strain and shock. It had been believed she would be taken to Athens for treatment.

The other 133 Albanian refugees in this city of 40,000 were believed to be planning to go to nearby Portaria, a resort 2,000 feet above the Aegean, on Mount Pelion. Among the refugees were three sisters of Zog.

Silence Albanians in U. S., Keep in Touch With Italian Embassy, Order Tells Konitza

By Louis J. Schaefle.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

The new government in Albania has ordered its legation here to stop the flood of protests by Albanian students and residents in this country against occupation of their fatherland by Fascist Italy, the United Press learned last night from a reliable diplomatic source.

The order was issued in a telegram from Tirana, capital of the tiny Balkan state, and was signed by Mihal Sherko, who described himself as a member of the provisional administrative committee in charge of foreign affairs.

Minister Faik Konitza declined to confirm or deny the reports.

The text of the telegram to the legation follows:

"From information imparted by the Stefani (Italian news agency), as well as radio announcements and Italian newspapers we are informed that the King and the government have left Albania. A new situation has been created. Order, discipline and quiet are being restored. The new provisional government is about to be formed.

"For the present there is an acting provisional administrative committee under the chairmanship of Djafer Ypi and the following members—Zef Kadaria, for home affairs; Kosta Marku, for finance; Izedin Beshiri, for public works; Fertey Pogoni, for public education; Llambi Aleksi, for national economy and the undersigned for foreign affairs.

"Until further orders you are instructed not to make any diplomatic move. Correspond with this office only in open dispatches (not in diplomatic code) at the usual address. Wait instructions. Keep always in friendly contact with the Italian representatives. Listen regularly to the radio in Tirana. Quiet down the Albanian community and students there.

"The administrative committee instructs you to have full confidence that the Fascist government desires with all its heart to secure for Albania happiness, progress and prosperity.

(Signed) Mihal Sherko."

Paris, April 11 (AP).—The Albanian legation tonight issued a report that "violent fighting" was continuing in Albania against invading Italian troops.

"Mountain troops combined with regular army officers and gendarmes are resisting fiercely under the command of Princes Sali and Hussein, who formerly were students at the French military academy at St. Cyr," a communique said.

Mr. Amlie's Withdrawal.

Thomas R. Amlie has gained in stature by requesting that his appointment as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission be withdrawn. This act of renunciation brings to an end a prolonged controversy which threatened strained relations between the White House and the Senate. It is cause for gratification that no effort was made to force a final vote on the nomination after it became apparent that Mr. Amlie's confirmation would be bitterly opposed and probably defeated.

The hearings on his appointment, conducted by a subcommittee of the Interstate Commerce Committee, were prolonged and searching, indicating that the Senate does not regard its right to confirm a Presidential nominee as a perfunctory act. And in the course of the committee investigation it was clearly indicated that Mr. Amlie was an unacceptable candidate, not so much because of his radical political views but because those views made his appointment to the office in question highly inappropriate.

By his own admission Mr. Amlie believes that the capitalist system is destined to be superseded by some form of collectivism. Not surprisingly, therefore, he is an open advocate of government ownership of railroads. Although he has said that he would do all in his power to uphold and enforce existing laws regulating the railways, it is difficult to believe that one holding his viewpoint could be a satisfactory member of the ICC, considering the function it fills in our system of government.

Even if it were appropriate to ignore Mr. Amlie's social attitude in this connection, it would be impossible to overlook his lack of either practical experience or expert knowledge of the railroad industry. There has probably never been a time when the country stood in as great need of trained and competent administrators to provide a solution of the problems that confront the railroads. The ICC is too important a regulatory agency to be weakened by having among its members defeated candidates for political office who lack positive qualifications for the specialized duties they are called upon to assume.

Fortunately, the President now has an opportunity to select a more appropriate candidate for the post originally assigned to Mr. Amlie. And the latter, having demonstrated his caliber by voluntary withdrawal, may properly be considered for a post in which technical knowledge and a judicial viewpoint are not essential prerequisites.

Setting A Good Example

The hearings of the Senate Labor Committee on the national labor relations act will have constructive results if the cooperative attitude displayed by the first witness governs the testimony of all those still to be heard.

Senator Wagner, who opened the hearings, has justifiable pride of authorship in this legislation. It would have been understandable if, in reply to the more intemperate critics of the law, he had supported an intransigeant position regarding all proposed changes. But no good end would have been served by such stubbornness.

Instead, while defending the act as a whole, Senator Wagner showed himself ready to consider any reasonable changes. In particular, he favors granting the employer the right to petition for an election. Even aside from the fact that the split in labor ranks has made the operation of the labor relations law exceedingly difficult, there is obvious scope for fundamental improvement. The labor split has only increased the difficulties of employers. And these impediments are unnecessary to attain the purpose of the law.

Realizing this, Senator Wagner promises that if the need for such changes is established after a full and open-minded inquiry, he himself will feel it his duty to introduce or support the substance of amendments and to help enact them into law." His approach to the problem is well for the achievement of changes which will meet legitimate employer grievances without encroachment on established employe rights.

Between Peace And War

There are, as Europe teeters on the knife edge between peace and war, two enigmas, two great uncertainties, which tend to swing the balance toward the latter outcome. These imponderables are the confused policy of the United States with respect to neutrality and the negative attitude of Soviet Russia toward the British effort to build an eastern barrier against further Italo-German aggression.

For better or worse both the United States and Russia exercise a tremendous influence in world affairs. And because of their enormous strength, in the one case actual, in the other potential, this influence is exerted whether they act or fail to act in the present crisis. If the axis powers believe that Moscow and Washington are on the whole indifferent to aggression, then continued aggression becomes much more probable. For Germany and Italy have now reached the stage where Anglo-French opposition alone is not necessarily sufficient to restrain them.

Totally different in many respects, the United States and Russia are nevertheless very similar in their situation vis-a-vis the present crisis. Each of them emerged from the last war bitterly disillusioned with its results. Each is naturally strongly disinclined to engage in another conflict which, in its present phase, seems only to concern the fate of central Europe. While each of these countries is hostile to the Nazi philosophy, both are also suspicious of Great Britain and France. Each regards itself as relatively secure and is unwilling to jeopardize that security in behalf of others.

In this combination of circumstances, far more than in their own inherent strength, lies the great advantage of the axis powers. Faced with Russian and American opposition, in addition to that which Great Britain and France are now exerting, Hitler and Mussolini would be far less dangerous. By the same token they will be the more dangerous if relative indifference to their expansion is the dominant reaction in Moscow and Washington. Precisely because such indifference is unlikely to be permanent, it encourages in Berlin and Rome the natural tendency to get while the getting is good.

The axis policy of rapid and ruthless aggrandizement is now firmly established. Already the violence of its tempo has brought an end to the Anglo-French willingness to be conciliatory—to the now demonstrably unsuccessful "appeasement" effort. Appeasement has failed and resistance has been substituted for it in the planning of both London and Paris. But resistance now, unless viewed with active sympathy by Russia and the United States, may be too late. The boasts of the dictators are justified. The axis no longer fears Great Britain and France alone.

It follows that, in Hitler's deliberations, estimates of the attitude of Washington and Moscow must now be a factor of supreme importance. If he could assure himself that war would not align either Russia or the United States against him the Fuehrer's gambling instincts would probably lead him to strike soon. For at the moment Germany and Italy have the advantage of a maximum preparedness, to achieve which Great Britain and France are only beginning to bend full effort.

On the other hand, any clear intimation of either Russian or American opposition would at this stage probably stay Hitler's hand. Although a gambler, he has always been careful to assure himself of favorable odds before a plunge. And the odds for Germany would be anything but favorable if Russian resistance in the east, or a flow of American supplies to his opponents on the west, were actively foreshadowed.

That, in bald outline, is the situation as Congress wrestles with neutrality legislation and as the Russian directorate weighs its suspicions of Great Britain against its fears of German pressure to the east.

It is not easy for either Washington or Moscow to view the picture as a whole, to act from the viewpoint of long-range interest rather than from that of immediate domestic considerations. Yet a perspective on the problem is of vital importance in both these very different capitals. For the freedom of decision which is now the prerogative of America and Russia is not necessarily permament. With the destruction of Poland it would disappear for Russia. With a defeat of France and Great Britain this country would face a very different and far less agreeable future.

Incredible though it may seem, it is now no longer premature to confront both of these contingencies.

Kindling Interest

Swing music may be jam to some. To others, heaven preserve 'em, it is in a pretty pickle.

It is reported (how reliably let any press agent tell) that a certain eminent swing drummer breaks two dozen drumsticks every week. This is demonstration of the fervor with which he plays. Whether the result be music or mayhem depends entirely on whether the listener is jitterbug or anti.

This drummer is also in tune with modern economics. He cheerfully destroys and thus keeps up the price of drumsticks. His work seems to call for some alphabetical organization which will pay a Federal bonus for his breakages, with extra benefits for those who destroy drums as well as drumsticks.

The same New Deal agency might properly do something for the saxophonists; or to them.

Factor Of Sea Power

In moving a large section of her fleet into the Mediterranean, Great Britain is resorting to an extremely valuable trump card in the frenzied game of power politics now being played in Europe.

Great Britain's present military power is distinctly inferior to that of either Germany or Italy, although, since Munich, the great disproportion in air power which then existed between herself and Germany has been whittled down. The British are in no position directly to bar the way to further German and Italian aggressions in eastern and southeastern Europe. Effective opposition to the axis powers in that area must come from the nations directly in the path of the German-Italian steamroller.

That is why the Anglo-French contribution to the security of Poland and Rumania, for instance, must necessarily be limited to keeping a large German force immobilized in the west and to cutting off German access to overseas sources of essential supplies.

In the Mediterranean area, however, sea power continues to play its historic role as the determining factor in a struggle for power. And when it comes to sea power the axis is decidedly inferior to the democratic bloc. Italy, in particular, is extremely vulnerable to the pressure which France and Great Britain are in a position to exercise through command of the seas.

Italy, to be sure, is not without valuable cards of her own. By annexing Albania she now controls the exit and entry into the Adriatic and thus is in a position to bottle up Yugoslavia. There is, and almost from the beginning of the Spanish civil war there has been, an Italian naval and seaplane base in the Balearics.

Through agreement with Gen. Franco, the axis powers may also be given permission to use Spanish ports for raids on British and French shipping and the fleets of those countries. In the eastern Mediterranean Italy has bases in Tripoli and the Dodecanese islands. Sicily, Sardinia, the isle of Pantelleria, which divides the channel between Sicily and Tunisia, even Spanish North Africa may also enable Italy partially to counteract British and French pressure from the sea.

The fact is indisputable, however, that Italian sea power is decidedly inferior to British sea power in the Mediterranean. Given the existing situation, that circumstance would make Italy's plight precarious in the event of a general war in which she lined up against the democracies.

If Great Britain has tended to lag behind in the development of her air force and in the strengthening of her military establishment, she has let no grass grow under her feet in maintaining her fleet. During the past few years she has built a considerable amount of new naval tonnage. And much additional construction, including five 35,000-ton battleships, is now not very far from completion. Today, Great Britain has 12 capital ships to four for Italy, a considerable superiority over the latter nation in heavy cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers and other auxiliary craft except submarines. The French fleet, in turn, is superior in tonnage to that of the Third Reich.

The naval balance of power in the Mediterranean would, however, be radically altered were Italy to succeed in dominating Greece and Turkey. Not only would that give the axis powers very valuable additional bases, but it would also cut off any direct Anglo-French aid to Rumania, or overland assistance via Salonika to Yugoslavia. Furthermore, such a development would block Soviet Russia's exit to the Mediterranean.

That is one reason why the British are so very much perturbed over Italy's action in Albania. For while the British may care little about Albania's fate as such they are vastly concerned over the possible effect on Greece and Turkey. And in possession of an overwhelming superiority of naval force, Great Britain, together with her French partner, is in a position to manifest that concern in a manner capable of impressing Mussolini.

"Education must take into account functional interaction between an organism which is dynamic as to growth and needs, and the culture, which is at the same time limiting and facilitating, conservative and changing, in its influence on the organism," says an educator. Boy, that's wrapping a penny's worth of thought in $11 worth of vocabulary!

Nature is kind. It places us in this world with undeveloped faculties and allows us to learn very gradually what kind of place we landed in.

Aesop Was Right

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the allegorical tales of Aesop, the characteristics of humans are revealed in the guise of animals so well that the very titles of some of the fables have become idiomatic. That human nature does not change is evident in the fact that these fables have come down from antiquity and are as appropriate today as they were in the sixth century, B. C.

It is significant, too, that this form dates from a period in history when the rule of tyrants in Greece rendered unveiled speech extremely dangerous. Perhaps the totalitarian states are ripe for a revival of this sort of thing. At any rate, the dictators appear to take their text from the second fable of Aesop, the one about the wolf and the lamb, which is as follows:

Once upon a time a wolf was lapping at a spring on a hillside, when, looking up, what should he see but a lamb just beginning to drink a little lower down. "There's my supper," thought he, "if only I can find some excuse to seize it." Then he called out to the lamb, "How dare you muddy the water from which I am drinking?"

"Nay, master, nay," said Lambikin, "if the water be muddy up there, I cannot be the cause of it, for it runs down from you to me."

"Well, then," said the wolf, "why did you call me bad names this time last year?"

"That cannot be," said the lamb; "I am only six months old."

"I don't care," snarled the wolf. "If it was not you, it was your father." And with that he rushed upon the poor little lamb and ate her all up. But before she died, she gasped out:

"Any excuse will serve a tyrant."

The bedtime stories of Mussolini and Hitler fool nobody except those they're supposed to fool. But that appears to be sufficient for their purposes.

Re-enlistment Allowance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note that our Chief Executive, in a recent press release, let loose a "blast" at Congress for attaching "riders" to bills to which they had no relationship whatsoever.

This is probably what soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen felt like doing last year when a "rider" denying them a re-enlistment allowance—an item which has, since the year 1855, been rightly considered a part of their pay (until the so-called economy act) was "tacked" onto a farmers' relief appropriation bill.

We have never been able to figure out just what the connection between the farmers and the soldiers was last year, but we have figured out that there was no "blast" released at Congress for letting the rider go through, so our pleasure may be taken for granted at the fact that the President now frowns upon the "rider" practice and that "leaders of both parties have been trying to stop the practice."

It might be interesting to your readers to know that the Army appropriation bill, 1939-1940 carries a "rider" that will further cut the small pay of our soldiers in the limitations placed on post exchanges.

Negative Prejudices

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a country where people have learned the value of latent powers and potentialities, where efforts are continually made to provide opportunities to unfold the best within mankind for the promotion of civilization, it is unfortunate to segregate people who are lovers of arts and sciences on account of prejudices which are negative.

If people would learn a lesson from nature, how simple it would be to root out acquired qualities which are unbecoming to the human species.

A flower garden contains various colors, and yet its beauty and fragrance is deeply appreciated. Then why can't we learn to appreciate and comprehend the human garden, which is also God's creation?

Share in and co-operate with every talent and rejoice and thank God for the gift to man which is conducive to the harmony and peace of the world.

A Liberalized Course

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The confirmation of Mr. William O. Douglas as associate justice of the Supreme Court assures the liberal minded attitude of this august body, which will satisfy the most ardent New Dealer. President Roosevelt's friends and foes, alike, regarded his impetuous haste to reform that body by supernumerary enlargements as the most serious mistake of his Administration. In the fullness of time and maturity of events the ripened fruit fell from the tree without artificial forcing. It is the nature of ardent reformers to be impatient with the slow course of events and to speed up action by taking time by the forelock.

But since all is well that ends well, forward-looking Americans, regardless of partisanship, will now rejoice that the Supreme Court is no longer tied by the dead hand of the horse and buggy age.

It is highly gratifying to note that the liberal spirit of the Supreme Court as now constituted rises above political or geographical considerations. Democratic and Republican members vie with each other as to the relative liberality of their attitude. The reinforced Southern contingency lags no whit behind their Northern colleagues in their liberal spirit. Chief Justice Hughes, the noblest Roman of them all, has stood upright, unshaken and secure as a broad-minded and patriotic interpreter of the fundamental meaning and intent of the Constitution. The recent decisions of this high tribunal reflects the spirit of the New Deal as respects both property values and human rights.

Church And State

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an editorial in The Post of April 10, on "The Pope's Message," the statement is made that "The Pope has no part in politics." Since when? Every student of history and every reader who knows anything about the church's activities, knows that its leaders are up to their necks in politics in the interest of the organization. One hasn't to go far to be convinced of the truth of this statement.

Probably in no country of the world is this more true than in the United States, especially during the last decade or two. The claim is made that the church has a certain number of votes to give, generally estimated at 3,000,000, and if pliant politicians wish for this support they must act accordingly. This is too well understood to be honestly denied. The church not in politics? It is.

No other church organization enters into politics to the extent that the Roman church does. Search the records of committee hearings in Congress to verify this statement. And go to State Legislatures for further evidence. What organization opposed the child labor legislation? Who opposed the lifting of the embargo on loyalist Spain? Who cheered the name of Franco?

'Name Calling And Slander'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Louis M. Jiggetts reports that "As a rule the most prominently played-up news about the South is concerned with unfavorable conditions," and suggests that we devote some attention "to the beauty of Natchez, the quaint fascination of New Orleans, the increasing prosperity of Atlanta, etc., etc." Mr. Jiggitts carries his plea into the realm of literature and writes: "Already Southern authors and poets rank high among our men of letters." We can agree with Mr. Jiggitts that little is accomplished by the pot calling the kettle black, but his "Name Calling and Slander" article seems to defeat its purpose by running away from the issues involved.

Both natives and outsiders have been constant in their verbal attack upon "unfavorable conditions" in the South, but the Democratic Party has been strangely silent and ineffective toward existing social evils. If Mr. Jiggitts will take time to read some of the works of contemporary writers from the South he will find that nearly all the fighting to improve conditions has been done by the so-called "white-collar intellectuals" and the labor unions, with very little assistance from politicians since the time of "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman and the Farmers' Alliance.

Mr. Jiggitts says "We welcome all those who come with open minds," but this has not been true with regard to professors and authors—many of whom lost their jobs or were forced into voluntary exile because of certain liberal opinions. Consider the writings of Grace Lumpkin, Fielding Burke, Erskine Caldwell, Jack Boone, Richard Wright, Langston Hughes, Julian Meade, William March, Roy Flannagan, Thomas Wolfe and William Faulkner—authors vitally concerned with the life and people of the South.

These writers have been crying out against the injustices of the South long enough for some politicians to make an attempt to alleviate conditions, but their stories, unlike Upton Sinclair's "The Jungle," seem to fall upon deaf ears. The most Mr. Jiggitts and the Democratic political machine can do is to say "Come down and see us sometime, we'll show you our magnolia gardens."

Free Advertising

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It may shock our wideawake press when they learn that they have been taken for a ride by one of the cleverest advertising groups in many years.

First, we had an application by the managers of Marian Anderson, colored contralto, for a concert at Constitution Hall, knowing full well that it must be refused under the circumstances.

Then, without applying for available theaters or halls, demand forthwith was made for the hall of our largest high school. This first was refused, then reconsidered and granted, the managers of the colored song bird on their part agreeing to certain stipulations by our school board.

Finally, repudiating the agreement they themselves had initiated, and without good and sufficient reason, the offer of the school hall in turn was withdrawn, and properly so, and the highly publicized concert was canceled.

Result, thousands of dollars' worth of the best possible type of advertising, and that without the expenditure of a single cent.

Marian Anderson, a name known until Sunday to but a few confirmed concert-goers, now is known to all and sundry throughout the length and breadth of these United States. Her publicity bureau has done a creditable job.

The Post Impressionist

Time Enough

THE STORY is fairly familiar of the mammy who was so old that when someone asked her if she remembered the fall of the Roman Empire, she opined that she "did hear something crash about that time." It is usually told to indicate a vagueness about time that was supposed to be characteristic of the old-fashioned Negro.

Such vagueness is ludicrous to a Nation which has been told over and over that "Time is money." For it shows an incredible carelessness about the fundamentals of wealth. But such disregard for the prosaic limitations imposed by clocks and calendars is not, fortunately, as rare as might be supposed. There are today men—and especially women—who consider time a huge joke, and one not in the best of taste. Some of them never look at a clock unless they are forced to, and have the faculty of forgetting at once what they have seen there. As a rule they look younger, and their faces are less furrowed, than those of your hustling, energetic souls who spring here and there at the sound of a musical note, or the strident clangor of an alarm. It is as though the years, being disregarded as thoroughly as the hours, had failed to acquire any authority over them.

I know one such individual who works in a room where there isn't any clock, who sleeps where there is no way of his discovering the time, who doesn't own any watch—except the remains of one that he smashed in contempt one May morning when it reminded him that it was time to go to work—and yet who manages to be nearly everywhere at approximately the time he is expected. That is, on those rare occasions when he gets there at all.

And, whereas the hair of most of his contemporaries has long since taken leave of their skulls, and they have acquired that solid "life-is-grim and life-is-earnest" look, he continues to wear a shock of raven hue and to have the impish, imperishable look of a friendly faun.

It's true that this fugitive from a time clock has not acquired any of the wealth that is supposed to be a poultice for the bruised sensibilities of those who submit to the dictates of time. But he hasn't seemed to need it very much. Most of the entertainments and conveniences that money is spent for have come to him for nothing. For example, he finds people to be so amusing that he rarely goes either to a movie or a play. By disregarding time he paradoxically finds it comes to him, and he has sufficient leisure to observe the happenings about him without finding it necessary to have them pointed out by a playwright who has to condense everything into a limited number of hours and minutes. As for his bodily wants, because he is not racked and torn by the imperious rush that dominates most of his fellows, he finds them adequately taken care of by the modest sums he is able to earn.

It is natural that in an era like ours, in which attempts to master and control time have made it more the dictator of our activities than ever, that there should have arisen a genius like Albert Einstein, who has proved with cabalistic formulae that time is, after all, pretty much what you make of it. Thus we have side by side airplanes that go up into the sub-stratosphere in order to hurtle a distance of 500 miles in 60 seconds, and a mathematician who claims that if you should go far enough away in space you could observe events that happened a thousand years ago as though they were occurring now. And that if it were possible to choose your relative location in the universe, and the nature of light rays were utilized, you could observe the first man making the first wheel, while noticing the latest movie star dismounting at the Washington airport after making an overnight transcontinental flight.

In a world of such theoretical possibilities it is not surprising if the more percipient chuck their watches on the ash heap and choose to regard ordinary symbols of so-called time as meaningless cumeras. The more you hurry, they are warranted in believing, the more you stand still and get nowhere. For example, if you could reach the ultimate in speed it would result in you going and coming instantaneously—with exactly the same result as though you had not moved at all. You would not meet yourself coming back, but only when you had arrived there.

If these considerations seem a little difficult, I can only recommend that you get yourself into the frame of mind of the acquaintance I mentioned. For him the idea of time is only a mathematical fancy; and because he has recognized instinctively that there is not really any such thing, he is relatively rich in what is much more valuable than time, which is leisure.

Once you agree with such an inspired seer that time is non-existent, his leisure becomes your leisure too. So that if you have an appointment with him and he doesn't show up, you feel no resentment. You realize that he has occupied himself with doing whatever it amused him to do, and has left you free to do likewise. And if some time you should run across each other, it will be all the more pleasantly surprising. Besides which, you then will have more things of interest to share with each other than as though you had met earlier.

Infinitely useful in your personal affairs as such an enlightened attitude toward the time fiction will prove to be, there are likewise untold advantages to it in the international sphere. It is quite obvious that wars can be fought only by peoples who are slaves to the idea of time. The ultimatums that ordinarily lead to them are of those iniquitous things of which time is said to be "the essence."

For if no dates or hours were recognized in connection with them, they could have no effect. Likewise, accessions of territory and changes of political systems—having no time limits put upon them—could be left to themselves. They would happen, or not happen. In either case it would be unnecessary to fight about them. Wars would be recognized as mere time bombs set off under civilization, and this as unreal as they are meaningless and futile.

And it is obvious that a great many other evils of our time-clocked civilization will vanish at the same—or, time—the truth I have sought to indicate is generally recognized.

Latin America

By W. L. Schurz

A New History

AN EMERITUS READER at Cambridge, Mr. Kirkpatrick, has written a history of the Spanish conquistadores and also a much-needed history of Argentina. That in "Latin America, A Brief History" (Macmillan: Cambridge, $3.75), he is covering the same ground as has been covered in our own time by Chapman, Haring, James and Martin, Rippy and Robertson does not detract from the value or the timeliness of this contribution to a sector of history still too unfamiliar to North Americans. Yet it is noteworthy that all the above historians are Americans, and throughout his work Mr. Kirkpatrick acknowledges the pre-eminence of American specialists in the field.

The writers of textbooks on "modern history," from which the average high school or university student derives his knowledge of the background of world affairs, largely ignore what has gone on to the south of us. Their thinking is along east and west lines and their traditional European complex is a deterrent to a more inclusive treatment of the subject. Those who would acquaint themselves with the history of Latin America must, therefore, study it as a thing apart from the conventional sphere of historical studies.

THE TASK of writing an adequate history of Latin America of the republican period is not easy. The existence of 20 separate countries sets a pattern from which the average historian is loath to depart. Though the differences in national development appear large enough to justify individual treatment of each republic, there are enough elements of similarity to warrant their presentation as a composite history of Latin America rather than as so many separate chronicles of the Latin-American nations.

The effect is as confusing to the reader as is the history of Spain itself before the union of Castille and Aragon, or of Anglo-Saxon England, or of Italy of the medieval city-states. Adherence to the multiple formula results in much repetition and cross-reference, as the same phenomena appear again and again under identical circumstances. Too much attention is given to a nationalism which, at least in Central America and the Andean countries, is largely artificial and unrepresentative of real social and economic cleavages.

THIS WORK also suffers from the common defect that it devotes too much space to political factors in the history of the republics and too little to cultural development in the larger sense of that word. Caudillismo is always a fascinating subject, but, except for personal idiosyncrasies of the various dictators—the difference between Jose Miguel Gomez and Juan Vicente Gomez—they fit into much the same mold.

Ephemeral constitutions and "plans" and party rivalries—the motions of government—have often had little to do with the deeper currents of national life. One has good reason to wonder what the people were doing all this time beyond giving a perfunctory obedience to the caudillo of the moment or fighting against him under some aspirant to the palace. This important phase of Latin-American history remains to be written.

BUT WITHIN the customary limitations, Mr. Kirkpatrick has performed his task exceedingly well. He is fair and sympathetic, even to American relations with Latin American—an acid test for British writers on the subject; his facts have the air of authenticity. Not the least of his contributions is the short concluding chapter, in which he evaluates some of the outstanding features of the Latin-American character.

000 are killed in the United States every year on account of the automobile," he argued.

Members of the society sided both with Maj. Dyer and against him in the ensuing discussion. William C. Lee, of 1753 Kilbourne place, a retired Government worker, maintained that if a man had no obligations to others, and was suffering and "making trouble for other people," he had a perfect right to "bump himself off."

Dr. F. Homer Curtiss, president of the Universalist Religious Foundation, another member, declared euthanasia and suicide are indefensible from a theoretical, medical, psychological, and religious point of view. W. H. Evans, of 1006 I street northwest, an employe of the navy yard, also opposed euthanasia and suicide. "I am willing to stay on through," he said, "and I demand to be let to stay on through."

Dr. Edward E. Richardson, professor emeritus of philosophy at George Washington University, and pastor of the Congress Heights Baptist Church, who has been president of the society for the past 29 years, also opposed Maj. Dyer's arguments.

"Where are you going to draw the line?" he asked. "I've passed 60 and I don't think they've any right to kill me off. Some people have done fine work when they've been 100. And where are you going to draw the line in killing off the unemployed? Would you start by killing all the Democrats?"

The society which is about 45 years old, has 40 members. "Some of us are religious, and some of us are antireligious," Dr. Richardson explained after the meeting. "Sometimes we have Communists at the meetings. But they weren't any Communists there today."

The Albanian Pawn

Mussolini Moves Ahead

Special Correspondent to The Post.

EVEN BEFORE the occupation of Tirana by Italian troops last week, Albania was already dominated, politically and economically by Italy.

Italians ran the Albanian tobacco monopoly, exploited the oil wells. Italian officers dominated the army of 12,000 men and the police force. An Italian general was head of King Zog's military cabinet. Italian advisers sat in every ministerial department of the small country. The national bank belonged to Italy and even the beautiful royal palace was built by the Fascist government as a gift to King Zog.

Albania was the last Turkish-controlled Balkan nation to develop a nationalist sense. Split between rival tribes, the Ghegs in the north and the Tosks in the south, who speak Albanian dialects so different that they hardly understand each other, divided into a Moslem majority and a Christian minority, living in a rugged country with few communications, the Albanians were slow in gaining national consciousness. For many centuries they were the most loyal soldiers of the Ottoman Empire.

The struggle for independence began as late as 1911. A year later, Austria demanded independence for Albania, partly to bar Serbia the way to the Adriatic, partly to prevent Italy from gaining a foothold on the Balkan peninsula. Backed by Austria, Prince William of Wied was chosen ruler of the country. His unlucky reign lasted six months, during which Albania broke up into several pieces, remaining united only in hatred of the foreign ruler. In September, 1914, an Austrian battleship relieved the unfortunate and not too able prince and ended his short-lived reign.

WITH AUSTRIA removed after the war, the partition of Albania by Yugoslavia, Italy and Greece seemed a foregone conclusion and probably would have been carried out, but for President Wilson and the Albanians themselves. American Albanians strongly supported the nationalist movement, and President Wilson refused to acquiesce in the division of the country. The Albanians rallied to drive the foreigners out of the country which had been occupied by Italians, Yugoslavs and Greeks at the end of the war. In August, 1920, the Italian troops left Valona, keeping only the island of Saseno dominating the harbor entrance of Valona. Jugoslav and Greek troops left considerably later.

Since America had withdrawn from European politics, the allied powers felt free to compensate Italy for the loss of Valona. In a joint statement in 1921, the conference of ambassadors, representing England, France and Japan, recognized that a "violation of the independence of Albania might constitute a danger for the strategic safety of Italy," and intrusted Italy with the defense of Albanian frontiers whenever they should be threatened. However, Italy was the most likely power to endanger Albania's independence, as events long before the present tragedy were to prove.

Italy's Domination Dates From 1934

FOR ALMOST immediately after the war, rivalry developed between Italy and Yugoslavia over the control of the Adriatic. Yugoslavia now played the role which Austria had held before 1914. Under Bishop Fan Nolo, Harvard graduate, Albania favored Yugoslavia, but with Achmed Bey Zogu's successful revolution in 1924, Italy soon gained the upper hand. The "golden bullets" of Rome had decided the issue. Achmed Zogu was granted an Italian loan of 50,000,000 francs.

From then on, Albania became one of Italy's three askaris, together with Austria and Hungary. Askari is the name of native soldiers under Italian command in Italian colonies, and it became the nickname of Italian dependencies which steadfastly voted in favor of their powerful protector during the league's deliberations on sanctions. When the Balkan Entente was set up in 1934, Albania, together with Bulgaria, refused to join. On the other hand, fear of Italy became so strong among the Balkan states after the breakdown of sanctions that a clause was accepted according to which no Balkan state was pledged to come to its partners' aid against an outside power. Thus, any conflict with Italy over the Albanian issue was specifically excluded from the obligations of the entente.

YUGOSLAVIA'S foreign policy was almost exclusively determined by fear of Italy, Albania being the chief bone of contention. An effort at reconciliation, made in 1925 and 1926, was wrecked when Achmed Zogu concluded the first treaty of Tirana, forerunner of a complete Italian protectorate over Yugoslavia's southern neighbor.

Belgrade was ready to fight. It sought and obtained help in France and for several months in 1926 and 1927 war over the Albanian issue appeared imminent. But Italy hastened to draw a net of encirclement around Yugoslavia. Bulgaria and Hungary became Rome's satellites and even Rumania, Yugoslavia's partner in the Little Entente, was neutralized by Italian recognition of Rumanian sovereignty over the formerly Russian territory of Bessarabia. Contacts were established between Rome and the extremist Croats who were willing to accept Italy's aid in their fight against Belgrade.

In spite of French efforts to draw a veil over Italian responsibilities, the league's investigation into the murder of the Yugoslav monarch, Alexander, in Marseilles established the fact that Croatian terrorist groups had made their preparations in Italy, undisturbed by Fascist police, and were armed with Italian revolvers.

Stresa Saw Change In Yugoslav Policy

Reassured by what practically amounted to a French guarantee, Yugoslavia decided to wait while Italy continued its economic and political penetration in Albania. Step by step, in spite of patriotic resistance under the leadership of Leon de Ghilardi, a former Croat officer in the Austrian army, the country submitted to Italian influence. Italian confessional schools were set up and Italian officers ran the entire administration. New maps were drawn by the Italian general staff, based on a costly topographical survey of the hardly explored interior parts of the country.

Germany's emergence as a new threat to France changed the situation. As long as Yugoslavia was able to count upon French help, Belgrade could feel sure of being able to stave off any Italian danger. But when France started wooing Italy, to build the Stresa front against Germany, Belgrade's foreign policy underwent a profound change. Prime Minister Stoyadinovitch hastened to conclude a treaty of friendship with the powerful neighbor. For Yugoslavia no longer dared to oppose Italy, and Albania was definitely left to Rome's mercy.

It is no overstatement that long before Good Friday, 1939, Italy owned Albania to all intents and purposes and thus "conquered" what belonged to her in fact, although not in right. Two conclusions are possible which need not contradict each other: That Mussolini urgently needed some spectacular success to silence popular criticism comparing his poor record with Germany's amazing achievements; and that the military occupation of Albania is but a prelude to further imperialist conquests.

YUGOSLAVIA now is in the same situation as Czecho-Slovakia found herself some months ago. The Croat minority issue might be used for similar purposes as was the Slovak autonomist movement in Czecho-Slovakia, although Matchek, the Croat leader, is a sincere democrat and an ally of the Serb democratic opposition.

Anderson Footnotes

THIS IS WRITTEN some time after the event. But the event still seems important enough to demand a few belated foot-notes. I mean Marian Anderson's Easter concert at Lincoln Memorial.

It was something which had never happened before and if it happens again will not be so moving as it was last Sunday.

Edward Bruce, who is one of the most civilized people I know, said that it was "the most civilized thing that has happened in this country in a long time." Another highly civilized observer, one of the hundreds within my range of vision who broke down and wept a little, said that she was glad to have had something so fine to shed a tear over. Still another said that this had been the most thrilling experience since the Armistice—and I imagine that a great many supporters of this verdict could have been found among the 75,000 people, white and colored, who stretched from the Lincoln Memorial to the base of Washington Monument.

Everybody within direct earshot or at the receiving end of the radio must have been grateful to the D. A. R. and the District of Columbia School Board for denying an indoor auditorium to Marian Anderson.

The picture was stirring enough—of the slender colored girl on the front steps of the Greek temple, symbol of an immortal art, with the massive figure of the Emancipator looking down benevolently from the alcove behind. Secretary Ickes gave her a strong but graceful introduction. But the real wallop came when she opened up with the great hymn to liberty, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," sung, I am willing to believe, as it was never sung before.

Hard-Boiled Senators Sniffle Discreetly

THE WET EYES all around me were not especially surprising, since there are a lot of sentimental folk in the world. I retained just enough of my reportorial faculties to scan several United States Senators from Northern States who had wangled seats along the front of the upper platform where the photographers couldn't miss them. All of those particular Senators can smile, shake hands, and be thoroughly agreeable quite mechanically. But I don't believe one of them could send the tears trickling down the sides of his nose just to please some of his constituents. When they began to quiver around the mouth and sniffle discreetly I was sure that something pretty big was happening.

When the singer paused you could hear the echo coming back, with bell-like purity, from, I think, the Washington Monument.

This correspondent is emphatically non-musical, tends either to fidget or go to sleep at concerts, but knows what he likes. But his opinion of Arturo Toscanini rose another notch when he read, after hearing Marian Anderson, that Toscanini had said that hers was the voice of a century.

Oscar Chapman Deserves Credit

THERE WAS satisfaction, too, in realizing that the impresario of this occasion was a Southerner by birth, a son of Virginia: Oscar Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior. He was the man who thought of having this great singer, the greatest of her race and probably of all races, sing on Easter from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial. Oscar Chapman has been an admirer of Lincoln ever since he can remember, and for quite a few years he has been one of that small group of Colorado liberals—of whom the best known are Miss Josephine Roche and the late Edward P. Costigan—who take seriously the principles of Jefferson and Lincoln.

Oscar Chapman's idea was simple and appropriate. It had its risks, from the weather up. But he didn't have much trouble in selling it to his official superior, Harold L. Ickes, who is never abashed by risks. Several important politicians were invited to join the list of sponsors of the concert, but ducked. Associate Justice Hugo L. Black, of the Supreme Court, was an exception.

Everyone Felt A Little Nobler

AS MR. CHAPMAN'S idea began to take hold in a big way, quite a few Southern politicians called up and asked for tickets on the sponsors' platform, but withdrew their requests when they were told that on the platform, as in the open spaces in front of the memorial, there would be no segregation of races. A number of Southerners were seated on the platform, but, excepting Justice Black, none were political big shots. A good many of them, I imagine, were sitting at home with their ears glued to the radio.

The afternoon passed without an untoward incident, except the collapse of a few spectators who were overcome by emotion.

Since the concert I have heard a good many comments to the effect that it served to improve race relations. Perhaps it did, although for all I know it may have the opposite effect, and certainly nothing seems to go very far toward solving one of the toughest problems our forebears have bequeathed to us. I think, though, that the contralto voice of this colored girl out of the slums of Philadelphia, singing from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial, made everyone who heard her feel a little nobler.

Tax Exemption Asked

Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, yesterday introduced a bill to exempt from local taxation the International Student House of the American Friends Service Committee, 1706 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

The Facts Of Life

A LARGE PART of the tactic of the Nazi-Fascist revolution has been taken from the Communists. The immensely greater effectiveness of the Nazi revolution lies in a great improvement of those tactics; in the deceptive pretense that Naziism is a protector of private property, and in its greater appeal, therefore, to the more influential classes; in the much greater organizational and commercial power of the Nazi-Fascist countries, particularly of Germany and Japan; and in the more menacing armed force, together with immensely greater willingness to use it.

The political and economic aspects of this revolution were designed by the Nazis, not by their collaborators. The reason why Italian Fascism was tolerated for years by the world was because these weapons had not yet been designed.

The Nazi Reich claims sovereignty over everybody of German blood anywhere in the world. It asks from all people of German blood an allegiance PRIOR to the allegiance which they give to any country of which they are the citizens. This is not merely something that one SUSPECTS. It is something substantiated by actual decrees of the Third Reich respecting Germans living abroad, and backed up by a special organization for that purpose.

THOSE WHO WISH to familiarize themselves with the decrees—and all Americans should do so—should purchase the English translations of some of them which are available in book* form.

Nazi activities outside Germany are consolidated under the official direction of the foreign division of the National Socialist Party. Just as all Germany is divided into gaus, or districts, each with a leader, so there is a "gau ausland," or foreign division, whose leader, Ernest Wilhelm Bohle, is a member of the German foreign office and shares jurisdiction over all members of the German foreign service wherever they may be in the world.

All German diplomatic and consular representatives are, therefore, not only representatives of Germany, as a state, but are representatives of the Nazi-Fascist revolution.

This official German organization, an instrument of the state and the party, has gathered into its ranks all pre-existing organizations.

This organization does not confine its activities to German citizens living in other countries, but reaches out to all "racial comrades."

THE HEADQUARTERS of this foreign political division of the Nazi revolution is in Stuttgart. From there contacts are established with people of German origin and with Nazi sympathizers throughout the earth.

From there immense amounts of printed propaganda invade all countries, including the United States. Pro-Nazi organizations, and in particular the German-American Bund in this country, take their "general line" of policy from this headquarters.

Furthermore, all other agencies of the German government—the student exchange service, the academic exchange service, lecture bureaus, travel organizations, commercial offices, and the diplomatic and consular corps—are enlisted for the purpose of establishing in this country and elsewhere a group of German racial comrades and their sympathizers, whose primary loyalty is to the Third Reich.

On April 20, 1937, the Deutsche Wissenschaft Erziehung und Volksbildung, a publication devoted to German science, issued the following decree from the minister of science and education:

"Every scientist, etc., who has made a lecture tour or study trip abroad, must submit a report of his trip, together with two copies, to be kept in the files of the respective faculty or institution. I reserve the right to ask for these reports. Reports which contain important political or politico-cultural observations or suggestions must be sent to me immediately without special request."

ANOTHER DECREE on foreign travel, issued by the same minister, orders everybody traveling abroad to get in contact with the local representative of Germany and with the foreign organization of the Nazi Party.

Dr. Friedrich Lange, speaking as a representative of the "Volksbund fuer das Deutschum im Ashland," wrote in May, 1937:

"We will never call German people who are citizens of foreign countries aliens, but racial comrades! German people will always remain racial comrades even if foreign citizenship is forced upon them."

The program was made perfectly clear in the speech by Bohle at Stuttgart on August 30, 1937, who said:

"We only know the concept of the complete German who as a citizen of his country is always and everywhere a German and nothing but a German. This makes him a National Socialist . . . not countries or continents, not climate or environment, but blood and race determine the German mentality."

THE STUTTGARTER, National Socialist Kurier, on August 12, 1937, wrote:

"We want to bring the Germans in the United States who in part have become alienated from the German fatherland . . . back into the community of blood and fate of all Germans. To this end the spiritual regeneration of the Germans after the model of the homeland is necessary.

"When we have attained this goal we will organize the Germans in order to give them, after the completion of their spiritual regeneration, economic reinforcement and political schooling.

"German Americans thus prepared . . . shall then be used under our leadership in the coming struggle with communism and Jewry in the reconstruction of America."

Again it must be remembered that in the National Socialist ideology democracy and communism are one and the same thing, and anti-Semitism is the slogan under which all Nazi activities are carried forward.

The agents of the Nazi-Fascist revolution in the United States are very careful to deny any connection with Germany, like the Communists, they pose as 100 per cent Americans. Like the Communists, they lie, and their allegiance is to a foreign power.

AT PRESENT in America they are seeking to unite and to direct the policy of hundreds of so-called patriotic societies engaged in spreading anti-Semitism. They furnish these societies with most of their arguments. If one follows the literature of these societies one will see that at a given time they are all saying the same thing in almost the same language. And the theme song is made in Stuttgart.

The German-American Bund pledges allegiance to the American Constitution. So up to the very last moment did Konrad Henlein pledge allegiance to the Czech constitution. It talks a lot about combating communism, but the most important part of its purpose and aims, as set forth in its own literature, is "to unite with all Americans defending Aryan culture . . . Helping to build a great American movement of liberation."

The great American movement of liberation is Nazism. The German-American Bund adopts the swastika, which is the German flag, as "our fighting symbol and the common sign of recognition of defenders of Aryan nationalism, regardless of the form of government or religion involved."

Its slogan is Hitler's original slogan, "The common good before private gain." Its salute is the Nazi-Fascist salute. The bund officially says:

"The common salute to banners and flags is the outstretched arm. The common acclaim and the most universal sign of devotion to those whom we want to honor is the outstretched hand. It is the universal salute of Aryans the world over."

Not yet it isn't! But it is the purpose of the Nazi-Fascist revolution to make it so.

IT IS PERHAPS too much to say that the Nazis expect to capture the Government of the United States. But they do intend to form an enormous pressure group, a highly organized minority, under completely authoritarian leadership, which will influence elections in the United States and the decisions of Congress, particularly on foreign affairs.

It recruits this pressure group by organization, propaganda and a systematic use of the boycott against all persons in public life whom it wishes to get rid of. It goes so far as to set up fake corporations and send out letters in their names, threatening boycotts against publications and radio chains and private sponsors which publish a few of the facts about the world in which we live.

The "ordnungs dienst" of the German-American Bund is an exact replica of the Nazi storm troopers, and is formed for precisely the same purpose—namely for the dissemination of terror. They drill in camps, and they pledge blind allegiance to their leader.

There are bund organizations all the way across this country. But their secondary activities are more important than their primary. These consist in giving assistance to purely American organizations of Ku-Klux temper. They recruit chiefly by painting a terrific Jewish menace, and in the course of picturing it willfully misrepresent the facts about Jews in the United States.

They say, for instance, that the American press is in the hands of the Jews. Exactly the opposite is the truth. Apart from the New York Times and the New York Evening Post there are no great newspapers of Jewish ownership in New York, and on the Times, at least, the overwhelming majority of the staff is not Jewish. None of the great news services and none of the great newspaper chains—the Scripps-Howard, the Gannett papers, the Hearst papers—is Jewish.

Leaving out of account the fact that the Constitution of the United States guarantees equality for all citizens, regardless of their racial origins, and that the mere raising of the question is irrelevant, the facts which are broadcast in thousands of pamphlets throughout the United States on this and kindred matters have no relationship to the truth. The propaganda is done for the purpose of stirring up and dividing this country, and for that purpose alone.

The attitude of the Third Reich toward Germans in this country is the exact opposite of the attitude of the German republic and of the German monarchy which preceded it. The old German-American Buerger Bund, which was dissolved during the World War, was active in promoting the Americanization of German immigrants to this country.

It encouraged them to learn English and to assimilate the cultural values in their German backgrounds to American life. The German-American Bund encourages the use of the German language. German is spoken in its camps, and its object is to assimilate American life to Nazism.

Given an enormous growth of Nazi-Fascist power elsewhere in the world, these people and their fellow travelers will be a menace in the United States. They are a menace already. First of all, they are a menace to loyal German-Americans. The perfectly well-grounded suspicion of them leads to a distrust of all people of German blood, although the overwhelming mass of German-Americans believe in American democracy, Christian civilization and human rights, and detest the Nazis as much as any of the rest of us do.

But they are being put in such an ambiguous position that in many places it is difficult for Germans to get jobs.

This is just one of the things that ought to be dealt with.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Modern Pioneer

(As suggested by a recent column by Walter Lippmann.)

A hardy pioneer am I—
No obstacles upset me;
I poke frontiers smack in the eye—
(That is, if they will let me);
Exploring blood runs thru each vein—
Thru forests I'd go hacking;
I long to find new trails again . . .
If comforts are not lacking.

II.

I'm sick of being so chained down
To life inside a city;
I crave to found and build a town;
All tied-down folks I pity.
I'd strike out for the open land,
As did my folks before me . . .
If I could know, you understand,
The whole thing wouldn't bore me.

III.

There are wide-open spaces still
And I would penetrate 'em;
With vigor and an iron will
I'd conquer, tame and date 'em;
A blazer of new trails I'd be,
With no distaste for fighting . . .
If I could have 'lectricity
And ultramodern lighting.

IV.

I feel the urge to hit the trail
And do some pioneering!
To me there's no such word as "fail"—
(Or am I hard of hearing?)
Into the virgin woods I'd dash
And with my hatchet thin 'em;
No foes would I fear to crash
If there were movies in 'em!

V.

Should I behold a menace there—
Tush! Tush! I'd never fear it;
I'd give each enemy the air—
(That's pioneering spirit!)
I'd tackle Injuns with a smile,
Fight bears wherever lurking . . .
Provided I knew all the while
My telephone was working!

VI.

My ancestors were pioneers—
I do not underrate them;
I am, as they were, free from fears,
And I would imitate them.
So, boy, my covered wagon, ho!
Through unknown trails I'll ride it . . .
If there's hot water, radio,
Steam heat and ease inside it!

(WPA administrator) has wasted any money." Adams responded that WPA had spent $1,800,000 on communications last year, and $6,000,000 on travel expenses. He quoted Harrington, however, as stating that that expenditure would be curtailed.

At one point in the debate, Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, challenged his Republican colleague, Senator Davis, to vote for the $150,000,000 appropriation. As Davis remained silently at his desk, Guffey said "everyone in my State knows whose vote decided the cut" when a 1-vote majority slashed the relief appropriation last January. Unperturbed, Davis cast his ballot against the Pepper amendment.

In the closing minutes of the session, a bitter dispute broke out between Senators Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, and Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire. The Nebraskan had just finished denouncing the Vandenberg amendment when Bridges asked him a question about the WPA.

WPA Chief Heard

"The Senator can study WPA for 100 years and still not know anything about it," roared Norris. When Bridges inquired if he would have to come to the Nebraskan for information, Norris snapped, "You wouldn't get to first base with me."

"You think you know everything," Bridges was informed by Norris.

In the House, Col. Harrington was heard yesterday as the first witness to appear before the WPA investigating committee. Chairman Taylor said that "the investigation ordered by the House is in no sense to be a whitewash nor is it to be a persecution." As soon as the investigating staff can be organized, he added, it would endeavor to obtain "a cross-section picture of the administration of the WPA."

Mary Haworth's Mail

"Sweet Girl" of 20, European Visitor in Capital, Meets Romantic Reversal; Asks Explanation

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Since six months I am in Washington. I read every day your mail with very much interest and I understood that you could help me with my own problem. First, I must say that I am a foreigner, in the United States of America for several months, and second, I am in love with a young American boy of 22, since four months. I am 20, "a sweet girl," many people say, but I shall add, "perhaps too romantic." We had a beautiful love, so beautiful that I could not believe that it can exist in reality. It was love like in the novels.

But now, since about two weeks, my friend has changed his humor. He is not fond of me as in the first days. (By example: he didn't go to the appointed places, three or four times, where I was to meet him). When I asked him: "What is the matter?" he answered, "There is nothing." But I know, I can guess by his manner that there is something strange. Does he love another girl? I don't think so, because he would tell me as I asked him and it would be over. I think that his feelings are not so strong for me as before. Why?

I didn't change. I don't love many people (perhaps not enough, for the opinion of the other people) but when I love somebody it is forever. I cannot change my opinion. So I love him always the same way. Perhaps I showed too much to him that I was fond of him but I have this idea: when two young people love each other as we loved, they must not waste time (life is too short) acting a sham part. They must tell and show sincerely what they feel. Do you think I am wrong? Except in that, I see nothing in my behavior (attitude?) which could hurt him.

He wanted to come back to my country with me when I have to start; even he wanted to look for a job there and pass all our life together. And now he speaks no more about this plan. Please tell me what I can do to keep him. Must I take care about this change? It is because I don't know the character, the way to love, of the American boys? Or have I special ideas about love (great love, I must say?) What can I do to be loved again as in the first days?

It is the first time that I love so much (I cannot love more) and I know that life without him will mean nothing for me. (It is a pity that in my country there is no woman like you to help, by letters on newspaper, the young girls in their own problems.) Thanks for all the difficulties you will have to understand this petition from a SAD HEART.

The Value of Reserve

DEAR SAD HEART: Your "special ideas about great love" are beautiful, in that they reflect a nature that is beautiful in its simplicity, sincerity and extraordinary capacity for profound and idealistic devotion. Your greatest mistake, I think, has to do with supposing that all other natures—and particularly the masculine nature—is like unto your own. The average young man, be he an American or a member of any other nationality, is still too primitive in his emotional attitudes and reactions ever to fully appreciate a gift of love spontaneously given.

Perhaps he is, instinctively, still enough of a cave man at heart (under his skin-thin veneer of civilized deportment) to evaluate romantic conquests altogether in terms of the difficulties of the chase. Or perhaps some intrinsic and ineradicable natural principle is involved. As Floyd Dell points out in his scholarly work, "Love in the Machine Age,"—(a masterly study of human emotions, in which twentieth century customs, reflexes and tabus are presented in historical perspective)—protracted courtship of uncertain outcome seems to be essential for indelibly fixing the beloved's image upon the psyche of the lover, to the extent that he comes, finally, to regard a lifetime's companionship with the beloved as the only acceptable assuagement of his emotional hunger for her.

Dr. Marie Stopes, in one of her books ("Married Love," I think, although it may be another) advances more or less the same theory, stated in different words. She suggests that the wife (in order to sustain married love at that high pitch which keeps alive a tender, romantic and mutally satisfying regard), must always be somewhat in retreat before her husband's advances; elusive, unattainable, a creature of delicate reserves and unfathomable mysteries of personality. This does not mean that she is to be emotionally cold or aloof, but only that she should give the impression of never being so fully possessed as to be taken for granted; as to be without further feminine surprises and enchantments which are only to be discovered by indefatigable research.

This principle of behavior in courtship (whether premarital or marital) seems to have widespread indorsement amongst writers on the psychological aspects of love. There seems to be general agreement that if love is to take deep root in the individual's personality, thus making for social permanency, it must be nurtured in tension (born of voluntary mutual reserve and restraint) in its initial stages.

This tension has a two-fold value, immeasurably increasing the potency of the mutual biological attraction, and at the same time making it necessary for the couple "in love" to seek compensatory forms of emotional release, of a romantic and poetical kind, so that they become profoundly aware of each other as significantly complementary personalities. That is to say: with the impulse to caress, profess and physically-to-possess held in abeyance, emphasis is transferred to the overtly social aspects of their relationship—to those intellectual, spiritual and social interests and aspirations which they may possess in common.

Once discovered, this community of interests becomes a mighty edifice in which to house their love; a framework through which to express their love; a ballast with which to secure their love. To plunge headlong into a candid and complete expression or profession of love, instead of moving toward such expression with that comparatively measured and hesitant pace which the psychologists indorse, is to rob it of lasting significance at the very moment of yielding to its imperious momentary command. I suppose it is not for us to ask why it should be so; but only to accept the fact that such is the way it is.

With this as a premise against which to analyze the whys and wherefores of your romantic reversal, I think we may conclude that you invited heartbreak by going against the rules of the game; that you precipitately confronted the boy with a very embarrassment of untimely riches; so great that he is retreating in instinctive distaste and anxious dismay. He probably doesn't know what in the world to make of you or what to do about you, or why he is no longer as interested as he was "in the first days." I imagine he is being absolutely honest in saying there is no other girl, and in taking the attitude that "there is nothing (the matter)" which he could explain.

It is unlikely that you can regain the ground you have lost by your artlessly premature display of emotional intensity. I daresay your romantic pyrotechnics have scared the poor boy nearly out of his wits; for, if he is the average American youth of 22, he is probably essentially as emotionally naive and untried as yourself, regardless of what his previous amative experiences may have been. My advice to you can only be this; take profit from disillusionment by making a firm resolution never again to wear your heart on your sleeve, where this boy or any man may read. Let the state of your emotions be your own secret, never to be fully disclosed to anyone. Remember that it is as unwise to be a spendthrift with love as with money. Any form of prodigious extravagance leads inevitably to empty-handedness. M. H.

Miss Lawrence Tells How to Dress Smartly

British Actress Favors Simple Lines, Distinctive Colors

By Marshall Adams,
The Post Fashion Editor.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE, dynamic British actress and one of the indusputably "best-dressed women" on and off the stage, is no middle-roader in her stand on current styles. Miss Lawrence, who is appearing here in the new comedy, "Skylark," yesterday voiced her opinions quite definitely on good dressing.

She dislikes hats unless decidedly in the mood for them, yet she regretted having only 14 in her boudoir at the Shoreham Hotel.

She doesn't like jewelry because, as she says, "every woman attending a formal function is bound to be weighted down with jewels and the lone chance for standing out in a crowd depends on sallying forth unarmed.

Doesn't Like Pajamas

She doesn't care for pajamas on women, but believes that they add masculinity and are unflattering to most figures. And she points out there are so many becoming feminine tea gowns to be worn instead.

She frowns on do-dads in dress, yet with her characteristic sentimentality she carries with her on all of her tours, dolls and keys to several cities where she has scored triumphs.

She "adores" simple lines and impeccable tailoring for every type of attire, from the exquisite hand-made French nightgowns she admiringly displayed to rough heathery-looking beaver felts she affects for country wear.

She believes strongly in distinctive color combinations (such as gray and yellow hand-blocked prints, effective with her auburn hair and clear green eyes).

She's "mad" about fine, soft, country clothes which have character and stability. Yet one of her most amusing fashion favorites is a dinner blouse of peek-a-boo hand-made lace, worn over nothing but a brassiere and a skirt.

Urges Basic Simplicity

Miss Lawrence turns thumbs down on the adoption of too many silly, flighty tricks of the current season, believing that basic simplicity in clothes selection is most important in helping women of all exchequers to dress becomingly.

Here is Miss Lawrence's advice for those with little time and money to spend on clothes:

"Learn to sew slips, petticoats and even brassieres into frocks and gowns. This saves time when in a great hurry, is assuring, especially under light summer clothes, and is the only solution to traveling problems where space is at such a premium. Miss Lawrence taught herself this trick years ago on continental tours and has passed the idea on to all her now celebrated French coutouriers.

"Get slide-fastener conscious. Zippers are the real clue to neat, yet hasty dressing. Zippered plackets, as well as zippered neck and shoulder lines prevent creasing and gaping in frocks where buttoned closings are not so reliable.

Favors Monotone Tweed

"Get the monotone tweed habit. There is nothing anywhere smarter than a beautifully cut black tweed suit. Wear this with a black sweater and pearls and there's your tailored formula for women of all ages, types and budgets."

Your Figure Madam

By Ida Jean Kain

Skipping Rope Aid to 'Little Girl' Figure, New Styles Demand Slim, Tucked-in Hips

SPRING HAS hit Fifth Avenue and there's a rush to the beauty salons for exercise, particularly for the kind that will slim the midsection, because if it isn't a little girl frock, which demands a little girl figure, it's a suit, and you have to suit your figure to it.

At least, that is the stand taken at beauty salons, where for several seasons there has been a determined movement afoot to round out care of the skin and hair with proper attention to the figure. And this year they're really bearing down on exercise as a beauty aid, all because of the way the styles have turned out.

For example, if you want to look your best in one of the little girl dresses, you would be handed a skip rope and told to skip it. Skipping rope is splendid exercise for the legs, which come in for more than their share of criticism now that skirts are so short, and it uses the arm and shoulder muscles and even the pectorals, over the chest.

Keep Hips Tucked In

In addition, rope skipping affords invigorating exercise in a small space. You might begin by skipping 50 times and work up to 150. And as a finishing touch to this part of your back-to-youth movement, double the rope, hold it high overhead in both hands, and stretch and bend from one side to the other. Wind up by rotating the body at the waist, rope still held overhead, then bending to the side at the left, front and over to the right. Bend only at the waist, maintaining the stretch of the trunk and arm muscles throughout.

The antidote for swayback and the accompanying posterior effect of the hips is to tuck in the hips. Do this at home as an exercise and remember that the more smartly you bring your hips into line the better exercise you give those recalcitrant muscles which have been left to their own devices for so long that the group in the back have beome too short, the tummy muscles too long. This kind of posture, by the way, may add inches to your actual hipline. Possibly all you need do to slim down the hips is to correct your swayback.

To Curb Round Shoulders

For round shoulders one of the best exercises is to hunch the shoulders up about the ears, draw the shoulder blades together tightly in the back—as if you were doing it with a drawstring—and then, holding this contraction, pull the shoulders down, down, as far as you can get them. Relax and start over. This is a mild exercise, and it bears repetition, giving excellent results. When you do it, be sure to keep the hips in line and stretch up with the neck muscles, keeping the chin parallel with the floor.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

At the Perfume Counter

Would you like something in perfumes, Madam? . . . Oh yes, of course we have the flower fragrances, but today we're having a special demonstration of our new scent, Forbidden Fruit . . . Oh no, no, it doesn't smell like fruit! No, that isn't the idea at all! . . .

"You don't like it? . . . Oh yes, we have some lilacs, but don't you think you'd like one of the newer fragrances? By the way, have you ever had a personality analysis for perfume? . . . You haven't? Well let me tell you it's a very dangerous thing to buy perfume without a personality analysis! Yes! A great deal of harm is done by women wearing the wrong perfumes! Excuse me a minute, will you?"

"Yes, madam, this is the new Forbidden Fruit. Here, let me spray some on you. Oh, does the little boy want some, too? . . . He is? Your grandson. How nice! All right then I'll send you out one of the special offer dram bottles . . . Oh, two bottles! All right, thank you."

"Well as I was saying, you want to find the perfume that is YOU. The real YOU! Say, have you ever tried Suppressed Desire? . . . Now this is a fragrance that is restrained and yet—well, provoking . . . Too strong? . . . You think so? . . . Well, after all, I don't think the average man responds so well to the more delicate fragrances, do you?

"Are you interested in perfumes, miss? . . . Yes that is the new Forbidden Fruit, just this week at special offer . . . Your Sunday school teacher? . . . Oh, I think it would be perfectly lovely for her! . . . All right, and I'll have it wrapped as a gift package"

"Well, now of course if you want something much more conservative I can give you Platonic . . . You don't think you'd like it? . . . Well what about Eternal Triangle? . . . Here, smell it . . .

"No, I don't think it ever pays to buy cheap perfume. Another thing, you haven't the personality for it. No, your personality requires something very subtle and feminine and at the same time—well a little daring. Yes, I see that in you. Now here's a very subtle perfume—Secret Sin. Smell it . . . What? . . . You think the lilac is more refined? Well now let me tell you something—that's just a Puritan hangover in you. I know! I was brought up the same way exactly! But you must remember that this is a modern world—say pardon me . . . "

"May I help you sir? . . . Yes, this is our new Forbidden Fruit perfume, special offer this week only . . . A graduation present for your niece? . . . Why it would be perfectly lovely! . . . Yes indeed, it's just the right thing for a young girl . . . All right and I'll have it wrapped as a gift."

"Now then did you decide about Secret Sin? . . . Oh yes, it's more expensive than Eternal Triangle—say I've got something that you'll be crazy about How do you like this? . . . It's Tiger Woman . . . What? . . . Yes, it is a little heady but after all don't you think men really like a touch of the primitive in women? . . . Another thing you can wear a perfume like that where lots of women couldn't. You see you're really a highly developed type, a mental type I should say, and most people don't realize you've got this other thing in you.

"What? . . . It's $29.50 an ounce. But say before you decide I'd like for you to take just one whiff of this . . . Did you ever smell anything like it? . . . It's that new Jungle Night. It's having a big vogue in Paris . . . Yes it's more expensive—let's see—$37.50. But then it goes such a long way. And say, did you know this was the perfume that got first place in a men's perfume poll! Yes! First place! . . . What? Oh a dram would be—wait I'd have to figure it up? Oh you want two drams. All right then I'll send it out—what? . . . Oh you want to take it with you? All right. And thank you."

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, April 11.

WITH OUR World's Fair (have you heard of it?) just over the crest of the hill, people in authority are beginning to fret heartily over the matter of living for the hosts of visitors who are sure to arrive.

Moreover, regular residents in the hotels in midtown, notably actors, are seriously worried over the thought that increased rentals are apt to force them out of their regular lodgings. Virginia Murray, local head of the Travelers Aid, wants prospective women callers at our show to know how to provide for their visits during the months to come.

Miss Murray stresses the fact that everyone should have a return ticket and at least $4 a day to spend during her stay in Gotham. She further admonishes women to keep their spare money in a safe place in their clothing and not entrust it all to the handbag. And she especially warns girls not to take on sheer faith all offers of jobs at the fair, or in New York itself during the period of the emergency. Any local office of the Travelers Aid, she says, will check on such matters.

The town at large still vastly discussing the marriage of Libby Holman, the torch singer, to young Ralph Holmes. Gossips say a decade separates their ages—but who cares? Why be catty?

Ex-Minister Prochnik To Talk in Philadelphia

Fame of Former Envoy From Austria Is Spreading; Will Leave After Conducting Class Here Today to Lecture on European Events

By Hope Ridings Miller
The Post Society Editor.

THOSE POPULAR PROCHNIKS—the former Austrian envoy and Mme. Edgar Prochnik—who are just as important in Capital social circles as when he had an official title and they were always seated "above the salt," will be off today for a whirl in Philadelphia. Not a partying whirl, however, but something a bit more timely.

HOPE R. MILLER

It seems that Mr. Prochnik's name and fame as a lecturer on current events has spread abroad: a sizable group of Philadelphians would like to hear his views on what is happening in Europe and may happen here; and plans have been completed down to the last card of admission for a series of Mr. Prochnik's classes, to be conducted there similar to those given here.

So, following Mr. Prochnik's class here today, he and his wife will leave for Philadelphia to be the week-end guests of Mrs. Gustave Heckscher, in whose home the first lecture will be delivered. Others are scheduled for the homes of Mrs. Leon Alexander, Mrs. Griswold Flagg and Mrs. John Dorrance.

Rumors are going the rounds that groups in a number of other cities have been angling for Mr. Prochnik's lectures, so the former envoy and his wife may be very much on the go from now on. Certainly if there's anyone who has a real story to tell (though I hear he stays off autobiographical tracks as much as possible) it is the man who, after serving his country for 30 years, suddenly found himself without a country.

Truth is, there are several diplomats with eclipsing careers who might make a mint of money by taking to the lecture platform. The Albanian Minister, Faik Konitza, seems to have plenty to say; and I never heard a more moving appeal than the one voiced by the Czech Minister, Vladimir Hurban, at the Women's National Press Club some months ago.

Countess Gizycka Guest at Luncheon

Speaking of the Press Club—at its weekly luncheon yesterday there were two exceptionally attractive guests who took the floor briefly to answer a barrage of questions. One was Countess Felicia Gizycka, author of the recently published novel, "Flower of Smoke," and the other was Mrs. Franklin P. Adams, wife of the noted journalist, "F. P. A.," who arrived in Washington last Friday and is being feted right and left. Countess Gizycka, who came to the Capital especially for yesterday's luncheon, left shortly afterward to return to New York, where she is studying with Oliver LaFarge at Columbia University and working on her third novel.

Countess Gizycka's comments yesterday on writing in general, and novel writing in particular, were given as answers to questions from members of the club. She finds beginning a book more difficult than writing the rest of it; does not outline her plot in detail before beginning the story, and thinks the fun in being an author comes after the work is finished.

Mrs. Adams Widely Feted

Mrs. Adams, who talked briefly, mentioned some of the problems of a mother visiting Washington with two children, one of whom took a bicycle ride Monday morning and fell in the Potomac shortly before he was to appear at a White House party. Other bits of "history" Mrs. Adams recounted had to do with her experiences as a newspaperwoman—she once was a music critic on the Morning Telegraph.

A number of parties are on the calendar for Mrs. Adams, who will be here through this week-end, when her husband will join her (he is coming down to attend the Gridiron dinner). Yesterday afternoon she was guest of honor at a small cocktail party given by Arthur Krock, who planned to entertain for her on Sunday, and then postponed the fete until yesterday.

This evening, she will be entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, and tomorrow evening she will dine with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley. She is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sifton, who feted her at a buffet supper Sunday night.

French Ambassador Honored at Dinner

Other guests were Representative Sam Rayburn, Maj. and Mrs. Brook Lee, Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mrs. John Biddle, and Mrs. Goodloe Edgar, mother of the hostess.

Representative and Mrs. Byron will entertain at dinner again tonight and their guests of honor will be the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun.

The guests were seated at five tables, centered with arrangements of spring flowers in bright shades, with burgundy snapdragons and yellow shasta daisies predominating. Carlo, whistling accordion player, came from New York specially for the party. Sidney's Orchestra played for dancing. Among the out-of-town guests was Miss Pamela Mathewson, of Montreal, who is staying with Miss Howard.

Count Potocki Entertains at Embassy Dinner

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, entertained at a dinner last evening at the embassy. Among the dinner guests were Count Alfred Potocki, brother of the envoy, and Count and Countess Tyszkiewicz, who are staying at the embassy.

'Little Season' on With Vengeance With Three Dances in Four Nights

THE "Little Season" is on with a vengeance, what with three gay dances in four nights. One of the most successful was that which followed the dinner party given by Princess Margaret Boncompagni and Capt. and Mrs. Herbert S. Howard last evening in honor of Maisie Howard.

The party was held at the 1925 F Street Club. Though a stiff wind through open windows blew all place cards away shortly before the dinner was to begin, everything went off in the gayest of fashions.

PRINCESS Boncompagni, who arrived several weeks ago from her home in Paris for her annual visit to Washington, wore a black satin gown trimmed at the hem with bands of gold cloth. Maisie was dressed in pink taffeta, with a hoop skirt, and Mrs. Howard wore a frock of pale lavender with stripes of cerise and deeper purple at the hem.

Seen here and there: Lady Malcolm, in black lace and net, dancing with her son, Angus Malcolm of the British Embassy . . . Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, looking none the worse for wear after having been up late at the Walter Edges' dance the evening before, in a green print dress, with an accordian pleated skirt . . . Hoyer Millar, of the British Embassy, waltzing to Sidney's music with Mrs. Harold Hinton, who was stunning in a gold satin evening gown made with a full skirt . . . Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor in green brocade.

EMBELLISHING the stag line were Anthony de Balasy and Baron Paul Schell, of the Hungarian Legation; Count Leone Fumasoni Biondi, Igor Cassini, Clarence Hewes, Ralph Hill, Nathan Bartlett, and many others. . . Emily Davis was handsome in a black crepe gown with a white bodice . . . Eleanor Flood, who wore a red frock with a white blouse, had to leave early . . . Lieut. Torre, newly arrived attache of the Italian Embassy, and the tallest man there . . . Alice Tuckerman, in black, with a wide green belt . . . The Naval Attache of the French Embassy and popular Mme. Benech, the latter in white, trimmed with fox at the sleeves . . . Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ralston Holmes and Commander and Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, among other Navy folk present . . . Alice Barry, in white net, trimmed with rhinestones . . . Angelica Lloyd, in purple and cerise chiffon . . . and many others, most of them young people.

THE Polish Ambassador's guests of the unpronounceable name, Count and Countess Tyszkiewicz, are members of one of Poland's oldest and most aristocratic families. Like the Ambassador, whose estate, Lancut, is of almost fabulous splendor, the Tyszkiewicz' own a famous shooting place set in acres of beautiful forest. At one time the Count was also master of forty or fifty thousand acres in what is now Lithuania. Their handsome residence in Warsaw was leased as the United States Embassy when F. Lammot Belin was ambassador to Poland, and is currently housing the Greek Legation there.

The Belins will have Count and Counties Tyszkiewicz at their home Evermay for a stay later in this month. The visitors will leave the middle of the week to see New York after spending the week-end with Count Potocki. Later they will visit the World's Fair and see more of the Eastern part of the country, which the Countess has never seen and which the Count last visited 40 years ago. The latter, incidentally, is related to Count Potocki.

On Sunday afternoon the Ambassador, Count and Countess Tyszkiewicz, Count and Countess Anthony Potocki and Baron Stefan de Ropp, Poland's Commissioner General to the World's Fair, were entertained at an Easter tea given by Mme. Wankowicz, wife of the Counselor. Members of the embassy staff were also present. Tall, distinguished M. Wankowicz, who looks exactly as one imagines the ideal diplomat should, is recovering from an illness and is convalescing at the country home in Poland of his married daughter.

Zonta Club Honors International Chief

Dr. Helen Pearce Discusses Plans for Convention to Be Held in White Sulphur Springs

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

The Washington Zonta Club last night entertained at dinner at the Y. W. C. A. in honor of Dr. Helen Pearce, of Salem, Oreg., president of Zonta International. Zontians from nearby Maryland and Virginia were among the guests who joined members of the local club at the affair.

Dr. Pearce came here from Ohio, goes on to New York tomorrow, and from there to Boston for Zonta meetings. She addressed the club members on the program of the international organization and also discussed plans for the convention to be held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 22-24. Miss Esther Gude, of the local club, is chairman of the conclave.

The program of Zonta International includes work for the improvement of the legal and economic status of women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Elizabeth Cox, of the Washington club; a study by the international committee on public affairs of the reciprocal trade treaties, to be reported on at the convention by the chairman, Mrs. Lena M. Davidson, of Glendale, Calif., and the Amelia Earhart Memorial Fund.

To Assist Women In Research Work

This fund, established last year, as a memorial to Miss Earhart, who was a member of Zonta, is designed to be used to assist women doing research work in aeronautical engineering. A report on plans for raising the fund and for its administration will be made at the June convention by a committee including Mrs. Dorothy Arnold, of New York University, the chairman; Mrs. Katherine Maddux, of Chicago, a former president, who was among the guests last night, and Dr. Pearce.

Dr. Pearce, who is an assistant professor of English at Willamette University, in Salem, has visited clubs in various other cities on her way East.

Confers With Officers Here

She conferred yesterday with Mrs. Mae Moyers McElroy, first vice president of Zonta International, and a member of the local club, on the program of the organization and with Mrs. Cox on convention plans. She was introduced last night by Miss Emma T. Hahn, president of the Washington Club.

Among the guests from out of town who attended the dinner were Dr. Mary Di Risi, and Mrs. Dorothy Fradenhagen, both of Albany; Miss Catherine Hathaway of Fall River, Mass.; Mrs. Ethel Shenefield, of Toledo, Ohio, and Dr. Hanin Wischlicka, of Switzerland, who is now in Washington.

Mrs. David Thompson, the president, opened the program and Mrs. Lawrence James, chairman of the luncheon committee, presided. Greetings from the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs were brought by Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, federation president, and there were vocal solos by Miss Clara Tarbett, accompanied by Elaine O'Flaherty.

Dr. DeKleine discussed changes which have taken place in the medical field, pointing out that the emphasis which had been placed on sanitation in past generations is now shifting to diet.

Officers seated at the head table included, Mrs. Robert Armstrong, vice president; Mrs. Nathan Gammon, secretary; Mrs. William W. Bush, treasurer; Mrs. Freeman Weiss, chaplain; Mrs. James Hall and Mrs. B. H. Mardfeldt, librarians, and Mrs. Jesse Lutton, parliamentarian.

Committee chairmen seated there included Mrs. Charles J. Bowne, program; Mrs. J. I. Hardy, book; Mrs. W. B. Lyndenberg, membership; Mrs. John S. Beck, flower; Mrs. Julian Belfield, publicity, and Mrs. Albert H. Bumstead, auditing.

The club was organized 12 years ago and until this year devoted its programs to book reviews. This season there have been speakers on current events. The meetings are held in the Woodridge Branch Library.

Members of the luncheon committee assisting Mrs. James, were Mrs. A. A. Ludwig, Mrs. H. J. Clay, Mrs. N. R. Ellis and Mrs. Louise Kreek

Mrs. George Fitch Addresses Church Groups on China

Mrs. George A. Fitch, a past president of the Shanghai Branch of the American Association of University Women, yesterday spoke at the joint meeting of the Woman's Guild and the Home and Foreign Missionary societies of Foundry Methodist Church. She is in Washington as a representative of the Committee on Nonparticipation in Japanese Aggression, of which Col. Henry L. Stimson is chairman, asking that the flow of war materials from this country to Japan be stopped.

Mrs. Fitch, whose husband was born in China and is a Y. M. C. A. secretary there, returned to this country a year ago from Nanking, where they had been living, bringing her two sons. Her husband remained to give what assistance he could. He was "unofficial mayor" of Nanking safety zone in the siege a year ago in December. He is now at Chungking, in West China, the new capital, and believes China will build herself a new nation to the west.

86-Year-Old Woman Flies in Safety Only to Break Collar Bone on Ground

FLYING at 4,000 feet in an airplane is safer than coming down a 4-inch step, Mrs. Ella S. Knight discovered a couple of days ago. Mrs. Knight, who is in her eighty-sixth year and is the founder of the Sunshine and Community Society, was preparing to return to Washington from St. Petersburg, Fla., when she made the discovery.

She took her first airplane ride with Clarence L. Spence, a St. Petersburg flier, in his luxurious plane and enjoyed it so much she was going on a second trip the following day and then coming by plane to Washington. On her way to the airport for the second flight, she tripped on the way downstairs and suffered a broken collar bone. She is recovering from the injury, but it has delayed her return, which she expected to be in time for the annual breakfast of the Sunshine Society on May 1.

Mrs. Knight divides her time between her daughter, Mrs. Fred G. Aulsbrook, in St. Petersburg, where she spends the winters, and Mrs. Richard Gasch, of Washington.

MRS. H. S. MIDDLEMISS, better known in the club world as Gladys Ball Middlemiss, of the Woman's City Club, was scheduled to arrive yesterday in Athens on her world tour, and to go on to Naples today. She is traveling on a British ship, but even so there is excitement in those parts.

MRS. R. C. BOWKER, chairman of the good citizenship pilgrims committee for the District D. A. R., last night was hostess at a shower given by members of her committee for Katherine Hanley, McKinley High School senior, who is the District pilgrim this year.

She will stay with the other girls from all 48 States who will arrive Friday and have their headquarters this year at the Blackstone Hotel. Friday night Mrs. Thomas Seay, national vice chairman of the good citizenship committee, will entertain the girls at her home.

INCIDENTALLY, it is interesting to know that Huntley Johnson, of Waverly, Va., who was the Virginia D. A. R. pilgrim in 1938, is now studying at Strayer's Business College on a D. A. R. student loan. She is the first of the pilgrims to avail herself of the student loan fund which is another of the things the D. A. R. does for young people throughout the country.

THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY to the Disabled Veterans of the World War, during Easter week, visited 100 patients at Mt. Alto Hospital, giving each an Easter basket containing candy and fruit. The patients in the women's ward were given bags of mints, vest pocket editions of the classics, yarn, crochet cotton and blocks of quilting.

MRS. F. J. HOBBS has been designated by Miss Rachel W. Lang, president of The Rubinstein Club, to represent the club at the council meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in San Francisco May 8.

WPA Aide Sees Happier World If All Did Productive Work

There would be natural progress and a happier world if all men and women were obliged to do a share of productive work and there were no parasites, Izetta Jewel Miller, chief regional supervisor of the Works Progress Administration, declared last night. She addressed a joint dinner of the Home Economics Women in Business and the Dietetics Association, held at the Admiral Club.

There would be more comradeship in marriage and greater economic independence under such a plan, Mrs. Miller said. She traced progress of women from the time of Margaret Brent, America's first suffragist, who went before the Maryland Assembly in 1647 as a representative of her kinsman, Lord Baltimore. The year after the franchise was granted to women, she said, there were 29 in State Legislatures, and today there are 140, indicating steady progress in political affairs. In the past they wielded their influence through men leaders; today they have become leaders in their own right through intelligence, service and qualification, she said, and only being plunged into a world war could displace them from their position.

Mrs. Miller yesterday afternoon was interviewed on radio station WJSV by Mrs. Elinor Lee, a member of the committee which arranged the dinner.

In the interview, Mrs. Lee questioned her as to her own career, which began with 12 years in the theater, followed by active work for woman suffrage and social service as commissioner of public welfare in Schenectady, followed by appointment to her present position.

Mrs. Ann Sullivan Hagan, president of the Home Economics Women in Business, presided at the dinner. Others at the speakers' table were Representative and Mrs. Randolph; Dr. Louise Stanley, chairman of the Bureau of Home Economics in the Department of Agriculture; Dr. Florence King, Mrs. Rowena Carpenter and Mrs. Helen Douglas, all of the Department of Agriculture; Miss Helen Burns, chief dietitian at Walter Reed Hospital, president of the Dietetic Association, and Miss Bernice Burns, program chairman.

Methodist Home for the Aged Plans New 20-Room Annex

Announcement Is Made at Banquet Celebrating Golden Anniversary of Institution

Plans for an annex of 20 additional rooms for the Methodist Home for the Aged, on Connecticut avenue, are now being considered. This was announced last night at the banquet given at the Willard Hotel as the final event in a series of three, celebrating the institution's golden anniversary.

With the attainment of the anniversary goal, the payment of the remaining debt on the home, members of the board of lady managers, headed by Mrs. Harry Hoskinson, promptly undertook a project of expansion. The first plan called for 12 more rooms and an elevator. Last night the increase to 20 rooms was announced. There are now 50 men and women living there.

Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, of the M. E. Church South, who was here from Houston, Tex., was guest speaker at the banquet. He was introduced by Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident bishop of Washington. Both commended the Methodist churches in the Capital for their work in maintaining the home and clearing it of debt.

Dr. G. Ellis Williams Presents Guests

Dr. G. Ellis Williams, superintendent of the Washington District, presented the guests of honor and there were songs by the Hamline quartet under the direction of John Marville, dinner music was by the Kanora String Quartet, directed by Dr. Clarence Ransom, the invocation by the Rev. Edward C. Beery, presiding elder of the M. E. Church South, and the benediction by the Rev. Klein K. Haddaway, president of the Ministerial Association.

Among the honored guests was Mrs. Fred S. Cawson, a charter member who is still active, and one of the four past presidents whose picture was in the souvenir program. The other charter members still living are Mrs. G. Z. Colison and Mrs. S. H. Walker. The three presidents who preceded her were Mrs. J. McKendree Reilly, Mrs. D. D. Street and Mrs. May Butler Berens, none of whom is now living.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoskinson Head Home Boards

Mrs. Harry Hoskinson is now president of the board of managers and Mr. Hoskinson of the board of trustees. Their pictures also appeared on the souvenir program with its gold cover, as did the photographs of the first home, an old frame structure at Twelfth and N streets northeast, and that of the present building erected in 1926 on Connecticut avenue at Ellicott.

Mrs. Harry Underwood was general chairman of the series of anniversary celebrations. Among the honor guests were Dr. and Mrs. Fred C. Reynolds, Baltimore, Md.; Dr. Horace E. Cromer, president of the Washington Federation of Churches, and Mrs. Cromer; Dr. Louis H. Taylor, superintendent of Sibley Hospital; Dr. Jacob S. Payton, editor of the National Methodist Press, and Mrs. Payton; Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Woolever, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Irving O. Ball, Mrs. G. Z. Colison and Mrs. S. H. Walker.

Farm Women Re-elect Mrs. Johns

Mrs. Jay Winston Johns, of Charlottesville, Va., and members of the board were re-elected yesterday as officers of the Capital division of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association at the annual luncheon meeting held at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Johns has served as president for the past three years. Mrs. Murray Boocock, national president, came with her from Charlottesville to attend the meeting.

Other officers are Mrs. Arthur T. Eagate, of the District; Mrs. Frederick L. Lewton, of Maryland; Mrs. Frank L. Ball, of Virginia, and Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, of West Virginia, vice presidents; Mrs. S. D. Broadbent, of Washington, recording secretary; Mrs. Raymond A. Pearson, of Hyattsville, corresponding secretary; Miss Evelyn D. Cannon, of Arlington, treasurer; Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, of Washington; Mrs. M. A. Long, Baltimore, and Mrs. Roland Ringgold, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., directors.

Miss Grace Frysinger, chairman of the international relations committee, told of plans for the London conference of the Associated Country Women of the World. Dr. Edith Allen, a member of the Capital division, suggested that farm women in America learn needlework such as that for which peasant women of Europe have found a market here in the past.

Mrs. Seton Talks on Orient

Mrs. Grace Thompson Seton, who leaves this morning by motor for her home in Greenwich, Conn., yesterday addressed board members and guests at the weekly luncheon given at Opportunity House, held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Dorothy DeMuth Watson. Mrs. Seton, explorer and author, devoted her talk to "The Progressive Women of the Orient."

There is a surprising misconception of the Oriental woman in this country, she said, describing some of the leaders she has known in the Far East. Sarojini Naidu, who succeeded Gandhi as president of the All India Congress, is one of the greatest women leaders in the world today, said Mrs. Seton. Her sister, Mirolini Chattapadya, a publisher in Madras, is also a remarkable woman, she said, and her sister-in-law served as mayor of her city. Mrs. Seton, turning from India to China, described Mme. Sun Yat Sen and her sister, Mme. Chaing Kai-shek, and finally, in a brief discussion of the Japanese, told of Baroness Shidzue Ishimoto, a leader in the birth-control movement.

Mrs. James Harper Reports on D. C. C. A. R. Activities

Mrs. James Henry Harper, president of the D. C. Children of the American Revolution, reported on the 18 chapters in the District at the meeting of the national board held yesterday in Memorial Continental Hall. Mrs. William H. Pouch, national president, was here from New York to preside.

Mrs. H. D. Rinsland, of Oklahoma, in her report, said the children of her State had difficulty in joining the C.A.R. because they were usually so far removed from Revolutionary records. They are working, collecting legends of the Indian tribes of that State. She presented a candlelight service which was adopted by the board to be used at certain annual meetings. Mrs. William A. Becker, national vice president, spoke of the C.A.R. work at the World's Fair. The Pilgrimage of George Washington from Mount Vernon to New York for his inauguration will be re-enacted Sunday and he will stop at the District Building where a group of C.A.R.'s will be present when the commissioner welcomes him. A colonial house is being erected as a headquarters at the fair for the Daughters, Sons and Children of the American Revolution.

Low Incomes Hurt Nation, Economist Says

Two-Thirds Receive Less Than $1,560, Women Shoppers Told

Increase in the income of the lowest one-third of the population is essential to safeguard our American democracy, Miss Hildegarde Kneeland, principal economist for the national resources committee, head of consumer income studies, declared yesterday in a talk before the League of Women Shoppers. The meeting was held at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

"The American Standard of Living—How Many Can Afford It?" was the subject of her talk. Taking figures of a Gallup Poll, setting an income of $1,560 a year as a minimum for decency, she said that not two-thirds of the families in the United States receive that amount. If the national income of $80,000,000,000 is increased to $80,000,000,000 it will be imperative to see that the new $20,000,000,000 goes to lower income groups in higher wages and, if necessary, in increased relief, she said.

As part of the program to get it to them, she urged work against the passage of regressive legislation such as consumer retail sale taxes. Unless a new means of distribution is devised, the increase of $20,000,000,000 will only serve to raise the average income of the lowest third from $500 to $700, she said and the top one-half of 1 per cent will receive the same amount of increment as the whole lower third, comprising 60,000,000 families. She declared that 80 per cent of the families in the country receive less than $2,000 a year, the minimum set for decency plus medical care. Group medicine would help, she said, but would not solve the problem of this expense for the lower two-thirds.

To Plan Banquet

Mrs. Josephine Lewis and Mrs. Bea Levy will be hostesses at a meeting of Junior Mizrachi, Washington Chapter, tonight at the Beth El Synagogue, Seventh and Jefferson streets northwest. Kiowa Braves And Maids to Dance Here

Oklahoma Indians Take Trail in 2 Weeks For Folk Festival

Gaily-garbed Kiowa Indian braves and maidens from Anadarko, Okla., will take the trail to Washington in two weeks to open the sixth annual National Folk Festival at Constitution Hall, as they have done at each previous festival.

They are scheduled to appear at each of the matinee and evening shows, April 27 through April 29. Sharing honors with them this year will be members of the Apache and Zuni tribes. The participation of the Indian groups has been arranged by the Office of Indian Affairs.

In embroidered buckskins and feathered head dresses, the Kiowa performers will present. The Humming Bird Dance, Shield Dance, Buffalo Brave Dance, Young Turkey Dance, Snake Dance and others.

The Shield Dance will be led by Stephen Mopope and Auchiah, sometimes referred to as "the two bronze-skinned Nijinskys." Chief Belo Cozad, octogenarian flute maker, will play the tomtoms.

Mopope is the spokesman for the Kiowa tribe. He recently received a commission to paint a mural in the new Interior Building and has completed several such works in public buildings of the Southwest. Kiowa artists, greatest of whom was the late Tso-To-Ke, are distinguished for their ability to draw the human body in action.

The Kiowas were known during the last century as among the fiercest of the Western tribes. They have adopted the ways of the white man, but they still cling to tribal traditions. Ceremonial dancing among the Kiowas more nearly approaches an art form than in any other tribe.

While the men will dominate the Indian scene at the National Folk Festival, the women will sing lullabies.

Tickets for the National Folk Festival are on sale at The Washington Post Building, 1337 E street northwest, daily and Sunday, from 8 a. m. until midnight. Prices for the matinees range from 50 cents to $1; for the evening shows from 50 cents to $2. A different program will be presented at each performance.

Will Dance Tribal Dances at National Folk Festival

District Has 4 Arbor Days; 1st Is Today at American U.

The Board of Education will plant a red maple at the Brightwood School on April 18, Arbor Day.

The Capital Park and Planning Commission will plant a Nebraska elm on the Mall, in conjunction with the Department of Agriculture, on April 22, Arbor Day.

Any additional ceremonies that might be held on the third Friday in April would be compatible with a proclamation by the District Commissioners, who declared that day to be Arbor Day.

This makes four Arbor Days, which ought to satisfy everybody.

The Agriculture Department said its Arbor Day, the 22d, is deeply rooted in a legislative enactment in Nebraska, where Arbor Day was originated on April 10, 1872, by J. Sterling Morton, one time Secretary of Agriculture. The Legislature, however, fixed April 22, Morton's birthday, as Arbor Day.

The reason for the variously spaced celebrations, Arbor Day observers say, is that Washington's changeable climate justifies the varying dates here.

At American University, students will devote the day to a beautification of the campus. The projects, under direction of Robert Little, Mercer, Pa., junior, will range from rolling the tennis courts to renovating the Greek Theater.

Federal Bar to Hear Holtzoff on Court Office

Citizens' Groups Oppose Penal Wharf in Southeast Play Space Asked

Two citizens' associations last night indorsed the proposed move to construct the District Municipal stadium on the East Capitol street site.

Opposition to establishment of the Penal Wharf in the Southeast section was voiced by two units, and two voted approval of the Sumners House resolution seeking suffrage for the District.

Summit Park

The Summit Park Citizens Association urged erection of the District municipal stadium on East Capitol street and opposed establishment of the Penal Wharf in the Southeast section.

The association asked installation of a fire alarm box at Camden street and Suitland road.

Other resolutions favored grading of the earth banks on Bangor street between Suitland road and Austin street, and repair of Bangor street at Thirty-sixth, described as "impassable." Additional appropriations were requested for the District Dog Pound.

Barry Farms

Indorsement of the proposed East Capitol street site for the District municipal staduim and opposition to the construction of the Penal Wharf in the Southeast was also voted by Barry Farms Citizens Association.

The association voted approval of the Sumners resolution for District suffrage. The members asked establishment of the National Guard armory in Southwest.

Logan-Thomas Circle

The Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Association opposed the Griffenhagen plan for District government reorganization on the ground that it provided "too much one-man control" and abolished an independent school board and traffic officer.

The group favored the dispensary system for liquor sales here and called on the Federation of Citizens Association to increase efforts to keep the streets clean.

Stanton Park

Capt. Richard Mansfield, of the Metropolitan Police Department, told the Stanton Park Citizens Association that playground space in the Ninth Precinct was inadequate for the number of the schools in the area. The group voted that funds be transferred from the Playground Department to the Community Center.

It also urged that the National Guard Armory be built on a site at East Capitol street and the Eastern Branch. Better street lighting for the area was requested.

Burleith

The Public Utilities Commission will re-check facilities on the Burleith-Trinidad bus line in response to complaints of inadequate morning service, the Burleith Citizens Association was told last night. The group met at the Gordon Junior High School, reporting an increase of 44 members. A resolution of respect for the late Lieut. Col. Lewis C. Lucas was passed.

Cathedral Hts.-Cleve. Pk.

Opposition to proposed District inheritance and gift taxes was voted last night by the Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association. The group also went on record in favor of the Sumners resolution granting District residents representation in Congress.

A resolution was adopted requesting the Federation of Citizens Associations to insist that any income tax included in the new revenue law be levied in place of the present intangible personal property tax.

Reading, Writing, Church And Outdoor Exercise Keep Him Busy Despite His Age

(This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are—Editor's note.)

By Gerald G. Gross.

In a day when the art of reciting narrative poems as parlor entertainment is almost dead, Randolph Zeph's accomplishments in the commitment and execution of such pieces as "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" stand out in welcome relief.

Mr. Zeph, a native of Germany, who will be 91 on Friday, has many things to keep him busy—reading, writing, church and outdoor exercise—but one of his favorite diversions is memorizing long ballads and then reeling them off for his family and friends.

As samples, during yesterday's interview in his home at 1328 Hemlock street northwest, he recited snatches of "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" and "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" and, time permitting, he gladly would have declaimed any of the dozens of other poems in his repertoire.

The "Handclasp," publication of the Vaughn Class at Calvary Baptist Church, has this to say about Mr. Zeph in the current issue:

"We felicitate Randolph Zeph on the attainment of his ninety-first birthday anniversary, which occurs next Friday, April 14. He is active, keenly alert to the happenings of the day, regular attendant of the class and goes on the platform for special recitations when asked."

Last November he, his son and daughter took a motor trip into Texas and Mexico. Upon their return to Washington the father wrote up the adventure in detail. Not long ago he completed his autobiography for distribution to his nephews and nieces. Being one of 12 brothers and sisters, Mr. Zeph has nephews and nieces in great number.

Churchgoing, says Mr. Zeph, is desirable not alone for the spiritual values derived but because it helps make one a good citizen. He rarely misses a Sunday.

4 in Auto Found In Agony From Food Poisoning

Discovered in agony from food poisoning in their auto on a Maryland-Washington highway, four persons last night were rushed to Casualty Hospital.

The victims are Frederick K. Sparrow, 61, of 1106 East Capitol street; his wife, Minnie, 63, and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Gabler, of Ontario, Canada.

They were found by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Deuterman, attached to Smithsonian Institution. The patients, it was learned, had been picnicking at Fairhaven Cliff, Anne Arundel County, Md.

Police Bar Fox In City, So Master Gives It to Zoo

It was a sad parting yesterday for Tisky and his master.

"I am consoled, though, by the fact that the Zoo will take good care of my pet," said William H. Hawkins.

Tisky is a red fox, mascot of the Brown Buddy Political Club, Inc., 2228 Georgia avenue northwest, where Hawkins lives, until it was disbanded recently. A policeman told Hawkins he was not allowed to keep a fox in the city.

Official Washington will be led by President Roosevelt in mourning the death of Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Democratic Party whip, at the state funeral in the Senate Chamber at 2:30 p. m. today.

Officiating at the ceremonies will be the Rev. Ze Barney T. Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, who will make the only eulogy in simple rites, Chesley W. Jurney, Senate sergeant at arms, announced.

The entire House Illinois delegation will join a committee composed of the following Senators in superintending the funeral: Lucas, of Illinois; McNary, of Oregon; Borah, of Idaho; Ashurst, of Arizona; Pittman, of Nevada; Barkley, of Kentucky; King, of Utah; Capper, of Kansas; George, of Georgia; Wagner, of New York; Vandenberg, of Michigan; Bailey, of North Carolina; Austin, of Vermont; Clark, of Missouri; Gerry, of Rhode Island, and Minton, of Indiana.

CCC Marks 6th Birthday With Banquet

Roosevelt Message Read by Fechner; Legislators Praise Work of Corps

Five hundred men and women who minister to the daily lives of 300,000 American boys last night celebrated the sixth anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps at a banquet at the Mayflower.

From the director of the CCC, Robert Fechner, they heard read a message from President Roosevelt.

"No job today is more important than the training of our youth to be self-reliant, courageous, independent and aware of our American ideals," said the President.

Permanent Agency Seen

"I believe the boys who have served in the CCC can become better citizens. I believe that there are thousands of other boys who should have the opportunities the CCC offers while they carry out the enormous conservation program that is vital to our welfare. I hope the CCC will long continue, under wise direction, the job it has so well begun."

In the gathering of CCC administrative employes and officials there were members of the House and Senate who predicted Congress would make the corps a permanent agency. One of these was Representative Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the House Labor Committee, who said:

"I am not taking any bets tonight, but if I were I would bet that the Civilian Conservation Corps will become permanent."

Woodrum Praises CCC

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, declared that of all New Deal works none "will be so far in the headlines as this effort to hold out a helping hand to American youth in this time of distress."

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, said he had found some things in the New Deal program that don't "promise much for the future," but confessed he believed:

"A full half century from now a sturdier generation of Americans will trace back to this night."

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and Representatives Cochran, of Missouri, and Johnson, of Oklahoma, all Democrats, were the other speakers. Charles H. Taylor, and assistant CCC director, as toastmaster, introduced Fechner, who was the guest of honor.

Bates Offers Bill To Change Titles At Gallinger

A bill which may lead to another row over the administration of Gallinger Hospital was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Bates (Democrat), of Kentucky.

Bates, who conducted the recent Gallinger inquiry as chairman of the District sub-committee on public health and hospitals, proposed that the titles of the five chief resident physicians be changed to chief medical officers.

He explained it would place them administratively above the staff of visiting physicians though under the chief medical officer provided in the District supply bill as it passed the House. Salary of $5,600 for the resident physicians would remain the same.

Spending Barred Anarchy in U. S., Sen. Thomas Says

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, capped a debate on Government spending by two college teams at a meeting of the Oklahoma Young Democrats of the District at the Willard last night, with the statement there would have been anarchy in the United States without such spending.

He quoted as his authority the spokesman for a large New York bank who testified before a Senate committee last week.

No vote was taken on the debate. Alfred Minish and Jack Hays, of George Washington University law school, argued that Government spending to "prime the pump" should be stopped. Robert Hudson and William Epperson, of the University of Tulsa, argued that it should be continued.

Joint Parole, Welfare Body Opposed

Head of American Association Finds Griffenhagen Plan Undesirable

Assignment of the duties of the Parole Board to the Department of Public Welfare recommended by the Griffenhagen report as well as reducing the present nine-member Board of Public Welfare to a board of three was criticized yesterday by the American Public Welfare Association.

The response to a query by Welfare Director Elwood Street was made by Fred K. Hoehler, director of the association.

Meanwhile, it was learned the District Commissioners had requested the municipal department heads to submit a reporting pointing out the effect of the Griffenhagen recommendations on their departments. Street has already prepared such a report, including his own recommendations.

Hoehler, who arrived in Washington yesterday, met the welfare director to discuss candidates for Street's successor. Street resigned recently to accept a job in Richmond, Va.

Functions Held Conflicting

The association director said it was his "personal opinion that a board of three members is too small . . . because they represent too narrow a range of interests."

His letter to Street, in part, stated:

"Certainly, it is unwise to combine and confuse the functions of the Public Welfare Board and the Parole Board. Not only because of the number of meetings and the time it would consume, but because of the character of the work the parole board should be made up of people who have a specialized interest and capacity; while the Board of Public Welfare should be more of the lay group with the lay approach to public welfare problems, meaning interpretation and other responsibilities usually accepted by the board."

Against Rail Board

Hoehler said a paid board would attract "less competent members."

"People who can get a little money out of it are more inclined to exert political pressure, and the person who might make a very good contribution is usually too conservative and modest to urge that his name be considered because of the stipend," he said.

He said the association has noted the trend in the country was away from paid boards and boards of control to the policy-making and voluntary type.

Copies of the proposed new organic act for the District, to put into effect the Griffenhagen recommendations or reorganization, were sent yesterday to District officials and civic and business leaders by Chairman Kennedy, of the House District sub-committee on reorganization.

"A number of changes have been made in the original Griffenhagen reorganization plan," Kennedy said. He added that a meeting of his subcommittee to examine the new draft would be held, probably later this week.

Suffrage Drive On

The District Suffrage Association last night voted to flood the office of Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, House District Committee chairman, with 25,000 post cards and petition signatures urging a popularly elected city council as part of the District reorganization bill now under consideration.

Wilbur Finch, association president, characterized the campaign as an "eleventh hour fight" to obtain local suffrage by the adoption of an alternate proposal now contained in the Griffenhagen bill reported to the District committee by the Special Committee on District Reorganizaion.

Precinct organizations, similar to those of last year's referendum campaign, will be used to obtain signatures to the petitions and post cards.

Finch declared that "there was something going on behind the scenes" of the reorganization committee, some of whose members "have been approached and lined up against" the local suffrage features of the bill. It explains the fact, he added, that "our suggestions that members of the governing body for the District be elected by the people were given the cold shoulder."

Catholic Library Group Convenes At University

The fiftieth anniversary of Catholic University Library, the one hundredth anniversary of Georgetown University library and the 400th anniversary of printing were celebrated yesterday by the Catholic Library Association at opening of its annual convention at Catholic University.

Dr. Carlos Castaneda, of the University of Texas; Mgr. Peter Guilday, of Catholic University; Dr. David Rubio, of the Library of Congress, and the Rev. Colman Farrell, O.S.B., of Atchison, Kans., president of the national association, spoke.

Slaying of Woman Federal Worker Still Unsolved

Prince Frederick, Md., April 11 (AP).—A coroner's jury reported tonight that Mrs. Esther Lewis, 31, whose body was found in a creek a few miles from here last June, met her death "at the hands of a person or persons unknown to members of this jury."

Mrs. Lewis, a former resident of Mexico and widow of a World War veteran, was employed in a Government building at Washington.

Pound Master Marks hands Wimpy a message to deliver

Pride of the Pound, Once Candidate for Gas Chamber, Now Serves as Office Boy And Knows Workers by First Names

Wimpy, neurotic toy Spitz, pride of the Pound and pooch with a purpose, was put through his paces yesterday in advance of "National Be Kind to Animals Week" to demonstrate what a little kindness will do.

Wimpy proves, in the opinion of Poundmaster Frank B. Marks that some dogs have their day too soon; that if he had led Wimpy to oblivion as the rules might have indicated, well, "look here," said Marks:

He scribbled some words on paper and, calling the small white dog, said: "Deliver this message to Clyde." Now Clyde was one man among several who stood in the Pound enclosure outside the office where Wimpy, like an office boy, sat in a chair in a corner.

Wimpy took the note in his mouth and darted from the door. He dashed straight to Clyde Underwood, an assistant to the poundmaster, and handed over the note.

Now, the point is that Wimpy would have given the note to anyone whose name was given him by Marks. The poundmaster thought the performance extraordinary and marvels at it whenever Wimpy, the pound officeboy, so performs. Wimpy thinks it something, himself, for he barked mightily upon his return to Marks.

Or perhaps it was an indication that Underwood had no message in reply.

Anyhow, with "National Be Kind to Animal Week" beginning Monday, Marks considers the career of Wimpy a proof that people should gain an understanding of dumb animals and try to bring out their best points. For, as he asks, didn't Wimpy, a nervous, ailing pooch, arrive as a candidate for the monoxide gas chamber and didn't he make good? Wimpy has a purpose; he proves something, said Marks.

The Washington Humane Society met yesterday at the Carlton Hotel in seventieth annual session and agreed to ask the Board of Education to plead with boys not to shoot birds and other creatures with air rifles.

The society re-elected Mrs. Herbert W. Elmore as president and other officers as follows: George P. Alt, first vice president; the Rev. C. Ernest Smith, Mrs. R. Ross Perry, Mrs. John C. Boyd and Mrs. Barnes Richardson, vice presidents; Frederick A. Genau, treasurer; H. Vanley Empt, secretary. On the executive committee will be Miss Mary Griffith, Miss Marjorie M. Parry, Wallace J. Hill, Alt, Genau, Miss Agnes G. Farnum, Miss Edna M. Patton, Dr. Henry E. Ewing, William G. Buchanan and Edward A. Preble.

Congressmen Express Shock At D. C. Guard Conditions

Shocked surprise at conditions under which the District National Guard is compelled to carry on its training was the general sentiment of a Congressional delegation which made an inspection tour last night at the invitation of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander.

"The review convinced me that the District should have an armory in keeping with the needs of this city," Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, asserted. "I don't see how they carry on."

Senator Capper added that the "National Capital ought to have an armory as well as a Guard which would be a credit to the country."

He was joined in his expression of astonishment at conditions in the armory, the old National Hotel at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, by other members of the group.

They unanimously declared efforts should be made at once to remedy the present bad conditions under which the Guard carries on its training.

The review was held in the halls of the armory because rain prevented the 1,500 men of the organization from parading on the mall.

Among the group which made the inspecion were Representatives Bolles, of Wisconsin; Sparkman and Jarman, of Alabama, and Albert L. Vreeland, of New Jersey; Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor; Col. Edward G. Bliss, William A. Roberts, former people's counsel here, and Dean Joseph Parkman, of the Columbia University school of engineering.

Committee Split as Merit Hearings End

Members Disagree On Allowing Rating to 250,000 Without Civil Service Tests

With Republican and Democratic members split over the question of whether competitive or noncompetitive examinations should be required in the Ramspeck bill to extend the merit system to some 250,000 Government employes, public hearings on the measure were concluded yesterday.

The fate of the bill, members admitted, will depend upon settlement of the examination issue. President Roosevelt is said to have made it known that he would veto the bill if competitive tests are ordered.

The Ramspeck bill, which now has the non-competitive test provision, was approved at yesterday's hearing by spokesmen for several employe organizations.

Among those who testified in support of the bill are Charles J. Stengle, American Federation of Government Employes; Luther C. Steward, National Federation of Federal Employes, and Jacob Baker, United Federal Workers of America.

H. Elliott Kaplan, executive secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League, said that the proposal for competitive examinations, as asked by Republican members of the committee, is "idealistic." He intimated that he considered the bill does not have a chance if it is designed to throw incumbent Democratic office holders out of jobs.

Representative Edith Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts said she considered it unfair to permit some Federal employes to come into the merit system without competitive examination, while requiring it of others in the older executive departments.

Stengle characterized the "idealistic procedure" of open examinations as impractical.

Jury to Investigate Brown Kidnaping

Investigation into the unsolved kidnaping of Mary Brown, 18, of Oxon Hill, will be made during the current session of the Prince Georges County grand jury, it was reported last night.

The victim of the kidnaping which baffled an intensive police investigation by Maryland and Washington police will herself be summoned to the witness stand, it was learned. Maj. Elmer Munshower, former Maryland State superintendent, also will testify.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Gertrude Lawrence Given 'Key to the Capital City'

Star of 'Skylark' Holds Two Opposing Posts; 'Trojan Women' Opens at Wardman Tonight; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE, starring in Samson Raphaelson's new comedy-drama, "Skylark," at the National this week, is more than one of the contemporary theater's most brilliant and most versatile actresses. She also is "Good Will Ambassadress" for both the New York and the San Francisco world's fairs. That should clinch the matter of her versatility.

BELL

In this dual capacity, Miss Lawrence yesterday held court, in a manner of speaking, in the office of the Hon. Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of District Commissioners, invited all and sundry to attend both expositions and otherwise exercised the genial functions of her coast-to-coast portfolio. In return for all of this warming camaraderie, Miss Lawrence was presented with a key to the city by Commissioner Hazen.

It would be interesting to know precisely what this key will unlock. However, it should be a matter of small importance to Miss Lawrence, to whom all of the desirable avenues to further eminence already are open in the National Capital.

It is only a partial corroboration of what this department always has thought of Miss Lawrence and her artistry that she should be given the unique post of "Good Will Ambassadress" of both world's fairs. The rivalry between the Eastern seaboard and the Pacific slope being what it is, it is a high tribute to the charm, the diplomacy and the perspicacity of any artiste, whether of the stage or not, that she can span the continent with her amiable graces and serve two masters who, in the parlance of the day, get along like two strange bulldogs!

And speaking of Miss Lawrence and "Skylark," it may not be too late to pick up some of the tangled shreds of yesterday morning's review of the play that were snipped off and left on the "cutting-room floor" during the hectic procedures of a midnight makeup. We, of course, have nothing to retract in the matter of what was said concerning the performance of the star, Donald Cook, her leading man, and Glenn Anders. There is a little something in the way of apology, nevertheless, that might be said for the omission of the passages that related to the comparably able impersonations of their roles by Walter Gilbert, a former leading man with the National Theater Players and, it seems to me, cast opposite Ethel Barrymore in "Scarlet Sister Mary;" Lee Patrick, who made a believable character out of a fantastic authorial creation; Ann Driscoll, a blonde and seductive Mrs. Franklin; Olga Hansen, William David and numerous others in the cast who will go far toward making "Skylark" the hit it seems destined to be, once it is finally whipped into shape. It is out of deletions like Monday night's that paragraphs like Wednesday's are made.

I quote to you what Pinch-Hitter Dick Coe quoted to me concerning "Let Freedom Ring," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, starring Nelson Eddy, which he saw in preview yesterday and I didn't.

"Striking up the band, a matter in the films which is frequently more embarrassing than inspiring, is handsomely handled in 'Let Freedom Ring.' Besides being a rip-roaring tale of the early railroads of the West, it presents Nelson Eddy as a bang-up actor who has lost much of that wooden quality which has frequently laid him open to the mockery of his critics.

"There is little to complain about in Ben Hecht's screen play. It is no original tale, but it has been handled with a freshness of direction for its homespun plot. Mr. Hecht knows what goes and what doesn't with audiences and when he does see fit to weave a plot about the upstanding young man who returns from Harvard and up-pulls a Scarlet Pimpernel on his old friends to root out the bad 'uns from Wall Street, Mr. Hecht is most astute. It is through this story—in which comic Charles Butterworth every once in a while whispers, 'Now, we're getting like 'East Lynn'—that a strong cry for democracy as we in America know it is heard.

"Eddy sings a few simple songs, mostly Irish melodies and 'America,' but his acting and fighting are well up to the level of the recent surge of Western heroes from 'Stand Up and Fight' to 'Dodge City.'

"Victor McLaglen, Lionel Barrymore, Virginia Bruce, Edward Arnold and Charles Butterworth are at the top of the large company which is filmed in the easy-on-the-eyes sepia tint. 'Let Freedom Ring' plays the Capitol the week of April 21, two weeks away."

So there you have it.

If you should find it necessary to contact one or another of the local drama desks tomorrow, it is suggested that the place to do it would be the Bowie race track. It seems that Laurence Olivier, who plays the leading male role in "Wuthering Heights," the filmization of the novel by Emily Bronte, will be a Washington visitor on Thursday and will be present at the track to present a trophy to the winner of the Wuthering Heights Handicap—or whatever it is. The critics have been asked to tag along on the assumption that this would be a fine time to have a few words with Mr. Olivier. Who ever had a few words with anybody when his two bucks was trailing the field? This query, as goes without saying, is predicated upon the proved contention that we can stop any horse in the world with a $2 bill. Don't argue. Look at all the times we have done it!

In case it had slipped your mind, this would be as good a time as any to offer the reminder that the Civic Theater's production of "The Trojan Women" opens at Wardman Park tonight. It will be continued through Saturday and then, next week, will be presented again, on the same stage, from Wednesday through Saturday. This sort of thing might go on for weeks, if the play is a hit—and most of the Civic's presentations are.

A few vagrant implications to the contrary notwithstanding, the Variety Club benefit performance for the welfare fund was not last Monday night upon the occasion of Gertrude Lawrence's Washington premiere in "Skylark." That event comes along next Monday night, when Nazimova will be seen at the National in "The Mother." Tickets are now being distributed—and they are in the most favorable spots in the house—by Dr. Archie Engel, 1416 F street. It would be smart to get yours now and not labor under the delusion that the time is past to do the welfare fund some genuine good. It has done a great deal of genuine good for Washington.

Gay Premieres Being Held in Biggest Cities

The coming of spring this year heralds a new era in Hollywood showmanship, with world premieres of half a dozen of the season's major pictures in widely scattered sections of the country.

Scorning Hollywood and its sated audiences, and following Cecil B. De Mille's precedent of having his pictures make their first bow in sections of the country from which they stem, premiere-bound producers, like Stephen Leacock's horseman, seem to be galloping off in all directions.

De Mille himself will unveil his latest lusty br child, "Union Pacific," in Omaha on April 28 amid a setting probably unprecedented in premiere annals. Trouping to the scene in a special train consisting of the Union Pacific railroad's latest steam-electric turbine, coupled to a vintage locomotive and cars used in the picture, will be De Mille, Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman and other members of the cast.

Cities Help

Civic agencies are co-operating to the extent of erecting false Western fronts along the main streets to tone with a pioneer motif, and declaring a three-day celebration to be known as the "G 'den Spike Days." Forty members of the "Burnt Thigh" tribe of South Dakota Indians will make their home in an Indian stockade built around the union station throughout the celebration. Conventions of railroad oldtimers, parades, dinners, balls and other fetes will enliven the event. And the demand for tickets has been so great that the picture will premiere simultaneously in three Omaha first-run houses.

Another special is scheduled to freight yet another galaxy of Hollywood presenages to the premiere of 20th Centu. -Fox's "The Life of Alexander Graham Bell," to be revealed to the public for the first time at the Golden Gate International Exposition.

Off to Dallas

As a prelude, "Man About Town," starring Jack Benny and Dorothy Lamour, is be launched in Dallas, Tex. Martha Raye journeyed to Phoenix, Ariz., to set "Never Say Die," in which she co-stars with Bob Hope, on its way.

And this week will see another premiere in Kansas City, when Director Ted Reed will send off Paramount's "I'm From Missouri," in which Bob Burns stars with Miss George opposite.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 11 (INS).—Walter Damrosch starts his movie career at the age of 71, which is top news not only to us in Hollywood but to the entire music world. He comes here to conduct his orchestra in certain scenes in Bing Crosby's picture, "The Star Maker," at Paramount. Among those special scenes will be the introduction of Linda Ware (real name Beverly Stillwagon). She is the little girl whose voice so charmed Charles Rogers that he signed her believing he had another Deanna Durbin.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Apparently Charlie, who was at Universal when Deanna shot to fame, will try the same formula for Linda and Damrosch as he did for the little Durbin and Stokowski in "100 Men and a Girl." Damrosch and his orchestra will accompany Linda in her songs just as Stokowski did for Deanna.

Ann Sheridan is moving all her "oomph" paraphernalia, including an extensive wardrobe, from Warner Brothers to Walter Wanger's for the role of the American-born duchess in "Winter Carnival." This is the first picture Ann has made off the home lot and at first I was a little surprised that Warners would loan her because Ann is going like a house afire now. But on second thought, Walter did an awful lot for that other "oomph" girl, Hedy Lamarr when she went on loan for "Algiers"— which may have been a factor in the deal. As soon as Lester Cole and Bud Schulberg finish the script of "Winter Carnival," Director Charles Reisner and Wanger will go looking for a male lead to make love to Ann.

Five letters in today's mail suggesting that RKO lose no time in getting George Murphy to dance with Ginger Rogers on account of the public feels Miss Rogers cannot go it alone in a musical. I'll have to dash those hopes right now for George Murphy goes into "Broadway Melody" with Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell and it looks as if it's going to be 100 per cent dansical. Money won't be stinted on Fred's first for M-G-M realizes how important it is to start their new star off on the right foot. Cole Porter, famous song writer, is being sought to write the music and if the deal is made Cole will come West to consult with the studio heads.

Joan Crawford was her own fashion reporter today when she and her manager, Mike Levee, appeared in court for her divorce. The hour was early and the reporters were all of the male persuasion and not supposed to be up on style notes. "Would you mind telling us," asked one of the boys, "what color you are wearing?" "Certainly," answered the obliging Joan, "it's orchid." "And those flowers?" "They're white violets." So when you read in the news section what Miss Crawford wore when she said adieu to her marriage to Franchot Tone, you will know it was she who personally supplied the data. What next for La Crawford? Well, in a year's time, if she still likes Charlie Martin as well as she does today, I suppose it will be wedding bells for them.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mrs. Wally Vernon went into the California Lutheran Hospital tonight to await the stork's visit. Last time it was twins; Heddy Lamarr, in a colorful Hungarian costume, at the Versailles with her attentive bridegroom, Gene Markey; Mary Duncan writes friends that she and Laddie Sanford, her polo playing bridegroom, are studying grand opera; Donald Briggs and Barbara Read will wed soon; Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Virginia Field, heads together, eating ice cream sodas at the Delhaven; Charlie Chaplin out for the first time since he had the flu, at the Brown Derby with his brother Syd. They joined Dudley Field Malone and Mike Romanoff and the beef discussion was the war threat.

Bert Wheeler's black eye is the result of a baseball which went wrong; Lyle Talbot that devoted to Martha Downs, a Kentucky Belle, at the House of Murphy; get Mrs. Joe E. Brown to do her imitation of Fannie Brice's baby snooks. She is very funny; Una Merkel goes to Suffern to paly "The Greeks Had a Word for It" in stock; A. C. Blumenthal escorting Geraldine Spreckles, out for the first time since she was so badly burned, to a night spot to hear Peggy Fears sing; Edgar Kennedy is going to get to that Kentucky Derby or else—and so is Guy Kibbee; Madeleine Carroll and John Hertz, jr., Bill Howard (not the director but the son of Seabiscuit's owner) with Andrea Leeds and Reggie Gardiner, minus his natty mustache, all glimpsed at the Cafe Lamaze; Hugh Herbert and the missus off for Chicago again for personal appearances.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

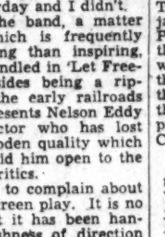
In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., April 11.—A San Francisco chap who has a telescope which he focuses on the stars, thought of a grand stunt and cleaned up on it the night of Twentieth Century's jaunt to his city. The bright lad turned the scope on a hotel room occupied by Loretta Young and hung this huge sign on his car—"The heck with Mars, Venus and Saturn—See Loretta Young—the greatest star of them all."



HOPPER

Incidentally, did you hear about the mob that met Loretta at the train? Her enterprising press agent went ahead and called all the Youngs in the telephone book, offered to pay their taxi fare to the station to give her a hand. And was she surprised! Good thing her name isn't Smith.

Now I've seen everything—the "Dead-enders" are learning to knit and wandered all over the lot yesterday, work in hand. One of them must have dropped a stitch, however, or something, for I overheard Teacher Bonita Granville telling him, "And don't call me BABE!"

An avalanche of letters is pouring into Warners on the Nazi Spy picture which has created such an interest the picture will undoubtedly hold to an all-time high when it opens in New York. Looks as though the present record—24 weeks—is about to be shattered. Now Warner's are considering donating all the profits from the picture to German refu-

...n't say we didn't tell you—that ...care gets 'em all. Gabriel ...s returning two weeks ahead ...ule and Merle Oberon and ...rda are making their little jaunt to Europe a quickie. The picture that Alex planned to make in Europe will be made here instead.

Eddie Cantor who has had a lot to say about the German situation lately, was not among those present. Ruby Keler came on his ticket! Hubby Al Jolson is sunning and mudding at the Hot Springs.

Talked to lovely little Hawaiian dancer, Princess Luana, at the Tropics and got the real lowdown on sarongs. She tells me customary dress in the islands is just a straight square piece of material reaching—ye gods—from the neck to below the knees, and not one opening to show luscious curves. It's made of tapa bark and is really a ceremonial dress. "These movie sarongs would be equivalent to lounging around on the sand in a velvet gown," smiled Luana. Now don't tell me we've glamorized the South Seas! Wonder what we could do to an Eskimo's igloo if we ever put our minds on it?

Nelson Eddy and his bride are taking time out for a brief honeymoon in Havana, land of rumbas and revolutions—his mother is flying down to join them at wife's invitation. What a honeymoon!

Did you know that Vic Fleming made Clark Gable spend the first day after his honeymoon riding horseback? Well, he did.

Walter Brennan, who's been working hard and is badly in need of a vacation, told me he is going to be very ill next week. "Where shall I send the flowers?" "Oh, the ninth hole at Lakeside will get me," he grinned.

Jascha Heifetz, who finished his part in the "Restless Age" some months back, was asked if he had any objection to Joel McCrea doing the love interests in his picture. Heifetz replied, "It's okay with me—I don't care what he does as long as he doesn't play the violin."

Nats Beat Bees, 8-7, on Lewis' Homer in Ninth

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Charlotte, N. C., April 11.—Random (and I mean random) thoughts of a fellow facing the deadline:

Wonder if Monte Weaver will help the Red Sox? There's a chap who's deserving of success. The Nats may not have cut adrift much of a pitcher when they released Weaver to Boston, but they lost an estimable gentleman, as character is measured.

POVICH

Monte was just about the hottest rookie pitcher ever to break into the big leagues. When he won 22 games in 1932, it was a record for rookies in their first full season in the majors. A sensational career loomed before him, but he never was able to match his freshman effort in the big leagues. For a period of four years he wasn't much pitcher at all, and the minors were constantly beckoning.

Monte chafed a bit at his lack of success, but in the main he suffered in silence. He was probably the least profane player ever to wear a big league uniform. I remember particularly a game he was pitching against the Yankees, back in 1936. He was pitching one of his good games, but the Nats were making no runs for him. The Yankees were making runs, but it wasn't Monte's fault.

A Gentleman On and Off the Field

The Yankees were picking up a run here and there on the worst collection of hits ever seen in one ball game. They were getting hits on freak hops, they were laying down teasing bunts that refused to roll foul and they were getting loopers over the infield. Between innings, Monte sat on the bench, wordless. There was just a trace of grimness on his face. Another pitcher would have kicked over the water bucket or beat his head against the steam pipes. Not Monte.

Bucky Harris was sympathizing with him. "Tough luck, Monte," he said. "They're not belting you hard."

Said Monte: "No, durn it, they're not belting me hard—but they're tapping the deuce out of me."

Al Schacht has reached that point of affluence in his baseball clowning where he employs a chauffeur-valet and a booking agent. He says his minimum profits for this season's work will be $30,000. Which means that Schacht is doing very well for himself. He was never more than a $8,000-a-year pitcher, and that was his top salary as a coach with the Nats and the Red Sox.

Who Won That Argument, Griff?

This department remembers the time it inadvertently overheard one of Schacht's salary arguments with Clark Griffith. It went something like this:

Griffith: We're not giving any raises this year. Anyway, what have you done to deserve a raise.

Schacht: I earn my salary clowning in your exhibition games alone. And I didn't make a mistake coaching at third base all year.

Schacht: Whaddayamean, soft job?

Griffith: The way my club is hitting, we don't get a man as far as third base.

Schacht: That's not my fault.

Griffith: That's what I'm saying—you've got a soft job. No worries, no nothing. I have to worry about getting the money to pay the overhead. If my club doesn't pull 'em into the gate, the sheriff will walk in some day and take Griffith Stadium over. What do you have to worry about?

Schacht: All right, I'll make a deal with you.

Griffith: What's that?

Schacht: You take my soft job and my salary, and I'll take over your worries and your pay.

The Main Thing Is to Get on Base

Still at random—Casey Stengel, showing one of his players how to hit the other day, was conked on the head by a wild-pitching rookie . . . He dropped his bat and galloped to first, wanting no more of the fellow's pitching . . . "See," he told his pupil, "any way to get on base." . . . The American League has issued an order to all umpires to face the grandstands when they brush off home plate with their little whiskbrooms . . . Somebody has decided that the umpires look very undignified, bending over the plate and exposing their broad posteriors to the fans . . . The Charlotte Club, which cleared $30,000 last season, is the only farm team owned by the Nats which ever showed a profit . . . There will be no l'affaire Feller on the Washington Club in connection with the case of young Bob Masterson, Bucky Harris' prize rookie pitcher . . . The Cleveland Indians got in dutch with Judge Landis because they signed Feller direct from the sandlots and then put him directly into a Cleveland uniform in violation of the rules . . . The Nats who signed Masterson off the sandlots, will leave him at Charlotte where he will pitch one game and then rejoin the Washington Club as the bona-fide property of the Nats.

Jockey Meade Reinstated by N. Y. Solons

Don to Ride At Jamaica Opening Day

Expect Kentucky To 'Fall in Line' And License Noted Rider Before Derby

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 11.—Don Meade, the great little jockey who was barred from riding three years ago for betting against his own mounts, was put back in the saddle in New York State today by the jockey club.

Along with a license, the stewards of the club gave him a verbal going over which left the little Californian hanging on the ropes, realizing that the faintest hint of infraction of the rules from now on will set him down for keeps.

As a result of the reinstatement, unanimously voted by the seven stewards after the club's three-man license committee had recommended it, Meade will have the leg up on Early Delivery, Mrs. Plunkett Stewart's colt, in the Paumonok Handicap, feature of the opening program of the metropolitan racing season at Jamaica Saturday.

May Ride Derby Entry

It was believed that Kentucky would fall in step immediately, and that the jockey might be aboard a mount in the Kentucky Derby, May 6.

Since the violation of the rules occurred in Florida, and since that State, after suspending him originally, decided to give him another chance, the New York stewards held it was not up to them to stand in the way of the 25-year-old rider.

Meade was suspended March 4, 1936, by the Florida commission after a lengthy investigation which included tapping of telephone wires, by which it was discovered he had violated the rule prohibiting jockeys from being interested financially in horses other than their mounts. Other States immediately followed with suspensions.

Rode 91 Florida Winners

After pleading for reinstatement several times, Meade was licensed in Florida again last December 19, and wound up as the leading jockey during the winter season, scoring with 91 mounts.

Meade was summoned before the New York stewards personally to give his side of the story.

"I realize my mistake," the jockey told the stewards. "And I've benefited from it. Since my suspension, I have stayed strictly away from all the things which got me into trouble. You can examine my conduct on and off the tracks and see for yourselves."

Georgetown Nine Defeats Pitt, 10 to 7

Hoyas Still Unbeaten After Four Games but Team Remains Shaky

By Jack Munhall.

Continuing to play streaky baseball and continuing also its newly-acquired but unfortunate habit of shooting its offensive bolt in a couple of big innings, Joe Judge's Georgetown nine registered its fourth victory of an undefeated season yesterday, outlasting Pittsburgh, 10-7, in a crazy-quilt battle at the Hilltop Field.

Before approximately 1,500 spectators, among them George Marshall, owner of the Redskins; Eddie Ainsmith, Walter Johnson's old battery mate and present New York Giant Scout, and Representative James H. Fay, of New York, the unpredictable Hoyas turned in an unconvincing triumph over Pitt's first varsity team in 15 years.

In support of the statement that the Hoyas' victory was unconvincing it should be mentioned that only seven of their runs were earned; that they required three pitchers to restrain the hard-hitting Panthers and that they still ran the bases as though they enjoyed divine protection from the enemy fielders.

Second Win for Reynolds

Capt. Bill Reynolds, who worked well in his first start this season as he beat American University, received credit for his second straight victory, though he was not around at the finish. Wild and minus his stuff, Reynolds retired from the hectic contest at the end of the fifth. He was replaced first by "Big Ed" Kowalski, Judge's original starting choice, who was even wilder, and by Johnny Smith who pitched hitless ball the final two innings.

The only reason that Reynolds' name is recorded as the "winning" pitcher is the big "7" that appears in the first inning run column for Georgetown. Aided no little by the promenading tactics of Pitt's first hurler, a gent who answers to the fancy name of Joe Pommersheim, who walked five, and by three hits and two passed balls and an error, it seemed the Hoyas were

Circuit Blow Comes With Two on Base

Six Four-Baggers Hit During Game Locals Outhit, 14-11, By National Leaguers

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charlotte, N. C., April 11.—Six home runs soared out of Charlotte's little Piedmont Park today in a prolonged session of long-range firing by the Nats and Boston Bees. There were home runs to left, home runs to center and home runs to right. But the most important home run was socked by John Kelly Lewis, of the Nats.

With the Bees leading by two runs in the ninth, two Nats on base and one out, Lewis lifted a pitch over the rightfield wall and the Nats to an 8-7 victory.

The Bees were hitting well but not wisely in this battle of homers. Like the Nats they drove three balls out of the park, but they were hitting their homers with the bases empty. The Nats' three home run clouts were laden with six runs.

George Case set the style for the day when he whacked one of Joe Sullivan's pitches over the center field wall in the third inning. It was the only Washington homer which didn't produce more than one run. A bit later Bobby Estalella whaled a homer over the left field wall with Lewis on base, and in the ninth, as we were saying, Lewis delivered his blow with two colleagues waiting for something to happen.

Home Run Heroes

Deb Garms, Ralph Hodgin and Tony Cuccinello were the Bees' home run heroes. They suddenly broke out into a rash of homers in the eighth inning against Bucky Jacobs. Hodgin and Cuccinello drove balls out of the park on consecutive pitches by young Jacobs.

Back on the scene of their triumphs of last year as Charlotte pitchers, Jacobs and Arnold Anderson were blasted off the mound by the Bees after Joe Haynes had turned in a clever five-inning job for the Nats. Harris had to call in Old-Timer Harry Kelly to quell Boston disturbances in the eighth and ninth innings. Actually, the Nats were outhit, 14 to 11, but they profited from two bases on balls which preceded Lewis' game-winning homer.

Haynes, a product of the Nats' Charlotte farm, did a capable job of pitching in the five innings he worked. He didn't allow a run, walked only one batter and gave up four hits, permitting only one man to reach third base. He had a 5-0 lead when he turned the job over to big Anderson.

Sullivan Weakens

The Nats fell on Joe Sullivan suddenly in the third inning. The former Tiger lefthander, after getting two out in the inning, pitched a home run ball to Case, and then he pitched a single to Lewis. At this point, Estalella, hero of Charlotte's championship team of 1938, whistled his homer over the left field fence.

They picked up two more runs against Sullivan in the fifth and this time they did it with singles—four of 'em. The blows were delivered in succession by Haynes, Case, Lewis and Estalella.

Bucky Harris didn't tolerate Anderson long. Giving him the pitching assignment in the sixth, he saw the big righthander give up three runs on a single by West, a walk to Garms, Hassett's triple to the centerfield wall and an infield out. Jacobs got the job in the seventh.

Jacobs escaped the seventh inning, but he was violently handled by the Bees in the eighth. Garms banged a home run over the rightfield wall and, after Hassett flied out, Hodgin hit one to the same sector to tie the score. On the next pitch, Cuccinello put the Bees in a 6-5 lead with a homer over the leftfield barrier.

Canzoneri Held to Draw

New York, April 11 (INS).—Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight king, and Jimmy Vaughn, rugged Cleveland battler, fought to a draw in an eight-round encounter before 10,000 fans at the Bronx Coliseum tonight.

On the Line

—With Considine

New York, April 11.—The New York Yankees lost their President Jake Ruppert last winter, and a few weeks ago they nearly lost his successor, Ed Barrow. For some reason the near tragedy was hushed. This is its first printing.

CONSIDINE

Barrow and Mrs. Barrow were fishing from a heavy rowboat in a little tropical stream outside of Sebring, Fla. While changing his place in the boat, the 71-year-old boss of the Yanks tripped and fell heavily into the snake-and-'gater-infested creek. He was fully dressed.

He came up sputtering for air and seized a rope dangling out of the boat. But he was afraid he'd upset the boat if he tried to climb in, however, so he began swimming for the shore—pulling the heavy boat behind him. The "shore" was an inviting looking sand bar. He was nearly all in when he made it.

Breathing a sigh of relief, Barrow stood up and began pulling the boat into shallower water. But suddenly he found himself sinking again. He was in quick-sand, and in a frightening moment he was up to his knees. Mrs. Barrow, using an oar as a pole, pushed the boat in behind her husband just in time for him to sit down on the edge of the boat. Then using the boat as a platform, he pulled his legs out of the mire that was rapidly burying him alive.

Barrow then had to row a mile and a half against the current to get to the place where he had left his car, and, still ringing wet, drove 17 miles back to town.

But instead of going to bed for a week to recover from the physical and spiritual beating he had taken, Barrow was up at 4 o'clock the next morning to go fishing with Rex Beach. He looked better than ever today when we called on him at his Manhattan office.

This is Barrow's first season as the Yankee prexy. But the boys had better not pick on him. The man makes endurance-champion Gehrig look like a sissy.

Baseball Stamp Is "Muggless"

After all that to-do about whose mugg would make the baseball stamp it has been decided that the design will be a baseball diamond, with tiny figures manning the various positions. Doubt concerning the exact of 'in of the game, plus the Government's fear of being accused of favoritism, led to the shelving of plans to put a single person's picture on the stamp. The adhesives go on sale June 12 at the Cooperstown, N. Y. postoffice. It will be in the shape of a special delivery and colored purple. Jim Farley's office, for some reason or other, received many protesting letters about issuing it at all. Many philatelists are still in a dudgeon, if anybody cares.

Chick Kenny, who blew the publicity bugle for the University of Pittsburgh and Catholic University football teams, and who is now the Richard Harding Davis of "The National Stamp News," tells me that the baseball stamp won't be the first sports stamp. A few years ago the Republic of Colombia put out a stamp showing Ty Cobb sliding into a sack. The umpire was giving him the old safe sign, and the idea behind it was that Colombian bonds were safe to buy, or something. Ecuador has issued stamps showing a steeplechaser, a muscle moll finishing a hundred-yard dash, a tennis player making a volley, the Olympic flame-pot, and a fighter landing a kayo punch to the whiskers of another bum.

Tale of an Ale-Tanked Tanker

Here's a story about Sam Langford that I've never heard before. When the tar baby was on the skids he was brought to Europe to tank for a blighter named Ian Hague. Sam was supposed to go in the fifth and with that predetermined knowledge he took on a comforting load of ale just before the fight.

Obediently he offered his face to Ian's fluffy jabs for a couple of rounds, but the ale was stewing in him and it wasn't making him mellow. It was working the other way. His palms began to itch every time he looked at the inviting chin of the British fighter, and the crowd was beginning to irritate him beyond endurance. Every time Ian would fluff Sam one on the face, the immaculately groomed audience at Albert Hall would politely call "heah! heah!"

Sam finally dispatched one of his handlers down to the ringside to find out what they were saying. He came back in a moment and reported to Sam that one of the aloof fans had told him that they were simply expressing approval in a decent way. There would be none of the vulgar feet stomping and yelling indulged in by American fans, the Englishman told the handler.

Sam shuffled out for the fifth, and took a dozen puffy punches. His palms began to itch again, and then he heard—after one particularly feeble punch by Hague—that infernal "heah! heah!"

Sam feinted the big bloke and hit him with a pulverizing left hook that knocked Hague flat and cold. And in the dead silence that followed this thunder-clap of power old Sam, full of ale and mischief, stood over the snoring fighter, pointed down and said, "there! there!"

Boston Wins, Leads Hockey Series, 2 to 1

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, April 11.—Unleashing a furious third-period attack, the Boston Bruins defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 1, tonight before a capacity crowd of 14,455 at Maple Leaf Gardens to take a two-games-to-one lead in their final playoff series for the Stanley Cup.

The unexpectedly decisive triumph again made the Bruins, winners of the National Hockey League championship during the regular 1938-39 season, strong favorites to whip the Leafs in the best-four-of-seven series for the world professional title.

After conquering the New York Rangers in the first round of playoffs, the Bruins had been expected to make rather short work of the speedy but erratic Leafs. But the odds dwindled after Toronto had held them to a 2-to-1 count in the first game, then won the second at Boston, 3 to 2, in overtime.

Tonight the Bruins showed their championship caliber for the first time during the final series. They checked the Leafs into submission for two cautious periods, then outskated and outfought them in the third to tally three times in 13 minutes. The long Toronto goal came in the final minute, when

Return of Sad Sam Marked by Injury

New York, April 10 (INS).—Sad Sam Jones, crafty pitcher for many years in the American League, who retired at the age of 42, a few years ago, essayed to pitch in his home town, Woodsfield, Ohio, late last summer. It was one of those married men vs. single men affairs. A batter hit a line drive back at Sam. Sam stuck out his hand. Result—one broken finger.

Ainsmith, Now Giant Scout, Praises Hoyas' Sophomore

Former Catcher of Walter Johnson Sees Pajak As Good Prospect; Will Visit Terps Today

The stocky, middle-aged man whose old fedora hat masked his friendly, weather-beaten features, didn't say much, didn't change his bland expression one whit even when Georgetown's wild sophomore nine smashed over seven runs in the first inning.

He was unmoved by the chatter of the crowd, some 1,500 lively fans who imbibed deeply of the breath of spring. Squarely in the center of the throng he sat unobtrusively, his eyes roving from one player to another, as a mother searches for a lost child.

For it didn't make much difference to Eddie Ainsmith, the old National catcher and the famed battery mate of Walter Johnson, which team won the game. His business was not as a spectator. Ainsmith is dealing in human ivory now. He is on a never-ending hunt for big league base-

Golfer Scores 425-Yard Ace

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 11 (AP). George Cardwell, Winston-Salem business man, walloped home a hole-in-one on the 425-yard ninth hole of the Hillcrest golf course today. Ken Abels, Hillcrest pro, said it was the longest ace ever made.

The first 325 yards of the hole are on level fairway, with the last 100 yards on a downhill lie. Cardwell's tee shot, members of his foursome said, carried in a stiff wind about 340 yards on the fly, hit the sloping part of the fairway and bounded into the cup.

Nats to Open At Home Today Against Bees

The 1939 edition of the Washington club will be unveiled before Griffith Stadium fans this afternoon in an exhibition game with their traveling companions, the Boston Bees.

Washington fans today will get their first glimpses of (1) Bobby Estalella as an outfielder, (2) Charley Gelbert at shortstop in a Washington uniform and (3) Catcher Jake Early.

Manager Bucky Harris has reserved a pair of lefthanded pitchers for the Nats' home coming game. He will send against the Bees Ken Chase and Rene Monteagudo, the little Cuban who has been profoundly impressive in all of his exhibition game assignments.

Yesterday's victory over the Bees at Charlotte was the third straight for the Nats.

Price Right, Good Odds Gallops to Victory at Bowie

Oros, Nation's Leading Jockey, Rides 101st Winner at Bowie

High Hedge Wins Feature By 2 Lengths

Aurora, Ill., Boy Scores Triple; Loses Apprentice Allowance Early Next Month

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., April 11.—Bringing Fight Back home a length and a quarter ahead of New Deal in the seventh race at the Bowie meeting today, Apprentice Jockey Johnny Oros rode winner No. 101 for this year, No. 3 for the day and No. 15 for the meeting, bolstering his standing as the Nation's leading rider.

High Hedge, 6-year-old speedster, which once sold for $55 at a Virginia auction, scored his second victory in three starts by taking the Hardcastle Purse two lengths in front of Mrs. C. W. Williams' Zostera, favorite in the field of six, who finished second, ahead of H. G. Bedwell's Teddy Patic.

Loses Allowance Next Month

Oros, 17-year-old Aurora, Ill., boy, piloted his first winner of the day, No. 99 for the year, in the second race, riding Lady Orchid. He brought the filly up from behind to win going away and pay $8.20. Oddesa Lad was second and Boston Mary, a field horse, finished third in a field of a dozen over the 6-furlong route.

Making an even 100 winners for the year, Oros brought Pascua, at $11.80, and stablemate of Lady Orchid, home first in the sixth race. Pascua downed Darby Du by a neck. Scoria was third in the field of seven 3-year-olds over a mile and 70 yards.

With Fight Back's victory in the seventh, Oros, who will lose his apprentice allowance May 12, stepped far ahead in the race for the Maryland Writers' watch award. He was never seriously threatened in this race after taking the front going to the first turn. Miss Ponne, favorite in the field of nine, brushed off the mile and sixteenth test in fifth place.

D. C. Jockey Scores

Jockey Eddie Smith, Washington boy, taking High Hedge over the six furlongs in 1:13 2-5, asked for little that resembled speed at the end. Despite belief of many in the crowd of 7,500 that he would stop today, High Hedge, with an $8.10 price tag attached, seemed to have plenty left at the wire. Smith nursing his speed near the end. Attempts of Red Jack and Zostera appeared not to worry the veteran.

The combination of 6 and 9 was the favorite in the daily double, which paid $36.60, with 348 tickets sold. Mighty Busy, owned by J. M. Trapnell and trained by the track superintendent, took the opening event to pay $9.30, downing High Betsy and Pine Tag, the favorite.

Good Odds took the fourth race at $26.10, downing Romaunt and Short Cake in a blanket finish, with Apprentice C. Friedman riding. T. A. Sears' Onisac, trained by Max Smart, of Washington, took the day's juvenile race. The Masked Marvel II filly paid $5.20, winning going away. Donnagina was second, and Snobbis Lady third. Time for the half mile was 0:48 4-5.

Blue Peter, Fox Cub 10-1 in Epsom Derby

London, April 11 (AP).—The Earl of Roseberry's Blue Peter and Edward Esmond's Fox Cub tonight were made the 10 to 1 joint favorites for the May 24 running of the Derby at Epsom. The previous choice, William Woodward's American-owned Foxbrough II, fell off to 100 to 6 as the result of his poor showing in yesterday's Coventry Stakes.

Terps Trail W. & L. As Rain Halts Game

Lexington, Va., April 11 (AP).—Washington and Lee's Generals were leading the University of Maryland, 1 to 0, in a Southern Conference baseball game here this afternoon when rain halted the contest in the first half of the fourth inning.

Bearing Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

The economic crisis will straighten itself out as naturally as an eel in a water pipe. But somebody will take the credit like Samuel Lever's Dublin lad who got paid for piloting the ship that showed him the way home.

Europe wants to do business with us but we have all the gold and won't take notes for an answer.

So it looks as if we will have to accept 'em for barter or for worse.

HIGH HEDGE, sent to front under restraint, was rated along in front and easily held ZOSTERA safe. The latter was hard ridden while closest to pace and closed gamely, but could not menace winner. TEDDY PATIC raced wide and weakened slightly under drive in closing sixteenth. LITTLE DRIFT closed gamely from sluggish beginning.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:01½. Off 5:03½. Winner, J. Kugelman's br. f. PASCUA, well handled, saved ground to backstretch, was rated to stretch, swung out for racing room and under intermittent punishment wore down DARBY DU in final sixteenth. DARBY DU was rushed to front leaving backstretch and weakened in closing test. SCORIA improved his position with rush entering stretch and hung thereafter. HELEN'S LAD set early pace and weakened.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:31. Off 5:33. Winner, Mrs. M. A. FIGHT BACK, hustled to front going to first turn and rated while setting pace, was not seriously threatened at any stage, but was under drive at end. NEW DEAL raced close up from start, came around on outside approaching stretch, but hung in final test. FRANCO SAXON was keen forward factor from beginning, but weakened. MACMAC was bothered when ROCKY MEADOW stumbled at first turn, trailed field to backstretch and closed with good energy. INACTIVE had speed for a half. He bled and was pulled up. MISS PONNE was held safe throughout.

At The Post

Dear Al:

Jockey Johnny Adams, champion rider in 1937 and runner-up to Johnny Longden for national honors last year, was a visitor at the track. He is making his headquarters at Havre de Grace, where he is helping prepare Porter's Mite for the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. He will begin riding in earnest at the Graw meeting. Johnny Oros tells me he loses his apprentice allowance on May 12. Rancho Girl will be shipped to New York after tomorrow's engagement in the Kindergarten stakes. Cleaning Time has been added to Starter Jim Milton's schooling list. M. B. Goss has sold Brooke Herod to J. S. Kelly at private terms. We'll catch that one at Charles Town. Hirsch Jacobs is splitting his stable and will send one division to New York and the other to the "Graw." I loved the way Art Brown, the thin man, swung the race program from horses to horticulture yesterday afternoon. Bowie deserves attention this afternoon with the first 2-year-old stake of the season scheduled. Ten frisky youngsters will break from the half pole and there should be plenty of action before a winning number is hung. The field numbers a majority of juveniles who have been winners at the meeting. Rancho's Girl, Pimlico Queen, Nicky and the others have lots of foot and should give the fans an interesting, if short race. They tell me that when High Hedge won here last week the bookies up Berryville way had to sell their tractors to pay off. In a close finish, the judges generally give the mutuel department a flash on the horse they believe has won. This flash, made before the picture comes down, is to aid the department in figuring the pay-off. Last Saturday, in that Honey Cloud-Challephen finish, the judges flashed Challephen. This was the first time at the meeting they have been wrong. The picture, of course, showed Honey Cloud. The stewards are getting mighty tough on the photographers. They have issued orders that the picture boys can't work here and they can't work there. It all started with the picture that showed Anticosti in the money when the official camera failed to get the horse. There is one thing certain the papers and news services don't have to get pictures. Perhaps the stewards are sore because the boys don't come up on the roof and snap them instead of the horses.

BILL.

First race—Balcony had speed her last start in Florida and is reported rounding to form after a poor season in the South. She is the class of the field and has raced well over this track. Amhurst will be the one to beat on the merits of his third to Golden Vein last week. Ruth Lerner was a consistent winner at Oaklawn, figures to be close.

Second race—War Grand came from behind to take third place to modern Age Friday and previously whipped a fair field of platers at Oaklawn. Appears the best tooday. Ann Mowlee was a sweet filly last year that has begun to find herself. Looks like the contention. Heavy Mist raced well in New Orleans and drops down today.

Third race—Foreign Legion dropped a close one to Turkish Brand, showed good efforts in Florida and will be on edge to earn the brackets. Spartan Lady closed full of run in her last and may prove dangerous. Nancy Mae is ordinary but figures for the show.

Fourth race—Pagliacci won going away with this bunch Saturday and is beginning to display the good form he showed in New York last summer. Should shoulder his top impost and win by himself. Short Distance was a good mare in Florida but ran her heart out against Stagehand. Dangerous on best effort. Drudgery is back in form and should take the third money.

Fifth race—Rancho's Girl turned back a good field on a tough, deep track last week and the unbeaten daughter of Cohert should have little difficulty in whipping these juveniles. Pimlico Queen has sported her wares at the expense of all comers at Bowie and may be the one to upset the dope. Halcyon Boy, a good colt in Florida, has an outside chance.

Sixth race—Old Jake stands out as the class of this field and will like the mile and a furlong distance. Last with better grade platers last out but meets greatly inferior company in this. Lauerman took the top on cheap ones but quit in his last, figures the best of the others. Lucre Lude may redeem a poor effort of last week.

Seventh race—Happy Road has been knocking right on the door running with this company and gets the call in an open race. Will move up in off going. Chief Evergreen was nosed out by Playmore Saturday and will be on edge to make the pace hot. Prettylass closed well behind Playmore, showing that she has raced herself into condition.

Briery and Mordecai At Downs for Classic; Jockey Breaks Leg

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—Two Kentucky Derby eligibles arrived from Miami today as four others left Churchill Downs for Keeneland Race Course near Lexington, Ky.

The Miami augumentations to the Derby colony were Briery, owned by E. R. Morris, Louisville, and Ramsey and Smith's Mordecai.

Trainer Boy Waldron of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way Stables took On Location, No Competition, Sports Writer and Rule All to Lexington for the opening of Keeneland Thursday, saying he wanted to see the quartet under colors before definitely making his selection from the stable for the Derby.

During the morning workouts, Jockey Charles Landolt, veteran Louisville rider, suffered a broken leg when his mount, A. C. Ernst's Alhalon, a 2-year-old, shied and threw him.

Technician, Herbert Woolf's Derby eligible, again proved he would ask no quarter where track conditions are concerned as he frisked through the mud in 1:22 3-5 for three-quarters. The son of Insco was under stout restraint throughout.

Mrs. K. Weil's Sleepy Tom, a Derby "dark horse," rattled off seven furlongs in the exceptional speed of 1:31 3-5. Sleepy Tom, unlike in previous workouts, showed no inclination to "tail off" the last part of the distance.

Derby Week Rates Set by Hotel Managers

Louisville, Ky., April 11 (AP). Hotel managers today quoted rates for the last three days of the week of the Kentucky Derby ranging from $30 to $75.

Managers said prices of rooms in the five large downtown hotels range from $10 to $20 daily with the proviso guests must pay for a minimum of three days.

Two of the largest hotels are quoting rates of $60 per single room with bath for the three-day period—May 4, 5, 6—and $75 for a single room with twin beds.

Florida Gains Betting Revenue Of $1,968,598

Miami, Fla., April 11 (U.P.).—A record total of $1,968,598 in sports tax revenue for the 1938-39 season was counted by the State treasury tonight while Florida legislators studied proposals which might curtail the amount considerably next year.

The total revenue, which was $30,072 greater than last season's, was the State's share of pari-mutuel wagering, admissions and occupational taxes at Florida's three horse race tracks, ten dog tracks and jai-alai fronton.

Virginia Law May Bar Sale Of Wild Rabbits

Commission Drafts Several Proposals For Game Regulations

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 11.—A proposal to prohibit the sale of wild rabbits, whether shot or trapped, will come up for action before the State Game Commission at its next meeting here on May 1.

The proposal was being drafted today for legal publication incident to final action by the commission. A few years ago there was no ban on the sale of rabbits, but last season the law was amended to make it unlawful to sell rabbits which had been shot.

Other proposals to be acted on at the next meeting include:

To fix the season for hunting with firearms furbearing animals from November 20 to January 10.

To permit the hunting of ring-necked pheasants in Charlotte and Louisa counties from November 20 to January 10. Under the present law there is no open season on these birds in the two counties.

Tribe Hurlers Whip Giants, 9 to 4, in Battle of Home Runs

Tribe Collects 17 Hits; Heath, Seeds Averill Get Homers; Dobson Looks Good

Fort Smith, Ark., April 11 (AP).—Cleveland's batsmen finally caught up with the New York Giants today and belabored two pitchers for 17 hits and a 9-to-4 victory. It was the Tribe's second win in seven clashes this spring and left them all square with 34 victories apiece in six seasons of traveling North together.

Bill Lohrman and Willis Hudlin waged a fairly even mound duel for six innings and quit with Cleveland leading 3-2 on two unearned runs. But Walter Brown gave up ten blows, including ninth-inning homers by Earl Averill and Jeff Heath, for six runs. Zeke Bonura and Bob Seed hit Giant homers.

Bosox Outslug Reds, 11-9; Grove Is Pounded

Petersburg, Va., April 11 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox put on another slugging match today in their northbound exhibition series and the Reds finally took it, 11 to 9.

A fat seventh inning producing five runs clinched the game for the Reds after they had built up to it by drubbing the veteran Lefty Grove for four runs in his four innings.

The Sox broke loose in the eighth for five when Whitey Moore weakened and walked two men to set the stage for a barrage of singles and a triple by Foxx.

Dykes Plays as Chisox Snap Buc's Streak, 13-4

Texarkana, Ark., April 11 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox had so much fun playing with the Pittsburgh Pirates today old Jimmy Dykes rolled up his sleeves and trotted out to try his hand again at third base. The White Stockings won, 13 to 4, breaking an eight-game winning streak for the Buccaneers.

Dykes entered the game in the sixth, forcing a man his first time at bat and driving in two runs in the eighth with a single. He was thrown out trying to score from second on a single, and made a wild throw before the game was called at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

Chicago got 16 hits off Bill Clemensen and Ken Heintzelman, four of them by Walker. Paul Waner, who signed his contract Sunday with Pittsburgh, appeared as a pinch hitter in the eighth but failed to get a hit.

The A's piled up an early 8-to-0 lead, but the Grays tied it up in the seventh. In the ninth, Taylor and Gray hit safely after Boll Nagel lost a chance to make a double play. Rhea hit to left for a single, breaking up the game. Gov. Clyde R. Hoey and other officials saw the A's held hitless in the last four frames by Tom McCrabb and Lefty Reeser. Sam Chapman hit a homer for the A's.

Dodgers Hand Yanks 5-2 Setback in 5-Inning Fray

Greenville, S. C., April 11 (AP).—The Dodgers and a rainstorm both soaked the New York Yankees today. Brooklyn did it for the second straight time, 5-2, in a game cut to five innings by rain.

A crowd of about 5,000 saw the Dodgers land on Bump Hadley in the third for four runs and the ball game. Luke Hamlin, who held the Yanks to six hits, opened with a single. Then Goody Rosen doubled, Pete Coscarart and Gene Moore singled and Fred Sington doubled to finish the rally. The Yanks got their runs in the same inning on Frank Crosetti's homer, a three-bagger by Tommy Henrich and one of the two doubles Joe DiMaggio belted.

Etten Hero, No. 2 A's Shutout Macon Club, 2-0

Macon, Ga., April 11 (AP).—Nick Etten, whose release to Baltimore was announced recently, won a baseball game for Earl Mack's No. 2 Philadelphia Athletics today with a ninth inning hit. Lee Ross, young right-hander, received credit for the 2-to-0 victory over Macon, of the South Atlantic League.

The Athletics bunched three of their five hits in the ninth—singles by Wally Moses and Dee Miles and Etten's hit with two out, which went for three bases. It was recorded as a single because he failed to touch second and was tagged out after the winning runs scored.

Navy's Nine Will Battle Yale Today

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, April 11.—Navy's hammering baseball players will try to fatten their batting averages against Yale pitching here tomorrow.

Yale dropped a 6-4 decision to Georgetown in the Bulldog's start Monday. Navy took a 9-5 win from Harvard Saturday.

The work of the Navy sluggers at the plate has been gladdening the heart of Max Bishop, Navy coach.

Capt. Lem Cooke, Ralph Mann and Pete Powell laced the ball to all corners of the Navy orchard against Vermont and the Crimson.

The defensive work of the infield has also been outstanding, Cooke teaming with Walt McGuinness and Wooding, on first, in a series of double killings.

Jim Madison will probably start on the hill for Navy. Madison and Bruckel have been dividing the starting berth. Bruckel worked against Harvard and will probably draw a rest.

'High-Pressure' Football Defended By Sutherland

Pittsburgh, April 11 (U.P.).—Dr. John Bain Sutherland, "Jock" to the 1,400 friends and admirers attending a testimonial dinner in his honor, tonight bid farewell to sports in Pittsburgh and at the same time voiced the hope that some day he may be asked to return to lead a football team here.

In his talk Sutherland made but one reference to reasons for his resignation late this winter as head coach at the University of Pittsburgh. It was a declaration that he could see no place in "this city of dynamic poetry" for the "verse of daffodils and pink sunsets and milky moonlight and anemic idealism." His remark was an obvious characterization of the sports de-emphasis program which Chancellor John G. Bowman has instituted at Pitt.

Sutherland defended high-pressure football, and pointed out that "I have tried hard to give back part of what I have owed to Pittsburgh" since "I came to this city as a youth from a village in Scotland and found here teachers and good friends to guide me on my way."

Toronto suffered another setback in the second period when Harvey (Busher) Jackson, veteran left winger, suffered a dislocated shoulder as a result of a crashing body check by Eddie Shore, Boston's defense ace.

The Bruins broke the scoring ice before the third period was two minutes old when Bobby Bauer got away with the puck after a struggle with Red Metz and fired a shot that bounced off Goalie Broda's knee and went between his legs into the net. The Leafs ganged up on the Bruin goal and at 8:12 Roy Conacher made it 2-0, hammering home his own rebound after a pass from Bill Cowley on a breakaway play. After another five minutes Conacher sent a fine pass to Jack Crawford for the third Boston goal. In the last minute Doc Romnes cut through the Boston defense and passed to Gus Marker for Toronto's only goal.

going to bat around until darkness intervened. But finally Joe Mahoney (the big sissy!) rolled out on his second appearance of the inning and Georgetown was out—but they were "in" for the game.

For in the fourth the Hilltop hitters collaborated in another juicy run output and shoved over three which protected their dwindling lead. As in the first, it was Joe McFadden, G. U.'s great sophomore quarterback last season and an equally promising ball player, who knocked loudly for attention. He knocked his second triple to deepest centerfield to score George Pajak, who had driven in the first tally of the frame by singling Jim Durkin home from second.

McFadden had singled harmlessly in the second and so finished his day's work with uncontested batting honors. He batted in three runs. McFadden's chief ally was the agile Pajak, who looks like the best young infielder in the District. The trim third baseman got only one hit—a single—but sent across a pair of teammates, one on a fielder's choice in the first.

Pitt got one more hit than Georgetown—ten—and even smashed two terrific home runs, but inability to hit in the pinch at other times cost the visitors the game. For example, they loaded the bags in the eighth as Smith walked two and a third received life on Lou Ghecas' error, but managed to make only one run.

Arcadia Team Loses Crown By Single Pin

Chaconas Market Gains Honors in Columbia League

By the margin of a single pin the host Arcadia team lost the championship to Chaconas Market in final deciding matches on the Columbia Heights Bowling League last night.

The erstwhile leaders dropped the second and third games of their match with Hessick Coal, the second by 593-592, and were tied in percentage by Chaconas, which defeated Daly's Food Shop twice. The Marketmen were then declared league champions because their total pin fall for the season was higher than Arcadia's.

Another league title was settled when Joe Freschi, Arcade-Pontiac, posted a 405 set to nose out Ray Watson, of Hessick, for high individual average.

Lutheran Church Men

Ruth Heyser, Mt. Rainer, recorded a 117 for high individual game; Rhoda Hennig, Trinity No. 1, 320 for high set, and Grace 471 and 394 for high team game and set.

Lutheran Church Ladies

High individual game was won by Frank Pietila, Luther Place No. 1, 147; high individual set by Al Zanner, St. Paul No. 1, 379; and high team game and set by Luther Place No. 1, 639 and 1,714.

'Underhand Mat Business Out,' Says Referee

Casey Berger, the gaunt, grizzled gent who sank from coal mining to wrestling, and who seems to be subsiding into the status of the most calloused of all creatures, a referee, has announced that there will be no underhand business in tomorrow night's feature bout at the Arena, if he can help it. And a good squint at Casey's pysique would indicate that he can.

Berger will handle the Red Ryan-Jack Hader bout, which promises to be chuck full of fouls, if past performances mean anything, and threatens to disqualify the first lad caught using an unfair hold. Moreover, Casey, who packs a stiff wallop, has let it be known he'll give the culprit a stiff sock on the mush for good measure if the occasion warrants.

Other bouts on the card include a semifinal between George Pencheff and Alonzo Woods. In the preliminiaries, George Calza battles Tom Mahoney, Drakick Murphy tangles with Ace Gordon, and Dutch Schultz wrestles Ernie Powers.

Ainsmith

ball talent for the New York Giants.

Caught for Walter Johnson

The fellow who shouted a stream of vocal encouragement to the matchless "Big Train" and caught unflinchingly his deliveries, the fastest balls a man ever threw only occasionally turned to the shirt-sleeved boy at his side to make a quick observation.

Ainsmith settled back and began to talk baseball with the edge one acquires through half a century of association with the national pastime.

"You see that young fellow?" He pointed toward the blue and gray uniform of the Georgetown thirdbaseman, George Pajak, a trimly built sophomore. "There's a prospect. You can tell it the way he handles himself. He paused then as the Pittsburgh batter toped a slow roller in the direction of the hot corner.

Pajak was on the ball with amazing speed, scooped it up, threw to first without regaining his balance.

Praises Sophomore Flash

"There," exclaimed Ainsmith, "that's what I'm speaking about. Did you see him make that play. One of the hardest for a thirdbaseman, the quick start and throw off balance. Calls for perfect co-ordination. When a young player has that you don't have to look at his fielding form or stance at the plate. They come naturally to those players."

But then, as if he had heard the rumor spreading about the field that a Yankee scout who had been expected to see the Yale game was in the stands, Ainsmith restrained his enthusiasm. "You can't judge a kid on one game. And besides, as you said, Pajak is only a sophomore. Might be a flash in the pan," he laughed, "I've seen enough of that kind. Should know better than to go overboard."

Ainsmith is one of two Giant scouts in the Middle Atlantic area to look over college players. Henry DeBerry, the former Brooklyn catcher who stopped Dazzy Vance's shoots when he was one of the National League's greatest pitchers, is down around Lexington, Va.

Return to New York

After making the rounds, both will return to New York in time for the Giants' opener. Ainsmith plans to attend today's Maryland-Boston College game at College Park, for someone told him the Terps' Earl Springer was "some shucks" of a pitcher.

The veteran whose temples are now tinged with gray is in his first season of scouting. He served as an umpire in the Southern League from 1934 through 1937 and in the International League last year. He doesn't think the Cincinnati Reds are a cinch for the National League pennant, as do many experts, but expects the Giants, Cubs and Pirates will stage a three-team race. He admitted, however, that the Reds look "invincible" on paper.

Presidents Defeat Devitt For 3d Victory

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., April 11.—George Washington High School recorded its third straight triumph here this afternoon, turning back the Devitt Prep nine, 11-8, in a loosely played contest.

Johnny Murnane and Lawrence Gardner shared pitching honors to limit the Washingtonians to five well-scattered hits, but several costly errors kept the visitors in the running throughout the game. Murnane hurled the first seven innings, but was forced to retire after being struck by a hard-hit grounder. He yielded four hits and struck out 13 Devitt batsmen. Gardner gave up one hit and whiffed three in the last two frames.

The Presidents collected ten hits, including home runs by Buddy Saffelle and Murnane.

Devitt capitalized on a pair of scratch singles, a hit batsmen and an infield error to take a 3-0 lead in the first inning. The Presidents scored two runs in the first and second, then added four in the fourth to take the lead for the remainder of the game. Devitt came up with a two-run rally in the ninth but failed to tie the score.

In the fifth inning, Fleishman, of Devitt, was deprived of a home run when he failed to touch second base in completing the circuit and the run was nullified.

Hart in Form, Woodberry's Nine Wins, 4-0

Woodberry Forest, Va., April 11. With Pitcher Hart keeping the opposing hits well scattered, Woodberry Forest shut out the hitherto undefeated St. Christophers nine here today, 4-0.

The home team shoved over two runs in the first inning when Glenn and Covington reached the bases on errors, pulled a double steal, then scored on Patton's bunt. Two more tallies were added in the sixth when Patton walked and scored on a double by Cabell, who in turn went to third on a fielder's choice and came in on Hart's infield hit.

The Saints missed a scoring chance in the eighth when Beverly attempted to tally from second on Christian's single to rightfield and was thrown out at home by Neaves.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

RUNYON

Our studies of the great American horse player bring us to a consideration of the pari-mutuel ticket and the reactions of the holder toward same under the varying conditions of life around a race course.

A pari-mutuel ticket is the receipt, so to speak, that a horse player receives at a track when this system of betting is in vogue. It records the amount of your wager, the number of the race and other data necessary to the transaction.

We offer this explanation because there may be some among our readers who do not play the races and know nothing of the pari-mutuel system of betting. New York is the only State, as far as we know, where there is any racing at all, that uses any other system.

In New York State the horse player at the tracks has to make his wagers with a bookmaker. The bookmaker does not give the horse player a receipt. The bookmaker does not give the horse player anything, not even his kind regards, the right time or fair odds.

The bookmaker just takes the horse player's money and notes the amount wagered and the player's admission badge number in a ledger. In New York State the horse player has to trust the bookmaker, but the bookmaker does not trust the horse player. The world is just chock-a-block with injustice.

Ticket-Tearers Vary

However, we were talking about pari-mutuel tickets. Now, we are personally a ferocious ticket tearer-upper. We refer, of course, to losing tickets, which is to say tickets on horses that finish out of the money. It is with those tickets that we are most familiar. They are of no further value and there is no particular reason why they should not be torn up, but there are several kinds of ticket tearer-uppers.

There is the kind that quietly and unostentatiously tears the tickets once across and drops the fragments at their feet without undue gesture. There is also the kind that absently shreds the tickets into small bits and tosses the bits into the air, watching them flutter lamely in the breeze like so many crippled little hopes before settling to the ground.

The ferocious ticket tearer-upper, of which we are a good type, tears the tickests into as many pieces as possible with great violence, much elbow grease and, sometimes, with many imprecations and hurls the pieces to the ground and jumps on them. While this is going on, the ferocious ticket tearer-upper invariably sees red. Indeed, at such moments we have often thought there was a house afire in the line of our vision.

"Stoopers" Benefit

A great many horse players merely throw their tickets away untorn. This requires considerable nonchalance and is a great boon to "stoopers." A "stooper" is a fellow who goes around picking up discarded tickets and comparing the numbers on them with those on his program, hoping that some careless horse player may have tossed away a winning ticket, which happens oftener than you might think.

The title comes from the fact that the "stooper" is constantly in bended posture picking up tickets, though we know some who prefer carrying a cane with a nail in the tip with which they spear the tickets off the ground and save themselves many a crick in the back.

Then, there is the ticket saver-upper among the horse players, which is the type that hoards the losing tickets, probably as sad memories. We can think of no other reason. There used to be a rumor around that if you saved your losing tickets and showed them to Uncle Samuel at income-tax time, he would allow you to write off these losses. This may be true, but old Sam might reasonably ask if you had not also had a few winning tickets in your time, a question we could truthfully answer, so help us, mighty few.

The ticket saver-upper is a great hand for going around sorrowfully displaying his hoardings after a race, apparently looking for sympathy. We have always considered such displays quite morbid. As far as we are concerned, a show of losing tickets is just about as interesting as uncovering a corpse. As a matter of fact, an exhibiton of winning tickets has never given us any particular thrill, if we were loaded with losers, though it is a curiousp tthing that few holders of winning tickets make much of a flash of them.

—And Some Hope

The horse player who interests us is the half-hopeful type who aits holding his losing tickets in one hand after a race and his program in the other and keeps comparing the numbers in them, half-hoping that a miracle of some kind will change the result, or that maybe the ticket seller erred and gave him a wrong ticket that has turned out to be a winner.

We had a letter not long ago from a reader and horse player who discussed the ticket angle with us at some scientific length and who said that what she does with her losing tickets is to wait until she accumulates a stack and then quietly drops them behind something, but she does not say behind what.

If it is behind that good old horse-playing eight-ball, that explains what we took for an exceptionally heavy snowfall not long ago.

Mt. Pleasant Team Picks Self as Victor

Return of Rozelle, Numerous Good Vets, Hoists Hopes of Club That Was 6th in 1938

(This is the sixth of a series of articles discussing the 1939 prospects of each of the seven teams entered in the Interhigh baseball series starting next Friday.)

By Bill Burnett.

The old custom of dragging down the corners of the mouth when an approaching baseball season is mentioned is not being practiced at Central. The team, as a matter of fact, seems quite cheerful about the whole thing.

"You can say in the paper," one member insists, "that we'll win this series—and in a walk."

To followers of Mount Pleasant fortunes in the public high school scramble for football and basketball honors, this may seem strange. There will be those who remember what little build-up the grid team received, and how it blossomed as one of the most devastating football machines the schools have turned out in years.

Basketballers Fell Down

In contrast, some will recall how Central's cage team was blown up to gargantuan proportions before the season started—with its long string of veteran and brilliant material—and how it later fizzled to a shabby fifth in the final reckoning.

It may be strange, then, that Central wants to be picked to win, considering the effect it seems to have on the final standing. It really has an exceptionally fine chance of winning this year, though, and you'd think it would be afraid to tempt the fates.

Strongest reason for believing it might win, of course, is the return of most of last year's club. Veterans hold down most of the key positions. And while the rest of the interhigh teams rest up for the grind, Central players turn out every day at Powell Junior High playground, just across the way, and have a practice session under Phil Fox.

Martin Behind the Bat

A big change in last year's lineup, which unfortunately managed for only one interhigh victory, is expected to be made when Harry Martin takes over the catching job of All-High Ken Brasdorf. Martin, a slightly better catcher, was ineligible last season. Brasdorf will be moved to the outfield where his heavy hitting—he led the team with .460—will be of service.

Dick Rozzelle is the only letterman pitcher returning, but a new fastball hurler, Bob Roberts, and a husky right-hander, Charles Kight, will back him up on the mound. Billy Fischer, who performed for the championship American Legion nine last year, also graces Central's pitching staff.

Long, lean and clever Dick Farr is slated for the first-base job and his understudy is Jello Lagos. The rest of the infield, reading counterclockwise, will probably be Pat Fenlon, Benny Steiner and Sam Di Blasi. Besides his recognized ability to carry, throw and kick a football, the sloe-eyed Steiner is a talented shortstop and batted a respectable .353 last year.

Coach Jack Ray hardly can take a step without crushing a good outfielder. Other than Brasdorf, there is Len Sokol, Walter Goodrich and Lorenz Zimmerman, to name a few.

Central's Diamond Hopefuls Keep Fit With 'Paddle Ball'

This may look like a sidewalk scene from "Dead End" but it's just a gang of Central High baseball players watching two of their number play a game of "paddle ball" at Powell Junior High playground. The boys also stage a daily baseball practice in anticipation of the Interhigh series which starts next week. The players are Sam Di Blasi (left), regular third baseman, and Harry Martin, catcher

Down in Front

With Richards Vidmer

New York, April 11.—I've often wondered at the crowd that gathers outside the ball parks after a game and besieges the players as they come from the dressing rooms after a hard day's work, thrusting autograph books or baseballs or scorecards or even scraps of paper in their faces, clamoring for their autographs.

VIDMER

I've frequently pondered over the urge that causes crowds to stand and gape outside a theater on the occasion of an opening, peering open-mouthed at the audience as it arrives.

I've sometimes been dazed by the desperation of the pedestrian public to catch a glimpse of some celebrity passing by in a closed car.

In other words I can't quite understand this pursuit of famous people merely for the satisfaction of obtaining their signatures or being able to say the next day, "I saw so-and-so."

I think the nearest I ever came to experiencing the touch of fame was one afternoon outside the Yankee Stadium, when I was set upon by a gang of youngsters who, because I had emerged from the players' entrance and because I was somewhat tanned from playing golf, decided I must be a ball player.

I was surrounded and the forces refused to be dispersed by my assurance that I was not a player, merely a newspaperman.

"Aw, you can't fool us," they shouted, which was very flattering, of course, but at the same time somewhat embarrassing. "We know you're a ball player. Come on, give us your autograph, will ya, mister?"

The situation presented a very delicate problem. If I refused to give them my autograph they would continue to embarrass me by their shouts and pleas, furthermore I could see reinforcements coming from a distance. But if I did give them my autograph they would be terribly disillusioned to discover that they did not have a ball player at bay after all.

Mrs. Babe Ruth, standing on the corner, offered a solution and as I joined her the mob fell back out of respect for the great Babe's wife. They lingered on the outskirts while we talked for a few minutes and I think were about ready to seek other victims when I took my leave. But Mrs. Ruth unintentionally brought them back in hot pursuit by calling out, "Good bye, Dickey."

"Gee, it's Dickey. Hey, Bill, give us your autograph. Come on, Bill, please!" There was no escape, and so I must confess to forgery. I had to write Bill Dickey's name 50 or 60 times before I was allowed to depart in peace.

It was a horrible experience, especially under the circumstance. Every second I expected someone to come along and bare my shame to the world or carry me off to prison. But it opened my eyes with sympathy to the plight of the ball players. And how they stand for it, day after day, without losing their patience is beyond my understanding.

Nor is it just the youngsters who pester and pursue them. All sorts of people, including a lot of substantial citizens, grab them at every opportunity and demand at least a moment of their time. Of course, a moment of anybody's time doesn't matter a great deal, but when you string a lot of moments together it gets a little tiresome.

Of course, the more a ball player is bothered by autograph hunters the greater he can figure his popularity, and it must be reassuring to feel that you are popular with the crowd. But even popularity can pall when carried too far.

No doubt a lot of these autograph bugs would like to have the signatures of the President of the United States, Henry Ford or Greta Garbo in their collections. But they don't go rushing into the White House in droves, nor crashing past Mr. Ford's secretaries in regimental formation, nor crowding onto a set at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios while the cameras are turning.

Bethesda Cubs Down N.E. Cougars, 12 to 11

After a scoring spree indulged in by both sides, the Bethesda Cubs yesterday defeated the Northeast Cougars sandlot team, 12-11, although gaining only seven hits to the Cougars' nine.

Bethesda capitalized on the Northeasters' four errors and on a home run by their centerfielder, Bob Cremins, in the fifth inning, to take the game while making three errors. Faris Mirhige, of Bethesda, took over mound duties at the beginning of the fifth and allowed three scattered hits in the remaining innings.

182 Amateurs Battle Today For U. S. Titles

Fistic Show Opens In San Francisco For 3-Night Stand

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, April 11.—A miscellaneous gathering ranging from laborers to college students, combining the pick of the country's amateur boxing talent, marked time here today for tomorrow's opening of the National A. A. U. championships.

For part of one day and for three nights leather gloves will be pounding in the most varied pugilistic show for simonpures the Nation has to offer.

The fiftieth year of the tournament will bring together 182 fighters, some national and some sectional champions, and practically all the other topnotchers in their districts.

Preliminaries begin tomorrow at 3 p. m. and continue until midnight.

Three champions will be on hand to defend their crowns. They include Bill Speary, of Philadelphia, bantamweight titleholder the past two years; Bill Eddy, Flint, Mich., featherweight, and Bradley Lewis, Albany, N. Y., Negro middleweight, winners in 1938.

The 3-round bouts, in which decisions must be rendered, will conclude Friday night with eight champions determined from a starting entry list representing 60 cities in 26 States and the Territory of Hawaii.

Boston College Plays Terps Today

Returned from an invasion of Southern Conference opposition which netted a victory, a loss and a postponement, the University of Maryland nine begins a schedule of three games in four days this afternoon by meeting Boston College at College Park at 4 o'clock.

Friday and Saturday will bring Michigan against the Terps, who now have a record of four victories and two setbacks.

Charles Weidinger is to be Maryland's starting pitcher today, with Pershing Mondorff slated to work against the Wolverines Friday. Saturday's selection is questionable, but it may be the sensational Earl Springer who has been unscored on in his last fifteen innings.

Yale-West. Maryland Tilt Halted by Rain

Westminster, Md., April 11 (AP).—A downpour shortly after the start of the third inning brought to an abrupt end the Yale-Western Maryland baseball game today. Western Maryland was leading, 4 to 3.

Eddie Collins, jr., son of the former major league star, and a member of the Yale team, put a punch into the finish when he hit a home run with none on. The rain started before the next batter went to the plate.

Par Outmoded by Pro Golfers Perfection, Corcoran Believes

New System of Scoring Would Aid Amateur Stars in Open Competition

New York, April 11.—Fred Corcoran, just in from the winter golf circuit, believes this country's professionals have reached such a point of perfection that par, as it now is figured, is an utterly outmoded standard.

"There's just no sense to it," said the tournament manager of the Professional Golfers Association today. "During this winter's tour, when the boys played for $115,000 in prize money, the winners were eight and ten shots under par in every 72-hole tournament. There's no reason to believe they can't do it every time.

"And why do they beat par's brains out? Because golf, with them, is a business and a profession. They work at it eight hours a day. Would you believe it, after Jug McSpaden had shot his practice round of 59 down in Texas, he went right over to the practice tee and worked there for two hours? You can't beat fellows like that, and par can't, either."

Corcoran, for the last few years, has been working on what he feels is the best solution. He believes it's one that will have to be accepted before par becomes utterly ridiculous.

"Take two holes on a golf course today. One is 350 yards, the other 415. On the present yardage basis, par for each is 4. Yet the 350-yarder is straightaway, no out-of-bounds on either side of the fairway, no traps to speak of. Jimmy Thompson could get home off the tee with one of his extra-specials. The 415-yarder on the other hand, is heavily trapped, with out-of-bounds to the left of the fairway and beyond the green, and with a pond guarding the approach to the green.

"According to this system of mine, the first one might be given a value of 4. But with that as a basis, you'd rate the second one at four and four-tenths—4.4. Then, by totaling your figures for each hole, you'd get your 18-hole par of 69, 71, 72, or whatever it was."

Because the professionals have become so expert at their work, and because there are so many of them—veterans like Henry Picard, Paul Runyan and Horton Smith, younger stars like Byron Nelson and Sam Snead, promising newcomers like Ben Hogan, Clayton Heafner and Dutch Harrison—Corcoran is sure the pros can keep the U. S. Open title to themselves for many years to come.

"There's no amateur threat any more. Only two—Bobby Jones and Johnny Goodman — have broken through in the last 20 years and it may be another 20 before another amateur gets in. Even the best of them don't, perhaps can't, give golf half the time a pro devotes to it."

Mrs. Kenyon Buried With Judge's Letters

Love letters from her husband, which she had treasured since their courtship in 1893, were buried with Mrs. William S. Kenyon, 71, who died here February 22, leaving a $265,858 estate.

Mrs. Kenyon, widow of Federal Judge Kenyon, one-time Senator from Iowa, directed in her will that her casket contain the letters, her husband's watch and a prized miniature portrait of Judge Kenyon.

Her will, of which probate was asked in District Court yesterday by the American Security & Trust Co., disclosed her wishes, which Attorney Jerome F. Barnard said were scrupulously followed. The firm of Peelle, Lesh, Drain & Barnard is counsel for the bank.

Auto Loans by Banks May Cut Financing Rate

Only 10% of Present Volume Now Handled By Banks

New York, April 11.—It is estimated that banks now handle less than 10 per cent of all automobile financing, and while the proportion may well increase, only a relatively small gain is in prospect, observes the Standard Statistics Co. currently.

There has been considerable questioning as to whether or not finance companies would continue to get as large a proportion of the available financing as in the past. Bank competition is definitely increasing but it is still a factor of relatively moderate over-all importance.

Except for a few institutions, such as the Bank of America, N. T. & S. A., which has numerous branches scattered throughout California, banks are not especially adapted to the financing of automobile sales. They lack many of the facilities provided by the dealer-finance company set-up and the Nation-wide organizations of the major finance companies. The avearge bank entering the financing field, therefore, offers as the paramount attraction a schedule of lower rates. It does not have the dealer's cooperation. Indeed, as banks take only the cream of the business, dealers are inclined to resent the intrusion.

The emphasis which bank competition has placed on rates, however, may well result in a later shading of rates by the finance companies. One of the smaller independents has already announced lower rates to preferred risks, i. e., lower rates where down payments are large. The company tends to offset this reduction, however, by proffering a higher-cost insurance policy, on which the company's commission, of course, is larger. Moreover, the policy of favoring preferred risks tends to antagonize dealers. The leading companies, therefore, are not likely to embark on such a plan.

Insurance Rate May Drop

It seems likely at this time that any action on the part of the big companies in the direction of lowering financing charges may start with a reduction in the charge for insurance, with the reduction representing part of the finance company's commission on such business. General Motors Acceptance Corporation, which has an affiliated insurance company, has for some time been offering insurance at 25 per cent less than conference rates. Many banks in the automobile finance business have arrangements with insurance companies whereby blanket rates—lower than conference rates—are made available.

If the straight financing charge were to be reduced, part of the reduction might be applied to the dealer's reserve—a fund set up by the finance company to be distributed to dealers unless absorbed by repossession losses.

Actually, no such cut is expected at this time. As far as can be learned, the leading companies have no intension of making any reduction in rates. After all, there still is much in the statement that the majority of car buyers using the installment plan are not greatly concerned about the rate of interest they pay; allowance on "trade-ins" and size of monthly payments are the only conditions such buyers study.

In the final analysis, it appears that finance companies may get a somewhat smaller proportion of the available automobile business than in earlier years, and that ultimately some reduction in profit margins is likely. The total volume of business is likely to continue sufficiently large, however, to provide good earnings.

War Fears Send Stock Market To New Low, but Recovers at The End; Bond Trading Ragged

New York, April 11.—The stock market was swept down to another new low for the year today when fears of war touched off a heavy wave of selling in the second hour but later in the day when it was learned that Italy and Great Britain were drawing closer to an understanding which might preserve peace in the Balkans and in the Mediterranean there was a substantial rally.

Virtually all of the early loss was recovered, the composite average of 100 representative stocks showing a minor loss for the session of 0.09 point. The morning break, however, carried 289 issues to new 1939 lows. Trading slackened to new 1939 lows, when prices were near their best of the day.

Market Action Favorable

Chartists regarded the action of the market as favorable in that support appeared a little below Monday's low, and the nature of the close was seen by these technicians as offering the possibility of a rally barring bad news from abroad. The above average touched a low of 96.46 against Monday's low of 96.70. The average of 30 representative railroad stocks went below the Munich low for the first time, touching 18.16 compared with the 18.31 figure made on September 26, 1938.

Loft Is Spotlight

While foreign developments set the pace, the individual feature of the day was the stock of a company in the candy and soft drink business rather than one concerned with the building of airplanes or battleships. This was Loft, Inc., which has frequently in the past supplied the street with spectacular demonstrations. A favorable decision in its Pepsi-Cola litigation in Wilmington caused a turnover of 87,600 shares in this issue, or more than 5 per cent of the market's total share volume.

Loft closed up 2 points at 9¾, after having added 1¾ points on Monday. In other words, from its closing price of 6 last week, the stock appreciated more than 60 per cent in two days.

The decision which brought about this gyration was rendered by the Delaware Supreme Court when it confirmed a lower court decision giving Loft title to 91 per cent of the outstanding shares of Pepsi-Cola Co. and directed the defendants to pay Loft $475,000, representing a $2 a share dividend paid to Pepsi-Cola on these shares in 1936. From this Loft must meet large legal expenses. Pepsi-Cola earned $2,700,000 in the nine months ended September 30, 1938.

Changes Vary Little

Among the more familiar leaders of the market, the range was relatively large, but at the close net changes were not sensational. General Motors and Chrysler were off fractions, while Steel and Bethlehem were slightly higher. United Aircraft and North American Aviation led their division, the former advancing. Central was up a fraction and most of the rails snapped back after their morning sinking spell.

The foreign exchange market again reflected the tense situation abroad although rates of foreign currencies were little changed, due to the activity of the various national funds. Future rates however were weak, as the funds do not operate in this market.

Commodity markets contributed their share of interest in the day's developments, raw hide futures experiencing their sharpest decline in the history of futures trading on the commodity exchange. In little more than an hour there was a break of 80 to 85 points from the previous close and trading was near record proportions. Cotton, held relatively steady and apparently was not affected by announcement of the plan, believed to have Administration backing, for the barter of American cotton and wheat for rubber and tin. Wheat advanced early with trading affected by war sensitiveness and domestic crop conditions but after a reaction it closed ¼ cent a bushel lower to ⅛ cent higher.

Board Trading Tends Lower

Listed bonds today showed the same ragged tendencies that marked trading in the equities section. European reports proved extremely depressing early in the day, but many bonds regained their intial losses. Others closed lower by fractions to 6 points, with foreign dollar obligations rather hard hit. Local fractions lost some of the ground gained the previous day. All in all, the session was nervous and the large variations appearing in some groups reflected market thinness as well. Turnover was $7,680,000.

European Issues Drop

Bonds of central and eastern European countries were marked sharply lower, owing to the threat of war. German bonds slumped, and other that fell 1 to 4 points included Danish, Belgian, Greek and Hungarian bonds. Polish issues barely appeared on the bond tape. Italians fell only a little, despite the Mediterranean situation, while Far-Eastern worries were not sufficient to send Japanese bonds lower by more than fractions. The British Empire issues of Australia and Canada softened again. Latin-American issues were irregularly lower.

Rail Bonds Drop

Local traction bonds lost 1 to 3 points of the gains made the previous day, when announcement of tentative terms on the B. M. T. purchase was made. In the medium-priced railroad group closings were mostly lower. Borderline and default carrier issues attracted no following. Holding company bonds were dull, and most indstrial convertibles receded. Other special groups likewise lost ground, with rare exceptions.

United States Treasury obligations were mixed, with most bonds slightly lower. The guaranteed issues of the home and farm corporations also drifted idly downward. Telephone bonds and best power and light obligations showed only smallest fractional variations, and best grade rails likewise held up well. Leading industrial bonds were uncertain.

Chain Stores Continue Sales Volume Gains

March Total Is 9.3 Per Cent Over 1938 Month

New York, April 11.—Chain stores continued their upward trend in sales volume in the month of March, according to the monthly compilation released yesterday by Childs, Jeffries & Thorndike, Inc. The first 25 chains to report had an aggregate March volume of $233,431,665, an increase of $20,071,901 or 9. per cent over the same month the previous year.

The showing made by the chain stores last month was the best sales percentages increase since June, 1937, despite the unsettled state of foreign affairs which probably played a part in preventing retail trade from making an even better showing than was reported last month. Since November of last year the trend in monthly sales volume has been steadily upward. Every one of the 25 reporting companies had a higher March sales increase than their sales increase for the year, which is indicative of the improving trend of retail business at this time.

The mail order group made by far the best showing for the month of March this year, with an increase of 17 per cent above the same month last year. The apparel division was next with an increase last month of 9.5 per cent over March of 1938. The shoe chains reported a sharp increase in sales volume last March over the same period in 1938, the rise being 8.9 per cent.

The variety chains had a rise in sales volume of 7.1 per cent last month over March, 1938, which was somewhat better than the first two months of this year. The drug group reported an increase of 6.1 per cent for last month over the like period the previous year, their best monthly showing since September, 1937. The grocery division reported the smallest increase for last month, with an increase of 2.15 per cent above March, 1938, a slight increase over the previous month's showing.

Treasury Borrows At 0.025 Per Cent

The Secretary of the Treasury announced yesterday that the tenders for $100,000,000 or thereabouts of 91-day Treasury bills, to be dated April 12 and to mature July 12, 1939, which were offered on April 7, were opened at the Federal Reserve banks on April 10.

The total applied for was $207,502,000, and the total accepted was $100,167,000. The average price was $99.994, equivalent to borrowing money at 0.025 per cent.

White Motor Starts Small Truck Output

Lead Price Cut to 4.80 Cents a Pound

New York, April 11 (AP).—A leading producer today reduced the price of lead to 4.80 cents a pound, from 4.90 cents, delivered at New York, and 4.60 cents at East St. Louis. Another producer immediately cut from 4.85 to 4.75 cents. New York delivery.

This was the price prevailing until March 9, when an upward revision was made.

U. S. Silver Production Gains Over Year Ago

New York, April 11 (AP).—United States' production of silver in the first two months of this year totaled 9,937,000 ounces, compared with 10,305,000 in the corresponding 1938 period, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today.

The February total was 5,268,000 ounces, against 4,689,000 in January.

World output, excluding Mexico, the bureau said, rose to 14,967,000 in February, from 14,827,000 in January, and for the first two months amounted to 29,794,000, against 28,912,000 in the 1938 period.

Cotton Futures Close Lower; Bombay Selling

New York, April 11 (AP).—Selling of the July delivery by Bombay accounts set the pace in the cotton futures market today. The tone was wobbly through the session and final prices were unchanged to 4 points lower.

Cotton men said they found little to indicate a solution of current cotton problems in the Administration-backed plan to exchange Government-held stocks of lint for rubber and tin from Great Britain, Belgium and Holland.

Although brokers agreed the proposal had some merit as a "war measure," many thought it was another attempt to revive export subsidy plans.

Beth. Steel Corp. Meeting Delayed

New York, April 11 (AP).—Bethlehem Steel Corporation announced today the adjournment of the annual meeting of stockholders for two weeks to permit stockholders to vote on whether they preferred the annual meetings in New York instead of Wilmington, Del., as at present, and to determine whether the stockholders preferred to elect independent auditors instead of having them appointed by the board of directors, as at present.

Accordingly, the annual meeting of the stockholders will be held at noon, April 25 at Wilmington, at which time the result of the vote will be determined.

Officials said the proxy committee of the board held 63 per cent of the voting stock today, in comparison with the 50 per cent required for a majority, but the meeting was adjourned "in order to avoid any questions of noncompliance" with the rules of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Alleghany Corp. Bonds to Be Under 3 Trusteeships

New York, April 11 (AP).—Directors of Alleghany Corporation, holding company for the remnants of the once vast $2,000,000,000 railroad empire put together by the late Van Sweringen brothers, today paved the way for placing the company's three bond issues under trusteeships with three different trust companies.

The board appointed Continental Bank & Trust Co. of New York as trustee under the indenture of the company's $21,938,000, face value, collateral trust 5 per cent bonds of 1949, and named Marine Midland Trust Co. as trustee of the $24,110,000, face value, 5s of 1950. The appointments are eff

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

You may not know it, but bridge is played in far-away New Zealand, and up-to-date contract bridge at that.

The Culbertson system and the Blackwood slam convention are both popular with the New Zealanders. Their bidding is good, but their defense weak, an observer reports.

Two features which keep the duplicate tournaments from becoming too serious are the redeal rule and the kick-start. Under the redeal provision a hand passed out at the first table is redealt and played over. Thus many delicate part score skirmishes are lost. Redeals are barred in American tournament play.

The kick-start feature is a plan whereby the tournament director conspires with the gods of chance to produce an exciting if artificial deal. He takes the honor cards, distributes them according to his fancy, then deals out the remainder of the deck, normally. The players expect trouble, and they get it.

The New Zealand Bridge Federation has been operating for several years. Its principal activity is the organization of the dominion teams-of-four championship, held each October, which is the spring of the year for Aucklanders. Teams from Wellington, Christ-Church Dunedin and other centers of the island visit the beautiful city and pass an arduous week wrestling with the pasteboards.

"It will be difficult, owing to the expense and time which would be involved, for New Zealand to send a team to engage in the world championship organized by the International Bridge League, but if it does later become possible to send a team I am confident that it will acquit itself well and would prove to the world that this little dominion has its quota of intelligent and clever players," says A. A. Wolfers, English expert.

The bidding employed by Smith and his partner is shown in the box. Seven no trump would have been a better contract inasmuch as no ruffing tricks are available, but a grand slam at any declaration is an accomplishment.

Speaking about bridge being played in all parts of the world, here is a story Britishers love to tell concerning a missionary lost in the wilds of Africa.

It seems he was captured by cannibals. He escaped into the jungles and after shaking off his pursuers, reached a clearing in the middle of which was a hut. By the babble proceeding from within he imagined he had run across more savages and was about to rush away, when a voice rose above the rest crying:

"Why the devil didn't you double his diamonds, you blankety-blank fool?"

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

The Agriculture Department drew its researchers into a huddle yesterday and concluded that it did not observe Arbor Day on Monday because the day should not be observed then. Even had it been observed then it would have been all right because the almanac says the day can be variously observed. But the department doesn't do business that way.

The department, the world should know, was not necessarily up the tree over when to observe the day, even if everyone else was. Much has been done to confuse the department in the matter, but the department stands firm on April 22 as the time. They know from incontrovertible records that J. Sterling Morton was born in Nebraska on April 22, 1872. And despite the fact that the District Commissioners fixed the celebration as the third Friday in each April, the fact continues that Morton founded Arbor Day and that he was born on April 22. The Nebraska Legislature in a sovereign proclamation fixed the birth anniversary of Morton as the day, although Morton, in establishing the day, had the first celebration on April 10. President Harding once issued a proclamation on the day and the Board of Education has selected April 18 for the planting of a red maple at the Brightwood School.

It is very confusing, but the Agriculture Department, like a tree by the water, won't be swayed from the twenty-second and will plant a Nebraska elm on the Mall that day. The tree is here, at the National Parks Propagating Station, and that much, at least, is assured.

A big response has come to the invitation to attend the reunion of Government employes who went to Puerto Rico last summer under auspices of the United States Travel Bureau. The reunion will be held next Tuesday evening in the Washington Hotel and will be featured by the showing of movies and still pictures made on the cruise. Puerto Rican officials in Washington are expected to attend. Approximately 400 persons, mostly from Federal offices in Washington, were on the cruise and the sponsors of the reunion expect most of them to attend and renew the old acquaintances. There will be dancing.

Max K. Gilstrap, author and lecturer, who can whistle more like a bird than a bird, will speak on "Through Grand Canyon and Yosemite With a Ranger Naturalist," in the Departmental Auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight. It is free and under auspices of the National Park Service. After the lecture, which will be illustrated with colored pictures, Gilstrap will whistle "The Indian Love Call" and other melodious airs and will give the audience a lesson in how to whistle bird calls. The public is invited.

Department of Labor Post No. 42, American Legion, will hold its second anniversary dance at the Mayflower Hotel Friday night. James T. Brady, department commander, and Daniel Goodacre, department adjutant, will officially present the post with its permanent charter. Happy Walker's orchestra will furnish the music. John R. Demorest is dance committee chairman.

Attempts to pad the Federal payroll just before elections—an alleged habit of New Deal agencies, according to harsh speeches on the floor of Congress—is no new idea, it seems. A Civil Service Commission researcher, prowling through the old laws, found one passed during the 1870's prohibiting any personnel increase in any navy yards within 60 days of an election without special written permission of the Secretary of the Navy. It seems that boys were boys and politicians were politicians long before Tom Pendergast hung out his shingle.

Bob Burns Says—

Livin' out here in southern California is purty apt to upset a fellow's appreciation of the beauties of nature. What with the mountains, and the ocean, and the beautiful flowers that grow out here all the year 'round, one gets so they jest take things for granted.

I was at a gathering the other night and I guess there were more beautiful women there than I'd ever seen in one place before. But there was one glamorous beauty that just stood out from all the rest. She happened to be the wife of a friend of mine and I said to this friend, "Your wife is the purtiest thing I ever saw. I'll bet she spends an awful lot of time on herself to keep lookin' so purty."

My friend says, "Yes, I'll have to admit that she does. At night she first puts her hair up in curlers and then she puts on cleansing cream and eye lotion. Then she puts on some hand cream, and then she puts on some tissue cream and then she puts on some other kind of cream, and then she puts on bacon and eggs."

My friend says, "Well, by then it's time for breakfast!"

Her Majesty the Queen:

Peacefully Happy Childhood Filled With Merry Pranks

Within Queen Elizabeth's Childhood Home

By Lady Cynthia Asquith.

CHAPTER III.

Unlike the Scotch castle, this pleasant home suggests neither ancestors nor ghosts. Here no grim legends linger; no traditional past intrudes on the immediate present. So far from being haunted by the dead, one feels the whole place possessed by very-much-alive children. For this is a real family house; a benign setting that has given the freedom of all its happy rooms to many generations of brothers and sisters.

The nursery in which Queen Elizabeth learned to walk is a much-loved room, during the last years frequently occupied by Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. As soon as you enter its door, something in the atmosphere brings back an almost forgotten sense of shelter and revives memories of long-lost treasures.

When I last saw this room it was still unsacrificed to the fickleness of fashion. No up-to-date "nursery frieze" adorned its walls, but the same old favorites—story-pictures hung up by the gardener over 50 years ago—were there to entrance Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret just as they once entranced their mother, who is now the Queen.

To Queen Elizabeth St. Paul's Waldenbury was home in the very fullest meaning of the word. Beneath its tree she used often to pretend that her real name was "Princess Elizabeth."

And now she plays beneath the same trees with another Elizabeth—a real Princess Elizabeth!

To be the youngest but one of a family large enough to form a clan in itself, is a bracing upbringing. It was in no sheltered seclusion, but in the hurly-burly of big brothers and their big dogs, that Queen Elizabeth learned to walk and to live.

It has been a pleasant task to peer into so happy a childhood as Queen Elizabeth's, and inquire to what extent the promise of the flower was already discernible in the bud.

Queen Was Good Child

The story of Queen Elizabeth's early years is peacefully devoid of startling incidents. No serious illnesses interrupted her enjoyment of life. Neither did she meet with any accident. She never got lost. No one stole her. Nor—so far as I can discover—did she ever meet with any gypsy prophetic enough to foretell her romantic destiny.

It would be entertaining to be able to report acts of sensational naughtiness, but to do so would be to stray from biography into the realm of fiction.

Though of malice I can find no trace; of her "merry mischief," as the tenants at Glamis still call it, there are many stories. Aged retainers tell me (proudly, not resentfully) how they spent no little time tightly fastened by painfully fine string to fences and trees. Willing sacrifices to realism, they were greatly adding to the joys of a game called "Red Indians."

Startling Mischief

And sometimes visitors to Glamis were startled by cascades of water descending on their heads from above, followed by exultant peals of laughter from an elfin child hidden on the roof.

On one boasted occasion, she and her brother, David, gave their father's chauffeur palpitations by placing a football immediately in front of one of the wheels of the car. Their trouble was rewarded. As the car started, the football burst with a gratifying loud explosion.

Her incorrigible goodness seems irretrievably proved by the fact that one of her governesses—a woman by no means easy to please—could find only one charge to bring against her pupil. Speaking as pianoforte teacher, she complained, "Lady Elizabeth's hands are too small." It must be admitted that Queen Elizabeth's hands are still very far from large, while in shoes she takes size 3½.

Except for a somewhat exaggerated appreciation of chocolate cake, it does not even appear that Queen Elizabeth ever knew the raptures of a really greedy child.

Seldom Wept

So far as I can gather, she was not much addicted to weeping, though I believe tears did fall copiously each time her brother David returned to school, and I have been told of three other occasions on which she wept very bitterly.

The first was when one in authority considered it necessary to correct her beloved brother David with a hunting-crop. Although the crop was never handled with enough severity to check the victim's peals of laughter, his tender-hearted sister sat up in bed and sobbed.

The second was a very bitter occasion. Little Lady Elizabeth and her brother had bought two very enticing black Berkshire pigs. These unusual pets were christened Lucifer and Emma and cherished for several months. One dreadful day Lucifer was kidnaped and advertised as the First Prize in a raffle at the local bazaar. His horrified owners broke open their own saving-boxes and by sacrificing their entire capital, contrived to buy up half the tickets. But all in vain! Beautiful black Lucifer was won by a stranger and vanished forever from their sight. I cannot think how this tragedy can have occurred, and can only assume that Lady Strathmore was far from home.

The third tragedy was when Bobby, a beloved bullfinch who for many years had fed out of his little mistress' plate at meals, was found dead—murdered by the cat. The Queen's brother tells me she laid poor Bobby out in a cedarwood pencil box, and reverently buried him in a deep grave, tearfully officiating at a service entirely of her own composition.

Nichols Calls Meeting On D. C. Tax Plan

Chairman Nichols, of the House sub-committee on fiscal affairs, has called an executive meeting for this morning to consider the revised District revenue measure which he introduced in the House Monday.

While the sub-committee is still split over the income-sales tax combination plan, Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, principal foe of the sales levy, is out of the city.

Ickes Urges Guild Regulate Columnists

Some Spread Injurious Gossip and Libels, Interior Chief Asserts

New York, April 11.—Secretary Ickes suggested tonight that the American Newspaper Guild "see to it that the columnists, who wield so much influence on public opinion, shall not stray too far from the path of truth which is the path of progress."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Newspaper Guild of New York and for national broadcast over the Columbia System, the Secretary of the Interior discussed what he termed "columnists and calumnists."

A "calumnist," he said, was "an ex-reporter who wastes good white space to spread injurious gossip and disseminate prevarications and even unpunished libels.

"The 'calumnist's' stock in trade is falsification and vilification . . . if the American press is to improve itself it must get rid of him."

"Some columnists," he went on, "are fair and reputable . . . It seems to me that a columnist should be entitled to the same rights and privileges as the editor of a newspaper, and no more."

Classifies Columnists

Ickes thus described a number of American columnists:

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson—". . . Against only those numerous public officials who are bungling affairs that he could so competently manage."

Westbrook Pegler—". . . Against everything and everybody, according to his whim."

"Pontifex Maximum" (Mark) Sullivan—". . . Would be missed for his personal dignity and charm, even if the world would still manage nicely without the pontifications that waddle through his worried columns."

Frank R. Kent—". . . Is more likely to forget than to forgive—and he has a good memory."

Raymond Clapper—". . . One of the fairest, most objective and most intelligent of them all."

Seeing Both Sides

Frederic W. Wile, G. Gould Lincoln, Herbert W. Agar, Ernest K. Lindley and Howard Vincent O'Brien—". . . All able to write fairly and to see both sides."

Arthur Krock—"Others have columns that they fill capably, although Arthur Krock sometimes permits himself, without abating a whit of his stately authoritativeness, to hit too closely to the belt or lend too credulous an ear to backstairs gossip.

Dorothy Thompson—". . . Sincere and earnest lady who is trying to cover too much ground . . ."

Yugoslav Choice Is Submission or Resistance Similar to Albanians, Says French Statesman

By Marcel Ray,
Former French Minister to Albania
By Wireless and Special Wire to The Post.

Paris, April 11.—The Italian coup de force in Albania, like all enterprises of the axis, has been skillfully calculated and scheduled. The dictators have awaited the conclusion of the preliminary negotiations between the Serbs and Croats with regard to the unity of Yugoslavia.

The Yugoslav people, surprised in the throes of internal reorganization, are now in a position to measure the peril into which they have been launched by the insensate policy of Stoyadinovitch.

They have the choice between submission to the axis on the lines of Prague and Memel or a desperate resistance of which the Albanian people have from the outset set a heroic example.

The menace is for Greece as well as for Yugoslavia. It tends to break up the Balkan union as the Little Entente has been destroyed and to destroy the imperial routes of Great Britain and France.

Ever since the first days of April, Albania, the youngest, poorest, the most picturesque and the most neglected of the nations of Europe, has been emerging from her obscurity only to find herself under the fire of the Italian cannon and airplanes. The Fascist menace has been reaffirmed and has brutally addressed itself to a country whose extreme poverty would seem to make it immune from the attacks of the predatory nations. But its vassalization appeared necessary in order to restore the Italian prestige, to maintain the international tension, to intimidate Yugoslavia and other weak powers and to undermine the morale of the great powers tardily determined to oppose the monstrous designs of the axis.

Each Week Counts

For Germany and Italy each week counts. Both are feverishly seeking not only additional resources but strategical positions as far removed as possible from their frontiers. According to them the small intimated and subjugated powers must furnish the means of resistance and must serve as battlefields.

This, it would seem, is the best definition of what is meant by "vital space." But Fascist Italy, in this attempt to attract satellites, is completely outdistanced by her ally. After her disappointment in Abyssinia and her vague mortgage on the Balearic Islands and Spain, on what she can lay her hands without too much risk, there is only Albania, this famished and dangerous prey which she has kept at bay for many years and from which she has never derived the slightest profit.

In 1913 Albania, having gotten rid of the Turks in the Balkan war, became a destined prey for the greed of her Serb, Greek, Austrian and Italian neighbors.

Under the Treaty of London she was subjected to a kind of guardianship by an international consortium of delegates of Great Britain, France, Germany, the United States, Italy and Soviet Russia.

They installed at Durazzo a sovereign who happened to be a German, the Prince of Wied.

Prince of Wied Fled

Then in 1914 came the war. The Prince of Wied fled to Italy and the Italian people who were still neutral occupied Valona without attracting attention. They were still there when the peace conference left the fate of Albania to the conference of ambassadors.

The Serbs, Greeks and Italians again showed their teeth, but Wilsonian principles prevailed and the League of Nations was installed at Geneva. On November 9, 1921, a resolution of the conference of ambassadors allowed Italy the privilege of intervening "in the case of a menace to the integrity of independence, territorial or economic, of Albania by a foreign aggression or any other circumstances."

Eighteen years have passed and we know to our own cost how the history of Europe and of the world has been changing. During this period Italy in particular, after the advent of the Fascist regime, has constantly insisted upon the rights which she alleged to have under the vague and elastic text of 1921. Albania, for her part, has continued to resist the Italian domination, relying more or less upon the support of Yugoslavia.

King Zog I was responsible for Albania's policy as a whole after 1925. He realized that he could not do without the collaboration of Italy and signed on November 27, 1926, the first Treaty of Tirana. This seemingly noncommittal agreement was to be effective for five years, and was registered with the League of Nations. It provided for mutual assistance and cordial collaboration between the two powers.

In reality, the young leaguer accepted the Italian interpretation of the decision of the ambassadors as a beginning of the Italian protectorate. But what could he risk? There was always the covenant of the League of Nations to protect him.

Italy invested important capital in an Albania which she proposed to make her dominion. The National Bank of Tirana became merely a branch of the Italian banks, the gold reserve covering the note circulation was deposited in Rome, an Italian company undertook to equip the port of Durazzo, and to build certain roads and the large and unpleasing premises of the official services in Tirana. The Albanian army received Italian material and a few instructions. Ahmed Zogu must have smiled at his new friends as he went on to pursue his policy.

Concluded Second Treaty

The second Treaty of Tirana, concluded the following year, was distinctly more important. Italy was definitely concerned over the close relations between Paris and Belgrade. She suspected Ahmed Zogu of having resumed contact with the Yugoslav agents or of desiring to submit to Geneva or to The Hague, Court a somewhat obscure dispute over the arrest of a Yugoslav in Albania — a slight but dangerous precedent.

The Italian government accordingly imposed upon its Albanian protege the signature of a veritable treaty of defensive alliance (November 22, 1927). This treaty, concluded for 20 years, provided that "in case one of the two contracting parties being threatened by an unprovoked war, the other party shall take all effective measures not only to prevent hostilities but to secure legitimate satisfaction for the party threatened."

Each of the two countries, at the request of the other, was pledged to place all its resources at the disposal of the other and the signatories undertook not to conclude a separate peace.

Ahmed Zogu accepted the second treaty as he had the first. He even profited by it to obtain a loan payable in ten annual installments and, what was more important to him, a promise that Italy would make no opposition to the creation of an Albanian monarchy and dynasty. On September 1, 1928, Zogu acceded to the throne, acclaimed by the constitutive assembly and the great majority of the population.

Here were two contracting parties —which the winner and which the dupe? Zogu soon realized that his need for the support of Italy was decreasing.

Duce Lost Temper

Then came a period of some eight years during which the young sovereign, shut up in his residence which he never left, held off his Italian protectors and, to keep faith with Rome, refused payment to Belgrade of subsidies negotiated under the rose. At the same time he sought the confidence and the friendship of Paris and London. In June, 1934, Mussolini lost his temper and sent his cruisers before Durazzo. The League of Nations was informed of the incident and the Italian demonstration was transformed into a friendly visit. It should be recalled that in 1934 there was still a League of Nations.

The King of Albania pursued his vacillating policy until the Italian-Yugoslav treaty of 1937. Before that date the Yugoslav government had always proclaimed that it regarded the integrity of Albania as a vital necessity. Stoyadinovitch thought that he could rely upon the assurances given him by the Roman dictator with regard to Yugoslav interests in the Adriatic. But the reaction of the democratic powers was weak in the extreme. The only trace to be found is Neville Chamberlain's precaution to insert in the British-Italian agreement a clause prohibiting any modification of the Mediterranean status quo in favor of any of the powers concerned. The bombardment and the occupation of the Albanian ports have proved the futility of this precaution. Mussolini has torn up the British and the Yugoslav agreements as mere scraps of paper.

Abbot Improves Engine Heating Water by Sun Rays

The time is approaching when "sun power" may compete successfully with coal and water power, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and a researcher in solar radiation, said yesterday.

Dr. Abbot revealed that his solar flash-boiler engine has been improved to the point where it is possible to raise full steam pressure within five minutes after exposure to the sun's rays.

The engine is a single-tube boiler protected from heat loss by a glass vacuum jacket and fed by a current of water which is automatically graduated in flow by the boiler's temperature.

Dr. Abbot has calculated that about 15 per cent of all the solar energy striking the boiler's mirror is convertible into mechanical power. "Sun power," he believes, could be generated at a cost of about a half cent per horsepower-hour.

Systems of 2 Stores Are Explained Here

The accounting and records procedure of two large Washington department stores was described at the monthly meeting of the National Capital Group of Comptrollers in the Lafayette Hotel last night.

W. M. Loman, of the Hecht Co., and J. C. Godwin, of Woodward & Lothrop, outlined their fur storage and repair systems, from the initial transactions when the garments are sent to the stores until they are returned to customers.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and cure it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such a one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.
